Direct Democracy

Introduction

This book is written not only for “we the people” of today but for our children and grandchildren when they become adults. They should have the opportunity to understand what happened in the 2020s from a working-class perspective rather than from what’s filtered through the lens of government, medical, or academic institutions.

Working-class people have built almost everything around the world and have done so for millennia. We represent much of humanity. We have similar values, no matter where we live on the globe, or what we do for a living. We value our children, as they are the future. We will do anything to protect them. We devote many years of our lives to making sure our children grow up healthy, safe, educated, and stable. We also value our own personal health. Without it, we have little or nothing.

There are many things working people find to be repugnant. War is at the top of the list. War is when innocent children are slaughtered, families destroyed, villages leveled, hopes vanished. Working people toil for generations to create magnificent monuments, bridges, highways, tunnels, and all parts of the built environment that we rely on and value. What takes years, even centuries, to create, war destroys in minutes. War represents the worst of humanity, while those who lead us into needless warfare represent the worst of leadership. War, like many if not most human crimes, is fed by greed. Greed breeds corruption, heartless cruelty, injustice, inequality, tyranny, and madness.

In the 2020s, Western humanity was in the midst of a mass insanity. Governments in the Western world were corrupt at the highest levels. The TV-watching world had become slowly and certainly brainwashed. The science of propaganda had reached a zenith unimaginable just a generation earlier.

Humanity had reached a crossroads. One path would lead humans into another world war, followed by generations of suffering, unspeakable crimes against humanity, and unimaginable destruction of the natural world — a path being pushed by wealthy individuals. Their sense of humanity had died and had become replaced by a lust for power and control.

Each of us really needs very little. The Earth can provide comfortable, safe, healthy lives for all of us. The future could be magnificent for human beings, with happy families, strong communities, clean environments, creative and constructive livelihoods, and governance dedicated to the protection of human rights. The future of humanity must be built on a foundation of cooperation, not conflict. That's the direction where the other fork in the road could take us. There is currently a deep streak of greed infecting humanity like a malignant cancer. We can cure it, or it can destroy us. Direct democracy focuses on that cure.

The left-handed pages in this book contain sidebars, quotes, excerpts, screenshots, illustrations, and media headlines that were almost all current at the time this book was written in the 2020s. These are added according to 17 U.S. Code § 107, which states that fair use of copyrighted material for purposes such as criticism, comment, news reporting, or research, is not an infringement of copyright. These wide-ranging illustrations represent a snapshot of society in the first half of the 2020s. The information they reveal is critical to the thesis of this book, especially for those who are reading it in the future. In a sense, this is like two books in one.

Many of today's public don't see the information on the left-side pages because most of it is censored by mainstream media outlets. It is unfortunate that a large percentage of the American population is constantly bathed in information that is censored and propagandized. Many seem to be totally unaware of what's happening to them, their families, and their country.

We need to cooperatively rethink the way our government is structured. The system currently in use does not work. It is broken. Today, we are witnessing a government that is a slow-motion train wreck. How do we fix this problem? Let's discuss some ideas.

America's Pretend Democracy

“For if Men are to be precluded from offering their Sentiments on a matter . . . reason is of no use to us; the freedom of Speech may be taken away, and, dumb and silent we may be led, like sheep, to the Slaughter.”

George Washington, March 15, 1783

If you think America's government is a democracy, you're wrong. We have a “Constitutional Republic,” an outdated form of “democracy.”

If you think you have the “right to vote” in America, you're wrong again. When you vote for a representative, you're not exercising your right to vote, you're sacrificing your right to vote.

Allowing someone to vote on your behalf takes away your vote and the votes of millions of people, handing them instead to a tiny minority of politicians. Such an unfair and antiquated system doesn't make sense in our modern times. Instead, we need to wrest the decision-making power out of the hands of that tiny minority and put it where it belongs, directly into the hands of our tax-paying citizens.

This is called Direct Democracy, and the concept is simple. It is based upon four foundational principles:

1. The purpose of government is to serve the people. Government exists as a tool that we the people create and use to protect and preserve our basic inalienable rights. We do not serve the government; the government serves us.
2. Citizens vote directly on legislation. We're past the point of needing representatives to vote on our behalf.
3. “Representatives” are *randomly selected using an intelligent filtration process. Their role as esteemed public servants is to coordinate, organize, and execute the legislative processes and record the collective, binding votes of the citizens. Representatives have one vote, the same as everyone else.

Direct Democracy

America's Dangerous Election Cycle

Just as the crowned heads of state in Europe beheld the onset of World War I with paralyzed dread, aware it would ruin them but powerless to stop it, there is a deep fatalism to American politics today. The basic legitimacy of the electoral system is being undermined, the 2024 election likely won't be accepted by around half of all Americans, and the consequences both in the short and long term of this escalating polarization look disastrous. Everyone can sense that a crash is coming, but even if we try to slam on the brakes, it may be that they gave out long ago.

The West's Descent Into Madness

If it is possible to watch a society—an entire civilization—go insane, we are watching that phenomenon in real time. Across all forms of media, the headlines bring fresh evidence daily.

Western civilization—that aggregation of cultural, political, social, and religious traditions that has formed the basis for European societies and those of their current and former colonies and territories—is committing suicide, using every weapon—philosophical, legal, political—at its disposal.

THE PRICE OF POWER

“It is unhealthy for our country and our democracy for money to be such a critical component of how legislative leaders are selected. This dirty secret has metastasized into a major cancer afflicting our legislative process. The time to combat this is now. Nothing less than the public's trust in government itself is at stake.”

Supreme Court Rejects Attempt to Expand
No-Excuse Mail-in Ballots in Texas

“Unless the people, through unified action, arise and take charge of their government, they will find that their government has taken charge of them. Independence and liberty will be gone, and the general public will find itself in a condition of servitude to an aggregation of organized and selfish interest.” —Calvin Coolidge

THE POWER OF THE PEOPLE IS STRONGER THAN THE PEOPLE IN POWER

Direct Democracy

4. Citizens *directly engage in crafting legislation, including proposing and developing bills, legislative documents, legislative policy, and protocols.

Humans are the creator species; we can create the future we want; we can evolve our “democracy.” Voting is needed; what we don’t need are a tiny minority of politicians voting on behalf of everyone else. That scenario has become a recipe for disaster, as indicated by the impending collapse of the United States of America, and much of the Western world, in the twenty-first century.

Selection by Intelligent Filtration

Citizens interested in pursuing a position as a public representative can opt in on their tax return. There can be no forced selection, no involuntary government servitude. Eligible citizens who want to play a constructive role in the legislative process can choose to throw their hat into the ring. If they’re eligible, qualified, and fortuitous, they will be selected at random in the first round of candidates.

Candidates should be selected based on their Social Security numbers or other government identification number. Imagine a selection process that eliminates all irrelevant factors such as political party, religion, race, gender, and sexual orientation. Imagine a selection process that eliminates outside money. We all know that outside money has shamefully corrupted our government.

The selections are filtered through a series of intelligent processes that screen out ineligible candidates. You can’t opt in on your tax return if you don’t pay taxes. You can’t be in the selection pool if you don’t have an official identification number. These are initial filters.

For the U.S. House of Representatives, a candidate must be a legal citizen, age 25 or older, at least seven years a citizen of the United States, and a resident of the constituency of which he or she will represent. For the U.S. Senate, they must be at least 30 years old and have been a U.S. citizen for nine years. These criteria are specified in the United States Constitution.

Counterfeit Cash Financed Midterm Democrats

If you thought Republicans were the party of big business and the heartless rich, you might be wondering how Democrats managed to outspend Republicans in key races this year, like John Fetterman raking in nearly $48 million in his Pennsylvania U.S. Senate campaign, while the GOP opponent he defeated, Mehmet Oz, took in only about $12 million, (augmented by loaning himself $21 million). Or incumbent New Hampshire U.S. Sen. Maggie Hassan being re-elected after raising $38 million, while her GOP challenger, Trump-backed retired Gen. Don Bolduc, pulled in a mere $2.2 million. A big part of the answer is that Democrats are now the party of the snake oil mogul.

Before his financial scam came crashing to an end this month and over $2 billion in FTX clients' investments dissolved, Bankman-Friend had handed Joe Biden $10 million during the 2020 presidential election and gave Democrats over $40 million in this year's midterms, likely buying the party a majority in the U.S. Senate in the next Congress. Now ruined, he was the second-biggest donor to the party's campaigns, behind only Hungarian-born leftist billionaire currency manipulator George Soros.

Scant Election Reforms Since 2020 Forebode a Repeat in November

Massive voter fraud allegations that marred the 2020 election spurred a political and grassroots movement from coast to coast to pursue an array of election reforms designed to increase election integrity. However, with just months left ahead of the 2024 election, Republicans say little was mended, especially in contested states where they thought fixes were needed most. Much concern is centered around five key swing states that became the focus of 2020: Georgia, Pennsylvania, Arizona, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

Two Weeks to Flatten Became Eight Months to Change the Election

March 2020: The CDC and the CARES Act Meddle in the Election

April and May 2020: Voter Fraud Skyrockets

In May 2020, New Jersey held municipal elections and required all voting take place via mail. The State's third largest city, Paterson, held its election for city council. The results should have been a national scandal that ended the push for mail-in voting. Shortly after the election, the Postal Service discovered "hundreds of mail-in ballots" in one town mailbox. Paterson resident Ramona Javier never received her mail-in ballot for the election. Neither did eight of her family members and neighbors, yet they were all listed as having voted. "We did not receive vote-by-mail ballots and thus we did not vote," she told the press. "This is corruption. This is fraud."

Direct Democracy

All qualified selected candidates would be required to take a comprehensive test to prove they have an acceptable understanding of how government functions. Those who refuse to take the test or who fail it are filtered out. Those who score highest on the test remain in the final, randomly selected group. It is this final cut from which the representatives and backup candidates are selected, based on their identification numbers, general qualifications, and test results.

We no longer need to vote for representatives. For the legislative body, no elections would be needed, no political parties would be in control; there would be no gender considerations, the process would be color blind, there would be no rejections based on socio-economic status, no outside money would be involved.

Citizens can and should develop and propose legislation, either as individuals or in organized groups (think church groups, trade unions, parent groups, community organizations, and so on). Our randomly selected representatives and committee members would coordinate and execute the legislative process. The votes of the citizens must be counted, and they must be binding.

This is called “direct democracy,” and we need it. If we want to change the face of a nation, then change how its decisions are made. Take the power away from a wealthy minority and put it squarely where it belongs: in the hands of all the people. No matter how we describe the problem of a democracy gone awry, a solution must be found. Direct democracy is one that must be considered.

Brainwashing Machines

Currently, in 2024, in the United States of America, our government is mired in corruption, division, animosity, injustice, and frustration. Government fraud and malfeasance are undeniable, despicable, and disgusting. Much of it surrounds one issue: elections. American elections have become rigged, corrupt, and sleazy. No thinking person trusts them.

The exceptions, perhaps, are the “weak-minded TV watchers.” brainwashed masses of people whose minds have become weak and corrupted by the endless stream of propaganda fed directly to them by their “brainwashing machines,” otherwise known as televisions, social media platforms, and search engines.

A clandestine group of billionaires, employing an army of clever hackers, subservient media operatives, paid ballot box stuffers, and a host of other illicit accomplices, can shift votes by the millions one way or another, hack voting machines, control search engines, send private election data to foreign destinations, block opposition voices, censor free speech, and propagandize the public in a manner that our founding fathers could never have imagined.

The playbook is well known — divide and conquer. Us versus Them. Right versus Left. Democrats versus Republicans. Liberals versus Conservatives. Male vs Female. Straight vs Gay. Neighbor against neighbor, brother against brother, families torn apart with no healing in sight. So long as a conflicting dichotomy is maintained, the public will easily be misled, controlled, conquered, and subjugated, like sheep in a pasture, with the barking dogs of mainstream propaganda herding them one way or the other.

At this dark hour, now is not the time to get drawn into the petty issues that are floated before us as a distraction by the media and its owners. We the people must think for ourselves, think outside the box, find solutions, and act on them. New ideas must be proposed, discussed, developed, and realized. Direct democracy offers a way out of the corner we have painted ourselves into. The idea, which is totally legal, practical, and doable, offers a starting point, allowing us to imagine and create a future for humanity based on truth, justice, and real democracy, rather than greed, corruption, and conflict.

Civil War Must Be Avoided

creatively to allow democracy to unfold in a non-violent manner. We must never turn our guns against each other. When a snake is biting you, chop off the head, don't shoot your brother or sister. Cut the strings of the puppet masters, then bring the puppet masters to justice. We do not need to be foolishly led into a war against ourselves.

The human race is a creator species. We create things that otherwise would not be found in nature: plastic, steel, glass, music, art, harnessed nuclear energy, electric motors, aircraft, and so on. Why can't we also create a better democracy? When we elect a "representative," we terminate our right to vote, handing it over to someone else, a person who spends incredible amounts of money to become "elected." Sometimes, that representative is nothing more than a political prostitute, owing favors to special interests and opulent backers who expect the representative to support and pass legislation that favors them. The oligarchs expect favors, and if they are not forthcoming, their money spigot is shut off.

Representatives consequently spend much of their time in the congress or senate (at both state and federal levels), groveling for money to run for reelection. For generations, U.S. representatives were almost entirely wealthy white men. They primarily voted to advance the interests of wealthy white men. They did not represent their constituents, except on paper. Blacks and Native Americans were pushed out of the legislative process altogether. Women had the right to vote in the Soviet Union before they did in the United States. This is an inconvenient fact that is not taught in American public schools.

Today, Congressional representatives include a greater balance of females and more ethnic diversity, but these people are almost all controlled by a political party, primarily Democrat or Republican. Representatives still don't represent their constituents, nor can they. Republican and Democrat congresspersons should be impartial to political leanings to be fair, since about half of their constituents are likely to be Democrat and half Republican. Fair representation isn't happening. Many representatives instead vote lockstep with their political party.

It's no longer 1776. We no longer have to choose a representative from our village to ride a horse over miles of dirt roads to get to a central location to cast a vote on behalf of our community. We live in the twenty-first century, and it's time to update our political system instead of trying to fit a square 1776 election model into a round twenty-first century hole. It isn't working. Let's use the technology we have to move civilization forward, to evolve our governmental processes, and fortify our basic, common interests.

The U.S. Declaration of Independence, signed on July 4, 1776, states:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to affect their Safety and Happiness."

The preamble to the Constitution of the United States, effective since March 4, 1789, states:

"We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, ensure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

The United States government was created as a tool to serve the people. Period. The people do not serve the government; our ancestors created it to be used as a tool for our benefit. It exists to protect and secure our inalienable rights: Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness. We have strayed so far from this intent. Even though most government employees are good and decent people, our federal government has become a criminal enterprise at the highest levels. Our "representatives" rob our treasury by starting useless, pointless, offensive wars, shuffling billions, even trillions of dollars into their pockets or the pockets of their handlers.

Not content to rely on messy, drawn-out warfare to drain the people's treasury, criminals cleverly came up with a new idea in 2019: plan and orchestrate "pandemics." The 2020 COVID "pandemic" crashed the stock market, then quickly funneled $4 trillion out of the U.S. treasury into the pockets of the people who orchestrated it.

Propaganda platforms kept the population so scared they didn't even know they were being robbed, even though it was in broad daylight and right in front of their eyes. When the stock market hit bottom, people who were already wealthy bought up stocks at bargain prices, causing the stock market to revive, while making trillions of dollars in profits in the process.

Our national debt has skyrocketed to $35 trillion and continues to rise exponentially. Our politicians have done this to us. Our "representatives" have created this obscene debt while pretending to serve their constituents. They are robbing us blind. Who is expected to pay that money back? Our grandchildren?

put your feet up, sip a Mexican beer, order a coffee table made in Thailand, and have it at your door within a week. We all have Social Security Administration web pages listing our income, year by year, and our Social Security “benefits.” Why not include on that website, or another similar publicly funded service, another section listing pending legislation which we can all review, provide input to, and vote on? All eligible citizens should be able to vote directly on legislation and those votes must be binding. Any taxpaying citizen of eligible age should also be able to propose legislation easily and directly. Then, we the people can control our government, our lives, and our collective pocketbook.

Direct democracy would remove money from legislative politics, eliminate the need for political parties in the houses of representatives, provide equal opportunities for everyone, no matter your gender, your skin color, age, or socio-economic status, and create true democracy for the very first time in the history of the United States.

There’s a lot to unpack here, so let’s get started.

After Durham: One Crucial Question

How do we keep the FBI out of the next election?

Remember from the Durham report: The entire Russian collusion hoax was a complete fabrication from a Hillary Clinton campaign plan to subvert Donald Trump in 2016. As Mr. Durham reported: “There was never any actual evidence of collusion between the Trump campaign and Russia.”

Never. Any. Evidence.

Then, in the next election in 2020, you have all these retired CIA intel types with this Gang of 51 letter that denied the Hunter Biden laptop ever existed and called it a Russian disinformation campaign — even though, of course, the FBI was in possession of the Hunter Biden computer starting in December 2019. And the FBI lied. And the CIA lied.

A ‘Well-Funded Cabal’ Influenced the 2020 Election

In a laudatory 2021 article in Time titled “The Secret History of the Shadow Campaign That Saved the 2020 Election,” author Molly Ball detailed a “well-funded cabal of powerful people, ranging across industries and ideologies, working together behind the scenes to influence perceptions, change rules and laws, steer media coverage, and control the flow of information.”

The “conspiracy,” as Ms. Ball described it, included DNC operatives, union leaders, tech and social-media companies, Wall Street bankers, and a network of nonprofit donor funds that pooled hundreds of millions of dollars to finance “armies of poll workers and got millions of people to vote by mail for the first time.”

Representation by Intelligent Selection

The purpose of the representative is to represent their constituency, not to replace them. The constituencies are already established at the federal, state, county, and local levels. Representatives should not vote on behalf of their constituency. Individual representatives should have one vote on any matter, the same as any other citizen.

All citizens who want to exercise their civic duty should vote directly on legislation. It is the responsibility of the representatives to make sure that their constituents are informed of all pending legislation, know how and when to comment on it or to vote on the drafts, and make sure the votes of the citizens are duly recorded, honored, and binding. There would be no need for people to vote for their representatives. People would vote directly on legislation. The selected representatives, public servants all, make sure this process flows smoothly, legally, and correctly.

Many citizens may not be interested in voting on legislation. It generally holds true that only a minority of people care enough to get involved in organizational affairs, maybe 15%. But the ones who do care are the ones who will make the decisions for the overall group. More citizens will likely become involved over time as they realize that they actually have a vote that means something. The opportunity to get directly involved in legislation should be open to all eligible citizens and that involvement should be easy to execute.

There were 162 million registered voters in the United States in 2022. If only 15% of them voted on legislation, over 24 million people would be weighing in on the issues. This is in contrast to the U.S. House of Representatives, which includes only 535 congresspersons. As mentioned, many in this small group may be ethically compromised due to the grotesque need for financial backing required to run for office. Why should only 535 people make important decisions on war and peace, on how our tax dollars are spent, how much debt we should accumulate, and on other matters that affect 330+ million citizens? Where is our say in all of this?

The answer is “nowhere.” It doesn’t exist! Sure, you can call your representative, big deal. Many of them don’t care about their constituents.

They only care about who is going to fund their reelection campaign. This is the cold, hard, truth. Citizens must stand up and say enough is enough! We need to understand that the current system is obsolete, and we need to amend, evolve, and update our legislative process. All concerned, eligible citizens must be able to vote on legislation. That very idea is enough to scare the crap out of the people currently in power today. Their power would be taken away and placed in the hands of the citizens.

Our national debt is outrageous. Running a government is like running a business, and the people running our government are certainly incompetent, if not utterly corrupt thieves. We're going bankrupt; dollars are flying out of our national bank account like bats out of hell, shoveled into the pockets of the military industrial complex, the medical industrial complex, the censorship industrial complex, the deep state, the shadow government, the black ops, and all the minions who surround them waiting for crumbs to drop at their feet.

As of August 2023, the average monthly social security check was $1,700. People who work all their lives and pay into Social Security can try to live on an annual income of $20,400, which, as of 2024, is classified as poverty level for a family of two. Yet our representatives are only too eager to spend billions of our dollars fueling foreign wars.

Why has the Pentagon never passed a yearly audit? Why can't it account for trillions of dollars in assets? Do we the people really want to be involved in yet another war? The crooks raking in the money certainly do. Why can't we, all of us, vote on it? Do we want political prostitutes to continue to create money-laundering schemes, like foreign wars and public health scams? Let grandma have a vote. Let the people who actually work for a living, unlike career politicians, have a say in how their money is spent. That would be real democracy.

In a direct democracy, representatives would have a variety of important responsibilities. Citizens submit legislation through their representatives. The representatives and their committees are responsible for screening proposed legislation for appropriateness, accuracy, and completeness. Committee members could also be randomly selected from the final pool of initial candidates. Once proposed legislation passes committee review, it is presented to all constituents for review and vote. If the

19,000 Dead People Registered to Vote in Virginia, Election Officials Admit

Election officials in Virginia have announced this week that they found 19,000 dead people registered to vote in the state.

"If you want to serve on a committee in Congress, you have to pay for the privilege," wrote Rep. Ken Buck, a Republican from Colorado, in his new book Drain the Swamp: How Washington Corruption is Worse than You Think. "Committee assignments, then, are less about qualifications than they are about cash — or, to put it another way, cash is the chief qualification you need."

Local lawmaker: Congressional committees 'all have prices'

WASHINGTON — Rep. Thomas Massie has an unpaid bill for $240,000 sitting on his desk in Washington — a debt GOP leaders say he owes to the House Republicans' campaign operation.

"They told us right off the bat as soon as we get here, 'These committees all have prices and don't pick an expensive one if you can't make the payments'," Massie told The Enquirer. "That's part of the orientation." Massie, a Republican who represents Northern Kentucky, has likened the dues system to "extortion."

legislation passes the local level of voting, then it is elevated to a higher level for consideration.

For example, if a county level of proposed legislation passes a county vote, then it is elevated to state level, providing the issue involves the entire state, not just the county. The legislation, if it passes the state level by direct vote of the citizens, then moves on to federal level, and so on. It is the responsibility of the representatives to guide this process.

If proposed legislation does not pass a committee screening, perhaps because it is unconstitutional, it is sent back to the person or group of people who submitted it, to be reviewed, reworked, then resubmitted, or abandoned.

In a direct democracy, representatives can be elevated to higher levels of responsibility, committee chairpersons for example, on a meritocracy basis. Currently, access to political committees at the federal level depends on how much money you can pay “the swamp.”

Representatives can gain merit points when their constituency succeeds in submitting successful legislation; when they responsibly conduct their duties; when they maintain open contact and communication with their constituency, and so on. They receive demerits when they fail to attend committee meetings, or when they engage in misconduct or collect too many legitimate complaints on record.

In this manner, representatives can truly represent their constituents. Instead, our current representatives are forced to spend much of their time raising money, both for reelection and for committee participation. The money they raise often comes from well-heeled special interests that have business before the committees. This is a conflict of interest that reeks of corruption.

Rep. Zach Wamp (R-TN), who was the top member of two subcommittees on the House Appropriations Committee during his eight terms in Congress, stated: “The current ‘party dues’ system is a recipe for corruption that disconnects members of Congress from their constituents. The current ‘dues’ system puts legislators under immense pressure to make appeals to special interests to gain and maintain their committee assignments. The factors that determine who serves on which congressional committees should include your expertise, passion, and experience — not just how dedicated you are to raising money.”

Laughably, in 2019, some still use Windows 2000 and Windows XP. Twelve states still use paperless machines, meaning there’s no paper trail to verify vote counts. Some states don’t require post-election audits. And ten states don’t train election officials to deal with cybersecurity threats.”

And you are giving it to Chinese developers.”

In that case, one can easily imagine why Los Angeles prosecutors allege that “astounding” amounts of data were breached in what is “probably the largest data breach in United States history.”

Instead of a handful of wealthy individuals voting on behalf of everyone else, men and women 18 years of age and older who are citizens of the United States and who pay taxes, should be able to vote on legislation if they choose to do so. Instead of a small group of wealthy elitists passing legislation that primarily benefits a small group of wealthy elitists, the common people and the working class should have the final word.

Want to be a representative? There will be a place to opt in on your Federal, State, and Local tax returns. Being a representative is a serious and important public service that will require an established number of years of commitment. The terms will vary according to the position for which you have been selected. Federal congressional representatives will serve four years. Federal senators will serve six years. State, County, and Local representatives will serve according to the requirements of their location. Opting in is entirely voluntary. You will be notified via email or mail if your name has been selected in the first draft. You can select “Federal,” “State,” “County,” or “Local,” or all of the above.

The first round of elimination takes place when you opt in. This level screens out people who do not pay taxes, as well as those people who are not interested in serving as representatives, for whatever reason. You may want to be a representative, but are unable due to health reasons, family commitments, business obligations, or any of a host of justifications for choosing to opt out. Your circumstances can change from time to time; therefore, you may want to opt in on a future tax return.

A rough estimate of people who are inclined to opt in is about 5% of taxpayers; 95% would have little or no interest or have circumstances that make it impossible for them to devote years to a government position. However, the position doesn’t have to be a full-time job, thereby allowing representatives to maintain a part-time commitment to a business, family, farm, or other natural obligation that citizens may not want to abandon. Much of the work of representatives can be done remotely.

Representatives won't be wasting any time trying to raise money for reelection. Instead, representatives will be devoting all of their time doing their job. They will receive government paychecks and benefits just like representatives receive today. Their terms will be automatically limited because there will be no elections. Representatives will be selected on a schedule. There can be no "career politicians" in such a legislative body.

At the federal level, 150 million tax returns are likely to be submitted annually, providing about 7.5 million (5%) potential volunteer candidates. This selection process is color blind, free of racism, ageism, sexism, and any other form of discrimination; is not related to any political party; is not influenced by money; does not require any candidate to run for office; eliminates campaign finance issues; eliminates voter machines, ballot stuffing, dead voters, senile voters, corrupt election workers, election malfeasance, election propaganda, election censorship, and the entire host of ills now infecting the American electoral process.

Out of the 7.5 million potential candidates at the federal level, a specified number are randomly selected for further consideration. For example, let's assume 0.1% are randomly selected, or 7,500 candidates. This is your randomly selected candidate base. The percentage selected must be enough to provide representatives and staff for every constituency and could vary depending on the government level and location.

This random selection would likely yield approximately half men and half women. Party affiliation, skin color, sexual orientation, physical disabilities, religious association, level of wealth, and all such things are irrelevant and would play no role in the selection process. Every tax-paying citizen who willfully volunteers is randomly selected according to his or her Social Security number. They all would have an equal opportunity.

Of the 7,500 candidates, additional elimination occurs when incarcerated persons, underage persons, persons not residing in the United States, non-citizens, and other limiting factors are applied. The remaining candidates are informed of their consideration, provided with a detailed outline of the responsibilities they will be required to assume, and are given an opportunity to opt out, no questions asked. that a significant proportion of the candidates will opt out at this time.

The remaining candidates must then undergo a testing procedure. Why would anyone be considered eligible for a role in government as a representative without any background, education, or knowledge in government operations? A comprehensive competency test must be administered to prospective representatives regarding government operations as well as basic language skills, civic knowledge, the U.S. Constitution, laws and statutes, the legislative process, computer skills, communication skills, the executive branch, the judicial branch, and other details relating to a potential role working in a legislative body.

This is the next round of elimination. Persons whose test results are in the top percentages remain eligible as candidates. Finally, there would be a random selection of these top candidates, with a percentage selected as backup candidates in the event a selected candidate would be unable to perform his or her duties, plus additional backup candidates to fill committee seats or for staff personnel.

Now we have truly democratic houses of representatives. All are randomly selected, approximately half are women, all have been tested and have exhibited a high level of competency, none have been selected based on financial backing, party affiliation, level of wealth, skin color, gender, or any other irrelevant factor.

These representatives are reflections of their constituents. The house of representatives would reflect the makeup of the population. It would not be mostly wealthy, white men, as has been customary. Nor would it be made up of people installed by special interests, billionaires, globalists, war mongers, or any industrial complex. We would have representation that would truly, and for the first time ever, let the people decide!

Representatives could not be bribed to vote one way or another, as is commonplace today. Why? Because representatives have only one vote. The constituency votes, then the representative reports that vote, with oversight from other, randomly selected assistants and co-workers. There would be very little wiggle room to insert fraud and corruption, and certainly any cracks, once identified, would be sealed up quickly!

Let the People Decide

Democracy, described in a nutshell, means “let the people decide.” Yet, democracy is dying a hasty death right before our eyes. Globalists want to rid the world of the U.S. Constitution, everything it represents, and all the rights it enshrines. They took a stab at it with a so-called “pandemic” in 2020, stripping societies around the world of the rights that Americans consider inalienable: freedom of speech, freedom of assembly, freedom of religion, freedom from unreasonable searches and seizures, replacing them with forced drug injections, home detention, forced face coverings, brutal police and military repression, censorship, propaganda, seizure of bank accounts, credit cards, property, and so on. And many people let them do it.

The Schwabites famously stated, “You will own nothing, and you will be happy.” The rest of the statement can be assumed: “We, on the other hand, will own everything, and we will be even happier.” Global elites represent a new world order where liberty and basic human rights, individualism, free speech, independent thought, “life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness” are replaced with obedience and conformity. A handful of billionaires want to decide the fate of humanity. Their ability to hoard material wealth has given them the opinion that they know what’s best for the rest of the world — the other 99.999% of the population.

Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels famously published The Communist Manifesto in 1848, a publication that had a massive effect on humanity worldwide for many generations. In the mid-1800s, people faced the same sort of challenges we are plagued with today, such as an incredible disparity of wealth, with most human wealth concentrated in the hands of a tiny number of people. That wealth concentration creates a massive power concentration. Wealthy people can have their own security forces, armies of lawyers, unlimited financial resources, sometimes coupled with the absence of a moral compass. Marx and Engels came up with a solution: eliminate private property. This would, they assumed, get rid of the tyrants and create equality among all people.

Communism’s efforts to abolish private property proved to be its downfall. Human nature must be taken into consideration. People want their own homes. They want private property — and they don't want it taken away from them, certainly not by the government. The government exists to serve the people. It is a tool for the people, not a weapon to be used against it.

Marx and Engels would have been better advised to demand a limit to private property, like a limit to driving speeds on a highway. If you drive too fast, you endanger other drivers. If you hoard too much material wealth, you endanger society, because you can easily bribe and/or threaten senators, congresspersons, judges, police officers, governors, mayors, universities, churches, medical institutions, government agencies, and anyone in a position of authority who can be persuaded with a big enough bribe, perhaps hidden as an endowment, campaign contribution, or grant.

A limit to wealth would have muted the power of the kings, queens, royalty, czars, sultans, and other obscenely wealthy individuals, families, and oligarchs. Hard-working commoners would better be able to reap the rewards of their hard work. Farmers don't need kings; they need shovels. When a king takes their shovels, thoughts of revolution will foment in the minds of the masses.

It was 100 years after the Communist Manifesto when George Orwell published a veiled condemnation of communism in his dystopian social science fiction novel and cautionary tale 1984, published in 1949. Orwell focused on totalitarianism, mass surveillance, government repression, human regimentation, mass obedience, government-imposed censorship, government-controlled media with massive propaganda campaigns, and other ills spawned in an authoritarian state. His novel imagines what communism would become if it were allowed to be carried to fruition.

Fast forward to the 2020s. The global elites have come up with a new plan: eliminate private property for everyone, as Marx and Engels had suggested, but make an exception for the already rich. Then allow a tiny fraction of the population, the wealthy elite, to control the world through mandates, dictates, and edicts.

They would achieve this plan in a number of ways:

1. They would convince the populace that government-mandated drug injections are in the people's best interests. Those injections can in-turkey while they fly around the world in private jets having meetings on how to further mold humanity to their liking.

9. The elites will promote wars, which are ultimate transgressions against planet Earth and against all of us. Wars are grievous, destructive, polluting attacks of insanity that gobble up and destroy natural resources while the rich get richer and everyone else pays for it with their tax money, with their health, or with their lives.

10. The elites will infiltrate governments at all levels. They will buy congressmen, senators, judges, governors, state prosecutors, assemblymen, “health” officials, military leaders, and members of parliament. They will rig elections, and when they count the “votes,” they will win.

With their selected representatives in position, their mainstream propaganda apparatus well oiled, the population thoroughly intimidated, scared, obedient, and conforming, the success of their agenda will be virtually certain. We are seeing all of this occurring right before our eyes in the 2020s.

But there is a way out of this mess: Government representatives can be randomly selected; they don’t have to be elected. This bears repeating: We no longer need to pick our representatives by election. It’s not 1776. We have the technological ability to do better, much better. We can revolutionize humanity. We don’t need to ban private property. We don’t need to allow tyranny to fester among us like a cancer. We don’t have to tolerate authoritarian rule. We can craft truly democratic representation.

Through random selection a number would be selected, not a person. A number has no skin color, no gender, no ethnicity, no age, no way to be considered racist, sexist, ageist, or discriminatory in any manner. A person’s eligibility for random selection is by voluntarily checking a box on their income tax return. Citizens will be able to vote directly on legislation. Citizens will also be able to directly introduce legislation. Representatives will not vote on our behalf. They would, as esteemed, respected, well-paid public servants, coordinate and organize our votes and our legislation, while casting their own single vote as they see fit.

On matters of importance to the people, the people would decide. That’s how it should be. That’s how we eliminate tyranny. That’s how we protect our freedoms. That’s how we preserve all that is sacred to us.

Direct Democracy

That's how we cultivate a common set of values that we fiercely defend to our deaths. And we do this in the United States by building upon our existing foundation: the United States Constitution.

In 1776, the population of the entire United States was less than the population of Toledo, Ohio today. In 1776, without cars, electricity, Internet, or advanced technology, and with such a small population, a "Constitutional Republic" made sense. It was a revolutionary leap away from the rule of kings. It was a successful model that suited the times and it worked. But it has become obsolete. By clinging to an outdated, anachronistic mode of governing, we are creating a monster. And that monster will devour us if we don't get it under control.

But "true democracy" is the same thing as "mob rule." Such were the sentiments in the late 1700s when blacks were slaves and women were denied the right to vote. At that time, democracy posed a threat to the ruling white, male, property owners. Do "we the people" constitute a mob in the present time? Of course not.

The Mutants vs the Rest of Us

“If you shut up truth and bury it under the ground, it will but grow, and gather to itself such explosive power that the day it bursts through it will blow up everything in its way.”

Émile Zola

Was it a genetic mutation or is it simply human nature to crave excess material wealth? Theoretically, a subset of humans, through a genetic mutation, developed a “greed gene,” which made them dissatisfied with whatever number of possessions they had managed to hoard. Wealth is acquired by these humans in any way possible, often by force, robbery, pillaging, corruption, and violence. As their material wealth increases, so does their power. They share their wealth with others — soldiers, police, thugs, death squads, to help them engage in more pillaging, thereby increasing their wealth further and gaining even more power and influence.

In time, these genetically mutated people and their families become dynasties, kingdoms, rulers, oligarchs, and criminal kingpins, leeching off the common folk to enrich themselves. This is a complicated issue that has plagued humanity for eons, greatly simplified here for brevity.

The Declaration of the Rights of Man

Eventually, the common folk rebel. The French revolution in the late 1700s resulted in the massacre of nobles, the abolishment of the monarchy, and the establishment of a republic, leading to The Declaration of the Rights of Man and of the Citizen in 1789 by the National Assembly.

To summarize, this declaration states the following:

1. People are free and equal in respect of their rights.
2. Natural rights include liberty, property, security, and resistance of oppression.

What Did The W.E.F Mean By: “You Will Own Nothing And Be Happy, By 2030”

The collaboration between the World Health Organization (WHO) and the World Economic Forum (WEF) in shaping the global agenda for 2030 has sparked intense debates and speculation. This partnership, aimed at “addressing global health challenges” and “fostering economic development” has raised eyebrows due to the inclusion of controversial statements such as “You will own nothing and you will be happy.”

'You'll Own Nothing'—and Like It. Or Will You?

The much-circulated slogan “You will own nothing, and you will be happy” was coined by Danish MP Ida Auken in 2016 and included in a 2016 essay published by the purveyors of the so-called “Great Reset” at the World Economic Forum (WEF) headquartered in Davos, Switzerland. It is, of course, only half true. Nonetheless, the phrase is certainly apt and should be taken seriously. For once the Great Reset has been put in place, we will indeed own nothing except our compelled compliance.

What the %!@- happend in Pennsylvania... AGAIN?

In the 2022 Gubernatorial Election, my amazing Director of Data and Analytics for Audit The Vote PA, Vico Bertogli, noticed an anomaly on the Department of State's website around 8:30pm. Democrat candidate, Josh Shapiro, had been awarded over 10M mail-in ballots while Republican candidate, Doug Mastriano, was given 2M mail-in ballots. The problem with those reported numbers is that Pennsylvania only has 9M registered voters statewide.

In Georgia, 19,000 ballots were counted from a single Zuckerberg dropbox over one weekend, but surveillance shows only 24 people dropping off ballots.

A Turning Point for the World's Elite?

The annual conference of the World Economic Forum in Davos has always been a high-profile event, bringing together the so-called 'Communist Elite' of the global economic scene. This year, however, the atmosphere was markedly different. Amidst the usual planning and discussions, there was a palpable sense of fear among the elite - a fear that their grip on global affairs might be loosening.

1. The Elite's Fear of Losing Control

Recent developments have suggested that the global elite is concerned about losing power.

2. The Backlash Against Davos Ideologies

The ideologies championed at Davos have faced pushback, particularly in America and Europe.

3. The Evaporating Consensus and Voter Sentiment

Despite attempts to maintain control through institutional capture, especially in the financial sector, the elite's influence seems to be waning.

4. Signs of a Shift in Elite Perspectives

Interestingly, some key figures within the elite circle appear to be reevaluating their stance.

Brunson v. Alma S. Adams; et al., (Biden, Harris, Pence & 385 Members of Congress)

BACKGROUND

Loy, Raland, Deron and Gaynor Brunson (the brothers) witnessed the 2020 election along with claims from members of congress that the election was rigged. What got their attention was when the proposition to investigate those claims was presented to Congress and put to a vote. What came as a shock to the four brothers is when they discovered that 387 members of Congress along with VP Mike Pence actually voted against the proposed investigation, thus thwarting the investigation. Whether the election was rigged or not was no longer their main concern. What now became the concern was when those members of Congress violated their sworn oath by voting to thwart the investigation.

Brnovich Ignoring Credible Concerns About Ballots Cast Through Arizona's Overseas Internet Portal

The federal Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) outlines procedures and requirements for citizens voting from overseas, a substantial number of which are service members and their families.

The 68% increase in overseas ballots is even more concerning considering there was no corresponding increase in Arizona service members deployed overseas during that same time period. Moreover, the population of all U.S. citizens overseas is estimated to have only increased by around 11-12% between 2016 and 2020. The Federal Voting Assistance Program estimates that overseas voting rates remained steady in 2020. Considering these data points, the 68% increase in Maricopa County UOCAVA ballots simply doesn't add up and is deserving of the Attorney General's attention.

Further highlighting election integrity concerns, Mr. Harris testified that of the purported UOCAVA ballots accepted by Maricopa County, approximately 95% of those 10,396 ballots were cast for a single candidate. According to Mr. Harris, that candidate was Joe Biden.

to assert their rights and to curtail the abuses of a tyrannical government.

In the 2020s, tyranny once again threatens humanity. A charter of rights must be accepted that serves everyone. In a democracy, governments exist for the sole purpose of serving the people. The purpose of government is to protect and preserve the rights of human beings and to support the provisions of goods and services for that purpose. When a government degrades into tyranny, it must undergo a correction.

The various charters and declarations outlined in this chapter all exist for the purpose of declaring, protecting, and preserving basic human rights. Their details differ based on location and era in which they were created. However, their commonalities can be listed and should be agreed upon by all peoples. Let's call these "fundamental human rights."

Elon Musk: FTX CEO Funneled 'Over $1B' to Democrats

Twitter boss Elon Musk has demanded to know where "the money went" after declaring that Sam Bankman-Fried, the disgraced former CEO of cryptocurrency exchange FTX, funneled "over $1B" to Democrats. If the number is accurate, Musk's allegation would mean Sam Bankman-Fried (SBF) donated significantly more than the initially reported $40 million figure to Democratic politicians.

freshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants.”

Nearly 250 years ago, rifles, bayonets, and guillotines may have been the tools of choice to rid society of tyranny. Today, we have the capability, through the use of technology, creativity, cooperation, and intelligence, to return the legislative branch of government to the control of the people without the need for violence, war, or insurrection. How? By introducing the random intelligent selection of representatives and by establishing direct citizen vote on legislation.

Milking the Citizens

Median annual income in the United States in the early 2020s was about $75,000. With that in mind, it's hard to imagine being able to generate $100 billion of income in one year. Where would all that money come from? One pharmaceutical company generated that amount in 2022. It came primarily from the U.S. treasury. Nobody is “minding the store,” our national bank account, and it is being repeatedly robbed. The criminals have masterminded the crime of tapping into the U.S. treasury by using mainstream propaganda, brainwashing machines, censorship, scare tactics, and threats, all in contradiction to our basic constitutional rights. They are milking U.S. citizens like dairy goats, and we are allowing them to do it.

In 2022, when the median income in the U.S. was $74,580, Mark Zuckerberg made $27 million. The 10 richest people on the planet were worth nearly $1.47 trillion. Worldwide, there were 2,640 billionaires collectively worth $12.2 trillion. This is 0.00000033% of the world's population.

Although the average person earns about $2.7 million in their lifetime, Bill Gates gains three to four times that in one day. Some sources estimate Gates' daily income at around $10.95 million, or about $117 per second. Another source suggests a lower amount of approximately $7.6 million per day or $319,635 per hour. In one hour, Bill Gates earns over four times as much as the median annual income in the United States.

computers, no social media, or any other means of amplifying one's "speech." In the 2020s, freedom of speech doesn't mean much. You are free to speak, but not free to be heard. How can anyone hear you over the magnified speech of the very wealthy, those who control radio, TV, newspapers, magazines, social media, the Internet, and search engines?

One way to counter authoritarianism is by creating more democracy. Instead, we are being plundered by a corrupt shadow government that has built a legal system that allows the plunder to take place, year after year, generation after generation. The Chinese military strategist Sun Tzu once wrote: "The supreme art of war is to subdue the enemy without fighting." We live in an age when battles are not solely fought with guns and bombs. The new battlefield is in the minds of every citizen. Let's use our intelligence to create the future that we want, while leaving the bombs behind.

"The real cost of the State is the prosperity we do not see, the jobs that don't exist, the technologies to which we do not have access, the businesses that do not come into existence, and the bright future that is stolen from us. The State has looted us just as surely as a robber who enters our home at night and steals all that we love." ~ Frederic Bastiat

The Curse of the Boiled Frogs

Mass hysteria is a phenomenon that has plagued humanity for millennia. Humans are herd animals — large groups of them can be readily influenced by outside controlling factors. A notable example: the legal tradition of prosecuting people suspected of practicing witchcraft, which was well-established in Europe from the fifteenth through seventeenth centuries.

Estimates are that 10,000 to upwards of 9 million people were accused of, and persecuted for, practicing “witchcraft,” mostly in what is now central Europe, where Germany, France, the Netherlands, and Switzerland exist today. Most of the “witch” executions occurred between 1580–1650. Perhaps the most famous American witch trials occurred in Salem Massachusetts in the late 1600s, at the tail end of the European witch persecutions.

English colonists brought the concept of a “witch” to colonial New England where belief in the devil was widespread. The Salem witch trials were fueled by people’s suspicions of and resentments toward their neighbors, as well as their fear of outsiders.

The ergot fungus found in rye, wheat, and other cereal grains, when eaten, can cause symptoms such as delusions, vomiting, and muscle spasms. Two girls in Salem, in early 1692 (ages 9 and 11), came down with a mysterious illness not unlike ergot poisoning. However, a medical doctor concluded that it looked like witchcraft. Hard to believe these days that a doctor declared that witchcraft was the cause of an illness, but it was considered a legitimate diagnosis at that time.

Not only did the Salem Witch Trials wrongfully accuse and convict many women during this era, but men and even dogs were declared possessed by the devil, convicted, and executed. When accused witches were brought before magistrates and questioned, their accusers appeared in the courtroom engaging in spasms, contortions, screaming, and writhing. Some who were accused became informers and confessed to save themselves, then claimed knowledge of other witches, who were pointed out and subsequently rounded up, some as young as four years old.

Robert F. Kennedy Jr. to Run as an Independent

Democrat presidential candidate Robert F. Kennedy Jr discussed the latest dirty tricks that the Democrat National Committee is attempting to use against him. "It's pretty clear that the DNC does not want a primary. I don't want to say that they want a coronation, but I think that's a fair way to put it. Essentially, they're fixing the process. They're disenfranchising the Democratic voters from having any choice in who becomes president. Things they've done today is moved the Iowa primary and made rules that if anybody campaigns in Iowa, or any candidate sets foot in the state of Iowa, or sets foot in the state of New Hampshire, then none of the votes that are cast for that candidate will be counted. They're rigging it so that if you add up all the super delegates they control and all the automatic delegates that just go to the party and to the president, I will have to win almost 80 percent of all of the states in order to beat President Biden even if he only wins 20 percent."

History of Influence, Scandal, and Denial

In December 1953, America's leading tobacco companies gathered to confront a menace to their incredibly profitable industry. Science published in medical journals had cast doubt on the safety of cigarettes and had threatened to destroy a half-century of corporate profiteering. Joining them was John W. Hill, president of America's top public relations firm, Hill & Knowlton. Hill had closely studied Edward Bernays, whose work on propaganda in the 1920s and 1930s defined techniques to manipulate popular opinion. Effective public relations at its best left no fingerprints. Instead of ignoring or denigrating new data that found tobacco dangerous, Hill proposed the opposite: embrace science, trumpet new data, and demand more, not less research. They would then fund scientists, thereby corrupting science and medicine for decades to follow.

Witch trials began to overwhelm the local justice system. In May 1692, the newly appointed governor of Massachusetts, William Phips, ordered the establishment of a special court to try these cases. Witchcraft then became the second capital crime, punishable by death, listed in the Massachusetts Bay Colony's criminal code.

Presided over by seven judges, the court handed down its first conviction, against Bridget Bishop, on June 2, 1692; she was hanged eight days later. The trial lasted one day. The accused had no counsel, and was doomed by sensational stories involving flying monkeys, black pigs, and the devil, potentiated by popular opinion and prejudice.

Five more people were hanged that July; five in August, and eight more in September. In addition, seven other accused witches died in jail, while an 81-year-old man who refused to admit innocence or guilt when accused of witchcraft was wedged between two heavy stones until he died, days later. Many of these victims were found guilty based on "spectral evidence," i.e., witness testimony based on dreams and visions.

Support eventually waned for the sensational witch trials, perhaps because of the many innocent people put to gruesome deaths because of flimsy and foolish accusations. Governor Phips dissolved the Witch Court and mandated that its successor disregard spectral evidence. Trials continued with dwindling intensity until early 1693, when Phips had pardoned and released all those in prison on witchcraft charges.

It is still not clear why girls began having fits in early 1692, or why their condition seemed to spread to others. Whatever the cause, mass hysteria — a collective phenomenon in which a group of people experience delusions, fear, and perceived threats — seems to have played an important role. How does this happen?

Two primary factors are required to conjure up mass hysteria: 1) powerful people with vested interests in eliminating their competitors or detractors; and 2) a form of mass communication that can provoke large numbers of people to the extent that they lose touch with reality.

Imagine a century during which people were charged with witchcraft, tied to poles, and burned alive or hung by the neck to die in front of large crowds of cheering people who had been brainwashed to believe this was righteous and necessary or were too frightened to speak out for fear of

According to a new investigative report by @JudiciaryGOP, we know for a fact that DHS/CISA and its censorship regime, in concert with corrupt third-parties and Big Tech apparatchiks conspired to target and censor me specifically.

Just days before the 2020 election, I reported on a Pennsylvania Supreme Court decision that allowed late ballots without a postmark to be counted as valid ballots. I took a screenshot of the opinion, quoted it, and provided a link to the court decision. Twitter censored my post at the time and falsely claimed I was “misleading about an election or civic event.”

We noticed it when it happened and called it out immediately. Now we know why it happened: DHS/CISA specifically targeted me, complained that the reach of my tweet was “viral” and “growing exponentially” and then demanded that it be censored by Twitter. You read that correctly: our own government had a temper tantrum that my indisputably accurate tweet was gaining traction and calling into question the integrity of the officials who defied state law and allowed late, un-postmarked ballots to be counted. Our own government demanded that Twitter violate 1st Amendment right to speak and to report the news, and they demanded that Twitter violate your right to consume news in the middle of an election.

CISA Was Behind the Attempt to Control Your Thoughts, Speech, and Life

On Monday, the House Judiciary Committee released a report on how the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency (CISA) “colluded with Big Tech and ‘disinformation’ partners to censor Americans.”

The 36-page report raises three familiar issues: first, government actors worked with third parties to overturn the First Amendment; second, censors prioritized political narratives over truthfulness; and third, an unaccountable bureaucracy hijacked American society.

The House Report reveals that CISA, a branch of the Department of Homeland Security, worked with social media platforms to censor posts it considered dis-, mis-, or malinformation.

Additionally, CISA funded the nonprofit EI-ISAC in 2020 to bolster its censorship operations. EI-ISAC worked to report and track “misinformation across all channels and platforms.” In launching the nonprofit, the government boasted that it “leverage[d] DHS CISA’s relationship with social media organizations to ensure priority treatment of misinformation reports.”

being accused of being a witch themselves and thereby meeting a similar fate.

Who were the powerful people behind these crimes against humanity? Was it the church and the scientists, doctors, and politicians who may have been in the pockets of the clergy? How did they amplify their propaganda? Was it from the pulpit? There is no doubt that mass hysteria was fortified by judges and courts, amplified by social influencers, and confirmed by doctors and scientists, while soldiers and police meted out punishments to innocent victims, leading to horrible crimes against humanity and indelible stains on human civilization.

The persecution of accused witches and other relatively defenseless targeted minorities has occurred repeatedly throughout human history. People who spoke out against the persecutions were themselves accused, then imprisoned, tortured, then had their homes, businesses, reputations, and families, either damaged, taken away, or destroyed altogether. The deranged actors behind the mass crimes included people who controlled the public purse and therefore the police and military. These armed forces made sure that the dissenters were kept out of the way, in line, intimidated, or eliminated.

Arguably, other examples can be attributed to mass hysteria, such as the slave trade, during which basic human rights were ignored on a massive scale on behalf of commerce and profit, for hundreds of years. Or the mass destruction of the Native Americans by European immigrants determined to steal the land belonging to the native people, and the resources upon it. These were certainly grave crimes against humanity if you were the native residents, although the moral implications of such behavior seemed to be largely ignored by the perpetrators.

Jump ahead to the twentieth century. A notable mass hysteria occurred when the Nazis provoked the German population into believing Jewish people had to be eliminated by any means necessary. This is a complicated issue. Nazi Fascists promoted a government system led by a dictator, Hitler, who had complete power. He used it to forcibly suppress opposition and criticism. The Nazis used an aggressive nationalism to regiment industry and commerce.

At the same time, a number of vocal Jews advocated socialism. They

The First Black Man Elected to Congress

Hiram Rhodes Revels arrived on Capitol Hill to take his seat as the first Black member of the U.S. Congress in 1870. But first, the Mississippi Republican faced Democrats determined to block him.

The Constitution requires senators to hold citizenship for at least nine years, and they argued Revels had only recently become a citizen with the 1866 Civil Rights Act and the 14th Amendment. Before that, the Supreme Court had ruled in its 1857 Dred Scott decision that Black people weren’t U.S. citizens.

This technicality wasn’t actually their main issue with Revels. At the time, the Democrats were the party of white southern men, and they simply didn’t want any Black men in Congress.

In any case, their bad faith legal argument didn’t hold up. Revel’s fellow Republicans argued he was born a free man in the United States and had lived there all his life.

Revels took his oath only five years after the Civil War. Over the next decade, 15 more Black men took their seats in the House and Senate.

wanted the ownership and control of production, distribution, capital, and land to be in the hands of the community as a whole. Their system was directly contradictory to that of a fascist government.

Nazi leaders and their fascist supporters officially encouraged the massacre and persecution of Germany's Jewish population. They disseminated propaganda using amplified public speeches and a new technology — radio.

To be clear, propaganda is based on emotion, and it affects people regardless of their level of intelligence. Extremely smart people can quickly fall under the influence of propaganda just the same as dumb ones. Many of the German population were quite intelligent, but they nevertheless supported the Nazis as they engaged in the mass murder of Jews and others. Why would they do this? Either because they were brainwashed, or because they were afraid to speak out for fear of retribution. Those who spoke out could be imprisoned, tortured, lose their livelihood, their homes, their families, their reputation. Or be murdered.

Communists

Mass hysteria reared its ugly head again during the “anticommunist” era in the United States after World War II, an era which is ongoing. It wasn’t “witches” or slaves or native peoples or minorities who were the target of deranged people in power; it was “communists.” What was or is a communist? A dictionary definition of communism is: “a system in which goods are owned in common and are available to all as needed; a theory advocating elimination of private property.”

Here, we circle back to Marx and Engels and The Communist Manifesto of the mid-1800s, describing a philosophy that began to flourish in the early 1900s with the Russian Revolution in 1917, followed by the formation of the Soviet Union in 1922. The Soviet Union, or the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, as it was formally called (the USSR), eventually included 15 republics and nearly 130 ethnic groups spanning 11 time zones.

The philosophy of Communists can be summed up in one sentence: Abolish private property. The Communist Manifesto states,

The Manifesto, sightly paraphrased, also states:

Private property must be abolished and in its place must come the common utilization of all instruments of production and distribution of all products according to common agreement — in a word, what is called the communal ownership of goods. The establishment of a large bloc of humanity, which espoused a political philosophy that eliminated private property, terrified the wealthy elite. The Kings, Queens, and other Royalty, the Tsars and Emperors, Lords, magnates, tycoons, aristocracy, capitalists, autocrats, despots, oligarchs, and other hoarders of material wealth had a lot of property. They also had a lot of power and influence.

The Anticommunists

By the 1950s, a new invention enabled the amplification of communication. It was called television. Broadcast networks, TV stations, their owners, managers, and employees, were controlled by wealthy private individuals. This allowed immense media power to be concentrated in the hands of a small minority of people, allowing the science of propaganda to evolve from the crude but effective rantings of the clergy from pulpits in medieval times, to a fine science that would be used to control the minds of millions of people in the modern world.

President Harry S. Truman, who had ordered the bombing of civilian cities in Japan with the Atom Bomb at the end of World War II, issued an Executive Order after the war requiring that all federal civil-service employees be screened for affiliation with any organization determined to be communist, despite the fact that the United States had recently fought side-by-side with the communist Soviet Union during World War II. In March of 1947, Truman announced a new foreign policy requiring the United States to oppose communist expansion. This came to be known as the Truman Doctrine, and it forced the United States to support anticommunist forces around the world.

McCarthyism, an extreme American anticommunist movement, was sparked by communism's emergence as a political force in the United States. American communists organized labor unions, opposed fascism, and offered an alternative to capitalism during the Great Depression. The U.S. Communist Party increased its membership to about 75,000 people in the early 1940s.

Office of the Special Counsel Second Interim Investigative Report
On the Apparatus & Procedures of the Wisconsin Elections System
Delivered to the Wisconsin State Assembly on March 1, 2022

Introduction

The Office of the Special Counsel files this Investigative Report on Wisconsin's administration of the 2020 elections as a first step to begin restoring faith in America's elections. This effort is undertaken because Americans' faith in its election system was shaken by events both before and after the November 2020 Presidential election. For example, a January 2022 ABC/Ipsos poll revealed that only 20% of the public is very confident about the integrity of our national election system. This 20% number is a significant drop from 37% from a similar ABC poll conducted one year earlier. America's doubts about its election system crosses partisan lines. Among Democrats, only 30% say they are "very confident" in the U.S. election systems overall. Among independents, only 20% consider themselves "very confident" in the nation's elections. Among Republicans, only 13% are "very confident" with America's elections.

Some unlawful conduct and irregularities outlined in this Report include:

1. Election officials' use of absentee ballot drop boxes
2. The Center for Tech and Civic Life's $8,800,000 Zuckerberg Grants
3. Failure to maintain an accurate voter database
4. Engaging private companies in election administration in unprecedented ways
5. Directing clerks not to send out legal voting deputies to nursing homes
6. Unlawful voting by wards-under-guardianship
7. Failure to record non-citizens in the voter database
8. Violation of Federal and Wisconsin Equal Protection Clauses

Anticommunist fervor enabled the wealthy elite to influence the American population to attack small nations and slaughter their inhabitants by the millions — to put it bluntly. There was little discussion on the merits or foundation of communism or on the dangers of wealth and power being concentrated in the hands of a small number of elite individuals. Instead, Americans were thoroughly brainwashed by radio and TV broadcasts, magazines, and newspapers, into believing that communism represented the pinnacle of evil and had to be stopped at all costs, even if it meant mass murder on a large scale while engaging in repeated and grotesque crimes against humanity.

Government-controlled schools amplified the anti-communist message, indoctrinating children to become obedient conformists, willing to kill or be killed in the name of “democracy” and “freedom.”

Every day, children in U.S. government schools were forced to recite a pledge of obedience to the government in which they repeated Stepford-like, “with liberty and justice for all,” as black Americans clogged the prisons, and high-school graduates were given the choice to be shipped overseas to slaughter foreigners or spend two years languishing in a federal penitentiary with murderers and rapists.

On TV in the 1960s the regular program Superman began with an intonation about Superman fighting for “truth, justice, and the American way.” Turn the channel and the news showed American B52 bombers carpet bombing civilian villages in Vietnam.

Was there no middle ground between communism and capitalism? Could there be no compromise? Was there no way to resolve these issues without mass violence and bloodshed? What about “social capitalism” or something like that — an intelligent and reasonable combination of the two opposing perspectives? No, nothing like that existed at that time.

The personal accumulation of massive wealth is not necessarily an indication of intelligence and certainly not of wisdom. Extremely wealthy individuals’ knee jerk reaction to communism was to stop it completely, stamp it out at any cost. “The end justifies the means” as the saying goes. There was no interest in compromise, no point in discussing limits to wealth, or a more equitable distribution of natural resources so that everyone could have their piece of earth, with liberty and justice, free of enslavement and oppression. In the United States, capitalists controlled the government, and the government's intent was simply to wipe out communism at any cost.

The Korean War, or the “forgotten war,” as some called it, followed. The United States military was engaged in this war from 1950 until 1953. It started as a civil war between communist forces of Northern Korea (supported by the Soviet Union and People's Republic of China), and primarily American forces in Southern Korea.

Today the names of 54,000 American soldiers killed in the Korean War are engraved on the Korean War Veterans Memorial in Washington DC. It is estimated that two million Koreans (North and South), mostly civilians, were also killed in the war, which ended in a stalemate, creating a seemingly permanent division between what is now known as North Korea and South Korea.

The struggle between those who believe in unlimited personal wealth and those who believe in limiting private property is rooted in the abuse of the common people, the “working class,” by wealthy elites — abuse that has spanned centuries. The solution that all private property should be abolished, espoused by the communists, was obviously faulty. It is contradictory to human nature and violates basic human rights, as outlined earlier. On the other hand, the perspective is based on a valid point: wealth and power, in excess, is inclined to be readily abused by wealthy elites who may lack morals, ethics, intelligence, judgement, and/or conscience. How will this dilemma ever be resolved?

Shortly after the Korean war, U.S. anticommunism turned to a different Asian nation: Vietnam. The 1960s ushered in a new era of heightened propaganda, especially effective against the TV generation. The “Red Scare” (red meaning communist) had infected much of the TV-watching population of the United States like a mental illness.

Children in grade schools were being taught to “duck and cover” by bending over at their desks, in their seats, and putting their heads between their legs in the event of an impending nuclear attack by the USSR. School classrooms were swiftly ushered into hallways to conduct drills where the kids sat on the floor with their backs against the walls, covered their heads with their hands, and bent over so their heads were between their legs. Some considered this a drill on “how to kiss your ass goodbye,” since nuclear bombs can simply vaporize entire buildings, schools included. The drills, if not protective, played a substantial role in the frightening of children as well as their parents.

It appeared that the country of Vietnam, once controlled by the French, was aligning itself with Communist China. It had to be stopped at all costs; otherwise, it would create a “domino effect,” meaning once it adopted a communist government, all the other nations around it would do so as well, eventually spreading over the world, including the United States. TV stations, along with magazines, newspapers, and radio broadcasts, primarily owned by wealthy individuals, warned that “our way of life” in the United States would be destroyed by the Red Wave that would engulf our country should Vietnam be allowed to align with China, or “fall to the communists,” as they put it.

Television technology had improved to the extent that stations were now starting to broadcast in color. The earliest color TVs entered private homes in the 1960s. People became glued to their TVs day and night to the delight of the government and the people who controlled it. TVs were becoming formidable propaganda machines, “brainwashing machines” so to speak. The art of propaganda had entered an entirely new, very advanced, and dangerous era.

The popular U.S. president at the time, John F. Kennedy, a Democrat and a Catholic, was not convinced that a war against Vietnam was a good idea. To make a long story short, behind-the-scenes actors in the U.S. government had him murdered, assassinated in broad daylight, in front of the nation, for everyone to watch on television. Kennedy’s alleged assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald, a man with ties to the CIA and who claimed he was being set up, was also assassinated, shot by Jack Ruby, while everyone watched on television.

JFK’s brother, Robert F. Kennedy, another democrat against expanding a war in Southeast Asia, then campaigned for the U.S. presidency. He was also assassinated. This was also broadcast on TV.

Government records relating to the investigation of the JFK assassination, which absolved the CIA of any responsibility in the crime, were sealed from public scrutiny. Sixty-two years later, as this book is being

MULTIPLE REPORTS of "Votes Getting Flipped" In Key Swing State, Voting Machines Shut Down

Trump: Colorado Supreme Court Decision 'Shame for Our Country'

The Colorado Supreme Court issued an order to disqualify former President Donald Trump from its primary ballot in 2024. The ruling passed by a narrow vote with three out of seven judges dissenting. It made Colorado the first in the nation to bar President Trump from the ballot.

The Colorado high court, composed entirely of Democrat appointees, said President Trump had engaged in "insurrection" during the Jan. 6, 2021, breach of the U.S. Capitol.

[This decision was reversed by a unanimous vote of the US Supreme Court.]

written, the records have still not been fully released. What are they hiding? Who are “they”?

Credible rumors pin the blame for the assassination on the U.S. government, particularly the CIA. Robert F. Kennedy Jr., son of JFK’s brother, has publicly stated that evidence shows that his father was murdered by one of his father’s Secret Service agents, a man who was a federal government employee. It appeared that the assassin was carrying out an organized plot to eliminate an obstacle to America’s expanding militarism. Kennedy was also threatening the anti-communist psychopathy that had deeply infected the U.S. government.

Lyndon Johnson, vice president under John Kennedy, assumed the role of president after the murder of JFK. His decision was to go to war against Vietnam, a nation of mostly agrarian peasants dating back at least 2,000 years and historically aligned with China. Maybe he didn’t want to be assassinated by clandestine government actors, either.

Although this dark time in U.S. history was openly exposing the criminal side of the American government to anyone who was paying attention, a combination of censorship, propaganda, and persecution of dissenters managed to keep a lid on the opposition. Talk of the “Deep State” and a “Shadow Government” controlling the United States using the CIA and “Black Ops” was replaced in the public mind with TV broadcasts about Gilligan’s Island, Superman, and other vacuous, inane entertainment shows, along with news broadcasts emphasizing the horrors of communism and the need to stop it at all costs.

To aid in this goal, the U.S. government instituted the “military draft,” a system in which 18-year-old boys fresh out of high school, were forced into the military by being involuntarily selected at random using their birth dates. Registration for the draft was required by law for all males when they turned 18. If they refused to register, it was an automatic two-year sentence in a federal penitentiary. The boys were forced into the army, against their will, to “protect their freedom” and “preserve the American way of life.” At age 18, they were not allowed to vote or to drink alcohol, yet they were forced to kill strangers in a strange land.

She was indicted in MI, home of Dana Nessel lover of dr*g queen story hour and hater of election integrity, for accessing the voting machines. Even though she signed a nondisclosure agreement with dominion, she released these documents to law-enforcement, because she believes that she had a duty to report a crime that has been committed. Pretty sure all lawyers have to report ongoing crimes when they discover them. Instead of looking into the election fraud claim, DC marshals arrested her today. doing time in the penitentiary. Some of the “draft-dodgers” committed suicide after they were released from prison. Thousands fled the United States and sought refuge in Canada. The draft-dodgers were all eventually pardoned by Democrat President Jimmy Carter upon his election in 1977 (Carter was pushed out of office by the Republicans four years later). But the damage had been done. Many of the draft-dodging citizens never returned to the United States.

More Vietnam Vets committed suicide after the war than died in the war itself. One teenage boy who was thrown in prison for refusing to register for the draft, and was brutally raped there, committed suicide after his release from the penitentiary. His explanation: He could not justify living in a world where the government was so deranged and corrupt that it treated teenage boys with brutal repression and with absolutely no human respect whatsoever. This was not a world that he could justify living in. According to the TV, he lived in the land of “truth and justice.” According to the pledge of obedience children were required to recite daily in the government schools, there was “liberty and justice for all.” But this was propaganda, and he could not bear living in a world of lies.

To make a long story short, the Vietnamese won the war. The United States lost. No Red Wave followed. The American way of life was not destroyed. The heavily broadcast threats were all lies to the American people from the U.S. government and from the anti-communists who controlled both the government and the media.

In the meantime, American taxpayers had funded the slaughter of millions of people in Southeast Asia. American workers had paid for the destruction of Vietnamese roads, bridges, factories, dams, crops, herds, orchards, villages, homes, families, the natural environment, and so on. This was money that could have been spent on things that benefited the American taxpayer but was instead squandered on needless warfare. American capitalists raked in the profits. The expense of the war meant that a lot of money was draining from the U.S. treasury and was being funneled into the pockets of the people who were beating the war drums.

Anti-communists were orchestrating a modern-day witch hunt on a global scale. The public was driven into mass hysteria by the media, to the extent that they were willing to sacrifice their own children when their government commanded it. Brainwashed fathers spit on their sons if they resisted the military draft. Over 58,000 American soldiers were killed during the Vietnam War (referred to as the “American War” by the Vietnamese). Ten times more were wounded. Many of the soldiers killed or wounded were young men just out of high school.

It’s estimated that upward of five-million Vietnamese men, women, and children were killed, and many more wounded. Grotesque crimes against not only humanity, but also the environment, were committed during the 10 years when the United States was involved in the Vietnam War. Chemical defoliants, Agent Orange for example, were sprayed over the countryside of South Vietnam, killing the vegetation, polluting the water, and causing birth defects for generations to come.

This is where the saying “We must destroy the village to save it” was born. A communist government was considered so unacceptable by the anti-communists that mass murder was preferable. Entire villages in Vietnam were wiped out, men women and children, bombed and/or incinerated with napalm, a chemical firebomb that stuck to targets, including humans of all ages. Napalm explodes and ignites upon impact, burning at more than 5,000° Fahrenheit.

This sort of violent, horrible destruction was how innocent people around the world were being “saved” from communism. Of course, if you were a napalm manufacturer, you were making very good money, as were the manufacturers of all implements of warfare. The “military industrial complex” was profiting handsomely, while the national debt increased, and our tax dollars disappeared.

The Vietnam War, along with the other subjects mentioned in this book, have been greatly simplified herein. The point to focus on is the power of propaganda and the atrocities that have been committed against humanity when mass communication and mass media tools and techniques are used against the public for brainwashing purposes.

Trouble in Fulton County? High-Powered Defense Attorneys Move to Withdraw Amid Questions About 2020 Ballots

There's trouble in Fulton County, Georgia as two high-powered criminal defense attorneys have suddenly filed a motion to withdraw from a 2020 election case.

Rasmussen speculated that the lawyers reportedly motioning to withdraw may have something to do with "missing" mail ballots.

"These 150,000 still secret 2020 unfolded mail ballots with the perfect ovals protected by court order for 3 years may have gone missing, and the county's lawyers have just quit," Rasmussen posted on X.

Human Events, however, had earlier reported on the 147,000 mail-in ballots controversy:

Fulton County poll manager Suzi Voyles was sorting through a large stack of mail-in ballots last November when she noticed something odd: several ballots marked for Joe Biden were extremely similar.

One after another, the votes contained perfectly filled ovals for Biden. What's more, each of the bubbles boasted an identical white void inside them in the shape of a tiny crescent, indicating they'd been marked with toner ink instead of a pen or pencil.

Voyles also noticed that all of the ballots were printed on different paper than the others she'd counted and none were folded or creased, which is standard for mail-in ballots as they come from envelopes.

"All of them were strangely pristine," Voyles said. She noted that she'd never seen anything like it in her 20 years monitoring elections in Fulton County.

All but three of the 110 ballots in the stack – which had been labeled "State Farm Arena" – were marked for Biden and appeared to be "identical ballots."

After Voyles came forward, she was fired as a poll manager by the Fulton County Department of Elections.

True the Vote Defeats Fair Fight, Stacy Abrams, Marc Elias, and the Biden Department of Justice in Landmark Election Case in Georgia Federal Court

In a resounding vindication, TTV successfully defended its actions of December 2020, aiding Georgia citizens in filing elector challenges based on data showing over 364,000 voters appeared to be ineligible to vote due to change in residency.

Courtroom Victory, Clean Rolls, and You

What a week it has been! In case you missed it, on Tuesday, we won our lawsuit against Stacey Abrams, Marc Elias, Fair Fight, and the DOJ. This lawsuit had been ongoing since 2020. The main issue was whether citizens have the right to lawfully petition their government in support of election integrity without facing persecution or prosecution. In a resounding victory, we successfully defended our actions from December 2020, where we assisted Georgia citizens in filing challenges to electors based on data that revealed over 364,000 ineligible records in the voter rolls.

The federal court's ruling sent a clear message to those who would attempt to control the course of our nation through lawfare and intimidation. American citizens will not be silenced.

counter at any grocery store and watch the contents of the shopping carts and the physical characteristics of the customers pushing them. Obese and overweight people will be loading up on sugary “foods.” Unhealthy-looking customers will have their pop, their cigarettes, their processed food. Healthier, more slender customers will have more fresh, natural, and unprocessed foods. Put simply, if you live on a diet of donuts, your body will become physically unhealthy, even diseased.

Your mind works the same way. If you feed your mind “brain donuts” continually, your mind will become unhealthy, and it won’t work correctly. Brain donuts are constantly served by commercial media, especially television, in the form of propaganda. Sit in front of commercial TV daily and you will become weak-minded and ultimately “brain-washed” and you won’t know it because you will have become a “boiled frog,” easily controlled, manipulated, incapable of independent thought, critical thinking, or even independent research.

Like a sugar addict who must taste sugar in everything they eat (spaghetti, cereal, bread, pastries, pickles, relish, even meat, breakfast, lunch, and dinner), or like a cigarette addict who must have just one more puff of his or her addictive chemical nicotine, so does the weak-minded TV watcher need to have their daily fix of propaganda.

You know the old story. If you put a frog in a pot of cold water on a stove, then turn the heat on low, the frog won’t notice that the water is becoming hot enough to cook it until it is too late. On the other hand, if you throw a frog into a pot of hot water, it immediately tries desperately to escape. Commercial television is the pot on the stove and the people who watch it are the frogs.

Over the past 60 years, TV propaganda has developed into a formidable tool to influence the TV-watching public. People who don’t watch commercial television notice this right away when they see commercial broadcasts, such as in a hotel room, or at an airport. They also notice it in the behavior of the boiled frogs (habitual TV watchers), and in what they think and what they say, which is often just a parroting of what they heard or saw on their brainwashing machines.

The boiled frogs don’t see the propaganda; they see entertainment. Like the Germans who supported the Nazis, or the crowds cheering the torture and murder of witches, or the Americans who, to this day, lament that the United States hadn't killed enough people in Vietnam, boiled frogs wallow in the belief that their behavior is righteous and good, even necessary, for the benefit of humankind. And it can be very difficult to reach them through intelligent discourse or reasoning.

Let's use another analogy. Suppose you work in a plastics factory. When you started working there, you noticed a slight but foul chemical odor in the air. Before long, that odor had disappeared, and you paid no attention to it after that. However, one day a friend dropped by the factory to pick you up because you needed a ride. As soon as the friend walked in the door, she said, "Whew! What's that smell?" Your reply, of course, was "What smell? I don't smell anything."

A person who doesn't watch commercial TV drops by your house to visit and notices that you have a big-screen TV turned on with talking heads on a propaganda channel. She asks, "Why do you watch this propaganda?" You respond, "What propaganda?" You're a boiled frog. You own a brainwashing machine, and you feed your brain a constant diet of brain donuts. Your mind is unhealthy. A nation of weak-minded TV watchers is a nation where democracy cannot thrive.

We have a fake democracy in the United States. In a real democracy, citizens would vote directly on legislation and representatives would only have one vote, no matter how much money they have — one vote the same as everyone else. If we the people, the working class, were able to vote on legislation, there's a pretty good chance that we could craft national policies developed through sane, common sense, responsible, intelligent, practical, and purposeful procedures where any qualified citizen, who wants to, can participate in the process.

Want to start another useless war? Let's vote on that. Want to squander our tax dollars on handouts to the already wealthy? Let's take a vote. How should our tax dollars be spent? It would be up to us, not to the deranged criminals who continue to rob our treasury. But what if those deranged criminals are the same people who are feeding you the brain donuts? That might be humanity's Achilles' heel. Therein lies the dilemma. That's the Curse of the Boiled Frogs.

Milking the Cash Cow

The government milks us like cows. Instead of milk, they squeeze tax dollars out of us. Our tax dollars go into a central repository known as the national treasury. From this treasury our money continually disappears. If there isn't enough money to cover expenses, the government prints more. Then it spends that money, too. Our national debt was over $35 trillion in 2024 and climbing fast. That debt amounts to over $264,000 per taxpayer. With annual interest approaching one trillion dollars a year, servicing the debt is our second-largest budgetary item, second only to Social Security and topping military spending.

Sound like a scam? Who is getting all this money? Not you or your co-workers. Instead, it's coming out of your pockets — out of your paychecks. As long as your “representatives” decide how much tax money to spend and where it's going to go, you have no say about it. And if you do have something to say and manage to get anyone to listen to you, you're largely, if not completely, ignored.

Milking this cash cow is a criminal's dream come true. Bought-and-paid-for politicians who call themselves senators and congresspersons are getting a piece of the pie. Granted, there are principled and honest representatives in Congress, but they are in the minority. How many thousands of dollars must representatives raise every single day during their entire term of office to be able to run for reelection? Hopefully, you're getting the picture. The thieves don't care if they run the country into the ground financially. They don't care if they bankrupt the United States. They don't care how hard you worked for your money or what the average American needs to have their tax dollars spent on. They have their fingers in the pie, and it's a really big pie, overflowing with your tax dollars and stuffed with mountains of debt that you and your descendants will be expected to pay off.

If only we could vote directly on legislation and cut out the middleman. You know, have a democracy. Just think, on your tax return there could be a list of expense items, and you could select the ones you want to fund and the ones you don't. Listed would be the top 10 expense items

Congress Guts Budget Rules and Misses Chance to Cut Spending

This would result in a $260 billion deficit-fueled spending hike. 16 Senate Republicans and all Democrats voted to "waive all applicable budgetary discipline."

America's Runaway Debt Scenario: $1 Trillion in Interest per Year

The U.S. federal government has borrowed so much money that, over the past year, it has had to spend one-fifth of all the money it collected just on debt interest—which came to almost $880 billion. This fiscal year, interest is expected to reach over $1 trillion. The country teeters on the brink of a debt spiral that could devolve into a fiscal crisis or hyperinflation. "The problem is serious because, any way you cut it, taxpayers are paying interest on the mountain of debt that has been accumulated," said Steve Hanke, a professor of applied economics at Johns Hopkins University. "In short, they are paying something for nothing."

in the U.S. government, which you would rank on a 1—10 basis: number one having the highest priority for funding, and number 10 having the lowest. Social Security, infrastructure, military spending, foreign aid, education, environment, agriculture, veterans, homeland security, and so on, would be listed. Then, underneath each category would be subcategories. Under military spending of example, would be “defense spending,” and “offense spending.” How much do we want to allocate for defense, and how much do we want to allocate for attacking small, innocent populations?

Allow “We the People” to decide how our tax money is spent, not the crooks who are stuffing our money into their pockets. Realistic, practical, and sane management of the treasury will never happen as long as the people raking in the largesse are making the laws, voting on them, and cutting us out of the decision-making process.

But we digress. It gets worse. The Vietnam War ended in 1975, after which there was a short pause in American open warfare. In the meantime, behind the scenes, black ops from the United States engaged in clandestine efforts to assassinate foreign leaders and overthrow democratically elected governments around the world, using the “offense spending” account.

All of it was being done at taxpayers’ expense. How many billions of tax dollars do these secretive quasigovernment entities eat up? We don’t know. It’s a secret. What happens to the trillions of tax dollars the U.S. military budget has swallowed up? We don’t know that either. The military has never passed an audit, and trillions of tax dollars allotted to the military remain unaccounted for. Did the American taxpayer vote for this? No, of course not. You don’t have a vote in a fake democracy. You can only stand there and watch your tax money gobbled up, much of it unaccounted for, while unelected, behind-the-scenes, shadow government actors bloat their off-shore bank accounts.

Google Is Influencing Elections by Flipping Votes on 'Massive Scale'

Search engine results that favor one political candidate were found to influence undecided voters so much that up to 80 percent of such people in some demographic groups shifted their voting preferences after only a single search.

"Carefully crafted search suggestions that flash at you while you are typing a search term can turn a 50/50 split among undecided voters into a 90/10 split with no one knowing they have been manipulated," Robert Epstein writes.

"A single question-and-answer interaction on a digital personal assistant can shift the voting preferences of undecided voters by more than 40 percent."

Ahead of the 2022 election, "a high level of liberal bias" is being seen in Google search results in swing states like Arizona, Florida, and Wisconsin, Epstein wrote. Search results from Bing did not indicate such bias.

Saudi Arabia, two from the United Arab Emirates, one from Egypt, and one from Lebanon.

On the other hand, credible witnesses suggested that this was an “inside job.” The same shadow government that assassinated JFK and pushed us into the Korean and Vietnam wars was responsible for the nearly 3,000 people killed on 9-11, they insisted. The government vehemently denied any part in this act of terrorism and instead came up with its own well-thought-out and perfectly sane explanation: Iraqis did it. That’s right, the people of Iraq, and those from another Middle Eastern country, Afghanistan, were held responsible for an attack largely committed by Saudi Arabians.

If that sounds completely insane, that’s because it is. Uncle Sam, in his current incarnation, is insane. The response to 9-11 was absolute proof of that. Three thousand innocent civilians were murdered in New York City in a coordinated plot conducted by foreigners, or so we’re told. This was such a horrible crime that the only reasonable response was to commit a horrible crime of far greater magnitude: the murder of a million innocent civilians in foreign nations that had nothing to do with the 9-11 attack.

This does not come from the minds of sane people. But wait! Think about how much money can be made from another massive war operation against other small countries. Never mind the lies, deception, propaganda, censorship, and evil required to carry out more massive needless wars. Never mind the millions of people who would be killed and wounded. Never mind the unbelievable destruction we would inflict on nations of innocent people, many of whom probably never heard of the World Trade Center. Biden 'Won' 2020 Election with Mail-in Ballot Fraud, Study Confirms

A bombshell new study has confirmed that President Joe Biden only got the votes required to “win” the 2020 election through widespread ballot fraud. A new study examining the likely impact that fraudulent mail-in ballots had in the 2020 election concludes that the outcome would “almost certainly” have been different without the massive expansion of voting by mail.

from the U.S. treasury, it doesn't just vanish — it is funneled into the pockets of the people orchestrating the heist.

Costs of the 20-year “war on terror” are estimated at $8 trillion, leaving at least 900,000 deaths in its wake, a number that is widely viewed as very low compared to the actual number of dead and wounded. Imagine being able to rob someone of $8 trillion. That's $8,000 billion. All you need is a fake threat and a population of ignorant, compliant, obedient conformists. Bingo! The perfect crime.

These wars were pushed by the Republican Party, primarily by President George W. Bush and his associates Dick Cheney, Condoleezza Rice, Colin Powell, and Donald Rumsfeld, with significant assistance from the Democrat Party, especially Joe Biden and Hillary Clinton.

None of these people were ever punished or brought to justice for crimes against humanity. Instead, as this book is written, George W. Bush enjoys a lifetime pension and lifetime secret service protection at the expense of American taxpayers. According to online sources in 2024, his net worth was reported to be $50 million. The others are as follows: Hillary Clinton, $120 million; Donald Rumsfeld (now deceased) $200 million; Dick Cheney: $150 million; Colin Powell: $60 million; and Condoleezza Rice: $12 million. Not a bad accumulation of wealth for people who are supposed to be employed as public servants.

To put this into perspective, U.S. federal employee salaries averaged $143,643 in total compensation in 2022, while the median annual wage in the United States in 2021 was $45,760. The median net worth of all American families in 2022 was $192,700. Our national debt, per household, was $406,000 at that time. Looks like there's some gross incompetence taking place with our nation's finances.

In 2022, there were also 22.7 million people with a net worth of over a million U.S. dollars in the United States, 6.7% of the population, more than any other country in the world. China was second, with 6.2 million individuals worth more than $1 million. The obvious question here is how can China be a communist country when it has so many millionaires (and billionaires) in a system where private property is supposed to be prohibited? Could the greed gene be infecting the People's Republic of China?

U.S. FEDERAL BUDGET 2025 FISCAL YEAR

The Financial Legacy of Iraq and Afghanistan

Abstract: The Iraq and Afghanistan conflicts, taken together, will be the most expensive wars in US history – totaling somewhere between $4 to $6 trillion. This includes long-term medical care and disability compensation for service members, veterans and families, military replenishment and social and economic costs. The largest portion of that bill is yet to be paid.

Alternative Brown University, Watson Institute Estimate

The United States federal government has spent or obligated $4.8 trillion dollars on the wars in Afghanistan, Pakistan, and Iraq. This figure includes: direct Congressional war appropriations; war-related increases to the Pentagon base budget; veterans care and disability; increases in the homeland security budget; interest payments on direct war borrowing; foreign assistance spending; and estimated future obligations for veterans' care. This total omits many other expenses, such as the macroeconomic costs to the US economy; the opportunity costs of not investing war dollars in alternative sectors; future interest on war borrowing; and local government and private war costs. The current wars have been paid for almost entirely by borrowing. Unless the US immediately repays the money borrowed for war, there will also be future interest payments. We estimate that interest payments could total over $7.9 trillion by 2053.

These statistics are listed here not to suggest that being wealthy is bad or wrong. Some people inherit their wealth unintentionally. Others are showered with wealth on behalf of their artistic talents. Many work hard, engage in useful, valuable, honest enterprises, and have earned their wealth. Others, obviously, make their money from phony wars and other crooked enterprises.

The question that should be obvious is this: if 6.7% of the U.S. population is made up of millionaires, a truly representative body in Congress should also be approximately 6.7% millionaires, not the 50% or more that is currently residing in Congress. A realistic, truly representative ratio can be achieved when representatives are chosen through a process of random intelligent selection. Random selection of representatives, coupled with direct citizen voting on legislation, is a means by which democracy can be fortified without warfare and bloodshed.

What happened after 9-11? Well, Afghanistan was invaded and occupied by the United States, at taxpayer's expense, of course. The Taliban, the country's ruling party, was pushed out of power. It was, at the time, considered a brutally repressive regime made up of religious fundamentalists who excluded women from employment and education, destroyed non-Islamic artistic relics, and implemented harsh criminal punishments. No one liked the Taliban.

Twenty years later, the United States withdrew from Afghanistan; the Taliban immediately rushed back in, took control, and became the recipient of billions of dollars of high-quality military equipment that the U.S. left behind. In the meantime, the ravages of war had been visited upon the nation: the murder and wounding of tens of thousands of men, women, and children; rape; massive destruction of property and infrastructure; the creation of widows, widowers, and orphans, while homes, businesses, and livelihoods were destroyed and lost, and so on.

Afghans and Iraqis who resisted the invasion were classified "enemy combatants" by the U.S. government. People who had the audacity to try to defend themselves and their families and communities from a violent foreign invasion were given their own criminal classification by the invaders, rounded up, imprisoned, and tortured by the tens of thousands, if not killed outright.

Costs of the 20-year war on terror: $8 trillion and 900,000 deaths

A report from the Costs of War project at Brown University revealed that 20 years of post-9/11 wars have cost the U.S. an estimated $8 trillion and have killed more than 900,000 people.

"The Pentagon and the U.S. military have now absorbed the great majority of the federal discretionary budget. The death toll, standing at an estimated 897,000 to 929,000, includes U.S. military members, allied fighters, opposition fighters, civilians, journalists and humanitarian aid workers who were killed as a direct result of war, whether by bombs, bullets or fire. It does not, the researchers noted, include the many indirect deaths the war on terror has caused by way of disease, displacement and loss of access to food or clean drinking water. "The deaths we tallied are likely a vast undercount of the true toll these wars have taken on human life." [2021]

Defense Contractors Benefited From Nearly Half of $14 Trillion Spent for Afghan War: Study

A study that illuminates how defense contractors benefitted from the war in Afghanistan showed that they pocketed up to half of the $14 trillion spent by the Department of Defense since 9/11.

What We Left Behind in Afghanistan

An impressive amount of U.S. military hardware: 22,174 armored Humvees, 42 pickup trucks and SUVs, 64,363 machine guns, 162,043 radios. 16,035 night-vision goggles, 358,530 assault rifles (the real ones, not the "assault rifles" that Joe Biden warns about in the United States), 126,295 pistols, and 176 artillery pieces.

And that's just for starters. The United States also generously left behind more than 100 helicopters, including 33 Blackhawks, four C-130 transport planes, and about 60 other fixed-wing aircraft.

If you ever feel useless, remember, it took four presidents, 20 years, and trillions of dollars, to replace the Taliban with the Taliban.

Direct Democracy

War profiteers made mountains of money, enough to buy plenty of influence in Congress and elsewhere. $14 trillion was spent on the war, according to Newsweek, half of which went to military contractors like Halliburton, of which Vice-President Dick Cheney was the former CEO. Halliburton received more than $30 billion.

“Any member of Congress who doesn't vote for the funds we need to defend [the United States] will be looking for a new job after next November,” threatened the vice president of Boeing.

How is this possible? All members of Congress require lots of money to run for election. Where does that money come from? Obviously, from very wealthy people who have the money and who are likely to benefit financially by selecting the Congresspersons of their choice, then keeping them in power by financing their reelections. If representatives were chosen through a process of random selection, this would be impossible. No money would be needed for an election because it would be a different type of election, a selective election, not a financed election.

The money that one military contractor, Lockheed Martin, got from Pentagon contracts was one and a half times the entire budgets of the State Department and the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID). Billions of unmonitored loose American dollars poured into the Afghanistan War, funding unspeakable corruption.

Iraq? Same thing only worse. At the time of this writing, the war in Iraq is ongoing, 20 years after it started. Wars are easy to start but hard to stop. As long as a war continues, war profiteers rake in the money.

The propagandists in the United States had insisted that our military forces needed to invade Iraq to eliminate their leader, Saddam Hussein, falsely claiming the Iraqis were manufacturing weapons of mass destruction. In fact, Saddam Hussein refused to trade Iraqi oil for U.S. dollars, thereby threatening U.S. financial dominance in the oil industry.

The United States subsequently sent 170,000 soldiers over, causing massive death, destruction, political instability, widespread violence, and the rise of militant groups, creating an enormously destructive human, social, economic, and environmental toll. A low estimate is that 315,000 people died from direct war violence in Iraq, a hundred times more than Americans who died on 9-11, although other estimates put the death toll

War Is Always Inflationary

While the United States is ostensibly not at war with anyone, our government is spending taxpayers' money as if it were. This year, the budget for the U.S. Department of Defense is $844 billion. The United States spends nearly three times more on defense than does China and 10 times more than does Russia. [2024] of upward around 2 million due to indirect causes such as displacement, poor access to safe drinking water, lack of medical care and supplies, and preventable diseases. Estimated costs for the Iraq war are around $3 trillion; however other estimates are much higher.

More than 7 million people from Iraq and Syria were refugees in the early 2020s; nearly 8 million people were internally displaced in the two countries. The devastation to local infrastructure and the environment, including harm to local and regional ecosystems, endures long after major fighting has ended. U.S. forces continue to strike Iraq from the air and the ground. It's also estimated that 6 million people, or about 15% of all Iraqis, are now disabled. Of those, about 200,000 required an orthotic or prosthetic limb. This was done to them in response to the 9-11 attacks, although they had nothing at all to do with those attacks.

It should be noted that the Afghan and Iraq/Syria wars have been five times more expensive than World War I, more than five times more expensive than the Korean War, and nearly 2.5 times more expensive than the Vietnam War. There is lots of blood money to be made, just keep the boiled frogs securely mesmerized in front of their brainwashing machines so they don't interfere, and use dark money to maintain control of the houses of representatives, judges, police, governors, media, and lawyers.

A handful of Saudis committed a crime of terror at the World Trade Center, and Americans responded by slaughtering and terrorizing Afghans, Iraqis, and neighboring countries such as Syria. How can this be possible? Quite frankly, our congress is bought and paid for. Before we spend $14 trillion to commit another crime against humanity, let's vote on it. Oh wait, we can't. We have a fake democracy and a corrupt House of Representatives controlled by special interests lacking in conscience and infected by a lust for money.

Our shadow government, comprised of unidentified, unelected, powerful actors who control your "representatives," as well as many government agencies, don't care what party anyone belongs to. Although we're touching upon some of the more notable examples of brainwashing, censorship, and mass insanity demonstrated by human beings and especially by the American people since WWII, this simple review is far from complete. As an example, the United States invaded the island nation of Grenada in 1983. This small Caribbean nation north of Venezuela had gained independence from Great Britain just a decade earlier. The leader, Maurice Bishop, a socialist, was considered a "Communist" by American politicians, many of whom used the terms "Socialist" and "Communist" interchangeably, and many still do today.

Bishop was a popular international speaker, like Cuban leader Fidel Castro was, and his speeches were reported in international newspapers but not in the United States. In fact, the U.S. population only received information that the U.S. government allowed people to see — anything else would be "communist propaganda." One of Bishop's speeches before an international body revealed that he expected the United States to invade the island and to assassinate him. Shortly thereafter, he was killed. "Better dead than red" was a popular American saying at the time.

Ronald Reagan, the U.S. president in 1983 and a rabid anticommunist, got on TV and showed the alarmed American population a spy satellite photograph of an airport being built in Grenada, declaring that it was designed to be used for sinister purposes by communists. The United States then bombed the airport and invaded the island to protect America from the purported communist invasion. In the meantime, the airport construction was being financed by the British for large international flights of tourists. This fact had been conveniently omitted by Reagan, who believed socialists had to be stopped at any cost, even if it meant lying to the American public on television.

The morning after the invasion, the headline in a major London newspaper had only one word, printed in very large letters across the top of the front page: OUTRAGE! The British were incensed that their island protectorate had been invaded under false pretenses by the Americans and that their prized tourist airport had been destroyed. The American general population knew none of this. The brainwashing machines were working full-time and were quite effective.

To provide another example, in 1953 the CIA overthrew the democratically elected government of Iran. Prime Minister Mohammed Mossaddegh had made the mistake of trying to wrest control of Iran's vast oil reserves from the British and to return the nation's natural resources to the Iranian people. The CIA put a stop to that, pushing Mossaddegh out of office and installing Mohammad Reza Shah Pahlavi, the "Shah of Iran," who subsequently tortured and executed thousands of political prisoners while violently suppressing dissent.

In 1979, the Iranians finally overthrew the Shah, and Islamic nationalist Ayatollah Khomeini took power. Subsequently, Islamic students stormed the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and took 52 American employees as hostages. They were held for 444 days, then released on January 20, 1981, minutes after Ronald Reagan was sworn in as the republican president of the United States.

Remember Jimmy Carter, the democrat president, sworn in in 1977, who had promised to grant amnesty to all "draft dodgers" after the Vietnam War, a promise he kept? He was a popular president who was reviled and hated by anticommunist Republicans. After the American hostages were taken, an oil embargo drove the price of oil up, followed by steeply climbing interest rates, leaving Carter's presidency in turmoil, facing crisis after crisis. Republicans attacked him from all sides. If only he could secure the release of the hostages to bolster his chances for reelection.

But the Iranians held the hostages until the very minute Ronald Reagan was sworn into office, then they were all suddenly and "unexpectedly" released without comment. Seem a little fishy? Was there a backdoor deal here between the Republicans and the Iranians aimed at undermining American support for Jimmy Carter?

Scamdemic

“If human equality is to be forever averted — if the High as we have called them, are to keep their places permanently — then the prevailing mental condition must be controlled insanity.” George Orwell, 1984

Take a look at the “What’s Wrong with This Picture” illustration on the next page. What that illustration shows is that the “COVID-19 Global Pandemic” was, at best, an American disaster of gross incompetence; at worst, it was a scam perpetrated on the American people, a fraud, a hoax, a crime. Or all of the above.

The author of this book is an international consultant in two unrelated fields. Neither of these are medical fields. At no time is the author, age 72 at the time this book was published, trying to misrepresent himself as a medical authority or professional scientist. The author is a person who has lived through some of the eras discussed in this book, starting with the Korean War, then Vietnam, Central American proxy wars, Iraq, Afghanistan, anti-communism, pervasive media propaganda, and now this awful power grab being called a “pandemic.”

He is also a person who has not watched commercial television since the age of 18 (1970) and is acutely aware of the growth of media propaganda over time, propaganda that has metastasized like a spreading disease into numerous other media forms. The effects these propaganda outlets are having on the collective human mind of the TV-watching world are very disturbing and destructive.

It doesn’t take an expert to know that the “19” in COVID-19 stands for the year 2019. That’s the year the “pandemic virus” was released. This was a respiratory virus, which typically occur every year in a cyclical manner. The “cold and flu season” starts in October and lasts through May — every year. Year after year, during the coldest months, people come down with colds and flu. The official season produces an annual bell curve of fatalities, usually in the very young, the elderly, or the already unhealthy. Then the virus mutates, season to season, producing different symptoms with each mutation.

Most medical professionals are not health professionals. Let that sink in for a moment. Their expertise is in medicine and related technologies, such as surgery, trauma care, pharmaceuticals, and so on, and we are all very grateful for that. We all respect and are indebted to anyone who can help people overcome sickness and suffering. However, when the entities that control medical doctors, the pharmaceutical industry, the hospital industry, and the insurance industry, also control the government, then we have a very big problem.

Humans have natural immune systems that remain strongest when they eat natural foods and lead healthy lifestyles, which has nothing to do with pharmaceutical medicine. Your health comes primarily from your food and secondarily from your environment. Our natural immune systems have allowed Homo sapiens to become predominant on the planet for hundreds of thousands of years. Yet, natural immunity was remarkably scoffed at and derided by the medical establishment during the “COVID pandemic.” Doctors and others who spoke out in defense of natural immunity at that time were ridiculed, fired, or demoted.

The United States, with the world’s most expensive and advanced medical services, also has a very high percentage of unhealthy people. It seems that no illness can be cured without a medical solution, according to the medical experts. Take a pill or get a shot. This includes colds and respiratory viruses. The solution to these pesky, perennial illnesses? Vaccines. “Get your flu vaccine” is oft repeated year-round in U.S. media, pushed at drug stores, and urged on TV and radio commercials, even on pregnant women. What’s not promoted, however, is natural health.

The author of this book had traveled to approximately 64 countries by the time the “pandemic” was announced in early 2020. The COVID respiratory illness had largely come and gone by the end of May 2020, according to the fatality bell curve, although the media hysteria remained unabated, and the push for “COVID vaccines” remained relentless.

The author got a phone call at the end of the pandemic year, in December 2020, asking if he would go back to Mongolia, a country where he had already visited three times for work. Mongolia seems like the perfect place for a respiratory virus to spread. The people are poor. The average income when the author worked there was about $2 per day. Members of parliament were paid about $300 a month. The people, traditionally nomadic, were moving in large numbers to the few population centers that existed, such as the capital city, Ulaanbaatar (UB), where the air pollution was quite bad. UB was also considered “the coldest capital city in the world.” Many people lived in “gers,” (rhymes with “bears”), which we would call yurts, made of canvas draped over a portable wood frame. Add that all up, and you have a very unfortunate combination that surely would render the Mongolian people extremely vulnerable to the purported worldwide respiratory virus that had Americans scared to death.

After hanging up the phone, the author wondered how bad COVID had hit Mongolia. The United States had sunk deeply into a frenzy of death and fear. What about that remote nation sandwiched between China and Siberia? This was December 2020, after COVID had purportedly swept across the globe and killed so many people.

After searching online, the author came upon “Our World in Data,” a product of the Oxford Martin school, “a world-leading center of research at the University of Oxford,” in Oxford, England, “dedicated to the study of large global problems, including poverty, disease, hunger, climate change, existential risks, inequality, and war.” This seemed like a good place to start investigating. Worldometers and Statista were additional tools added to the search. To make a long story short, there were six reported COVID deaths in the entire nation of Mongolia by December of 2020! Six! Six months later, a year and a half into the “pandemic,” on June 8th, 2021, the total COVID death count in Mongolia amounted to 324.

Well, this started to raise some suspicions. The author had also traveled to Haiti four times, working there amongst the poorest of the poor (as in Mongolia). Haiti was the poorest nation in the western hemisphere, where sanitation was abysmal and medical services were often beyond the reach of the average person. A medical doctor who had accompanied the author on one of his trips to this island nation southeast of Cuba, remarked woefully at the outset of the “pandemic” that the Haitians were “going to be hit so hard.” She was almost in tears at the thought of these poor people defenseless against the hideous airborne assassin we were so relentlessly being warned about in the American media. So, the author looked Haiti up on the data sites. There were 234 deaths attributed to

28 Types of Kidney Complications Following COVID-19 VaccinationThe number of Americans who say they won't get a COVID shot hasn't budged in a year

About 66% of Americans are fully vaccinated. But as the United States approaches a million deaths from COVID-19, the virus mortality rate is being driven mainly by people who are not vaccinated, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Nationally, about one in six Americans say they "definitely will not get the vaccine," according to the Kaiser Family Foundation. For the record, COVID-19 vaccines are FDA-approved, and recommended by the CDC because they're safe and effective at preventing serious or fatal cases of the virus. "The ones that have been most likely to say they're definitely not going to get the vaccine have been Republicans and people living in rural areas, as well as white evangelical Christians." 20 percent of those who say they'll never get the vaccine identify as Democrats or politically independent, and 28% live in cities or suburbs. COVID in this nation of 11 million people by December of 2020, fewer than what were recorded in the author's rural county in Pennsylvania, which had about 300 deaths. Only about 1.6% of Haitians had received at least one dose of the COVID injections by May 2022. What?

More people had died of COVID in the author's rural, agrarian, highly "vaccinated" Pennsylvania county, than in the entire nation of Haiti, where people did not mask, did not "socially distance," and did not get the injections. American doctors who visited Haiti were "baffled." Their advice to the Haitians: mask up, start social distancing, and get injected — the same advice they were forcing on the American population.

These statistics ate away at the author's mind until finally, a year and five months later, in May 2022, he went back to the database and graphed total COVID deaths for every country in the world, which is what you see in "What's Wrong with This Picture." The results should shock any intelligent person. COVID deaths were mainly in the United States, a country with only 4% of the world's population!

Most of the world apparently did not have a "pandemic" that amounted to anything at all. Brazil was second in death rate, far behind the United States, and India was third. The population of India in 2022 was over 1.4 billion people, nearly half of whom didn't have access to proper sanitation. Some of the most polluted, unsanitary, and impoverished population centers in the world were in India (where the author had also worked). Surely, they would have experienced worse outcomes from a "global pandemic" than in the highly developed United States, a nation with the most advanced "health care" system in the world.

Impoverished, polluted India with nearly five times as many inhabitants as the United States, had about half as many COVID deaths. What was going on here? That's not what we saw on TV! The United States was leading the world in the response to COVID-19, or so we were told.

The pandemic "heroes" in the United States included Dr. Anthony Fauci, Dr. Deborah Birx, Dr. Ashish K. Jha, and Dr. Rochelle Walensky, to name a few. Biden's former "COVID Czar," Dr. Jha, stated in 2024: "These [COVID] vaccines ended the pandemic, they saved millions of lives. Thousands of Americans were dying every day at the height of the pandemic; the vaccines totally turned it around. So, there's no question in my mind that

Report Criticizes ‘Catastrophic Errors’ of COVID Lockdowns, Warns of Repeat

‘Granting public health agencies extraordinary powers was a major error,’ says Johns Hopkins economist Steve Hanke.

“A much wiser strategy than issuing lockdown orders would have been to tell the American people the truth, stick to the facts, educate citizens about the balance of risks, and let individuals make their own decisions about whether to keep their businesses open, whether to socially isolate, attend church, send their children to school, and so on,” the report states.

How the authorities systematically lied to the public about the threat of COVID-19 in 2020

The WHO was reporting figures strongly at odds with then-existing expertise within epidemiology and infectious disease. Why would the World Health Organization intentionally provide figures that it knew were false?

[case fatality rate]

To make matters worse, the media relentlessly amplified WHO’s 3.4% figure, and public health officials not only did not correct the record and put the brakes on the hysteria, but made policy consistent with it. The media then relentlessly ridiculed Trump for reporting the figures that were more consistent with prevailing scientific opinion within the field; the media denounced these figures as “misinformation.”

Trump was later vindicated: his 0.5% figure was later confirmed by scientists as almost exactly the median death rate globally: 0.47%. (It turned out to be around 0.07%, or 1-in-1500, in those under the age of 70.)

The public health establishment, through the mouthpiece of the World Health Organization, was responsible for promoting a dramatically inflated figure. Meanwhile, the media was responsible for amplifying this figure and selectively neglecting and suppressing figures that were much more consistent with the scientific evidence at the time.

COVID-19 ‘Vaccines’ Are Gene Therapy

Not a vaccine in the medical definition, the COVID-19 ‘vaccine’ is really an experimental gene therapy that does not render immunity or prevent infection or transmission of the disease.

these vaccines were extremely effective, they were largely very safe.”

Dr. Deborah Birx stated in May of 2024 that “[The COVID vaccines] were very effective for what they were supposed to be used for, which was prevent severe disease and hospitalization and death. And that’s what the vaccines were studied to do in this country, and that’s what they did.”

The remainder of the medical establishment fell in line and repeated the same false propaganda. Those who didn’t were swiftly punished.

This book is about politics and saving what remains of American democracy. But it was this graph, “What’s Wrong with This Picture?” that expedited the book project. It was our government, “captured” by Big Pharma, who imposed the “global pandemic” farce on the American taxpayer, once again robbing the U.S. treasury of trillions of dollars in the process. It was our government, not a virus, not a pandemic, that deprived Americans of their fundamental rights, stripped them of their dignity, forced experimental drugs into their bodies, lied to them, and continues to lie to them today.

It was the U.S. government that forced the Korean War upon Americans; that forced the war against Vietnam upon them; that funded the proxy wars in Central America; that invaded Iraq and Afghanistan and made American sons and daughters die there while taxpayers paid for it. The government is the problem. It is rotten to the core. If “we the people” don’t fix it, it won’t get fixed. That’s what this book is about.

Incidentally, once the “vaccines” were introduced into Mongolia, the deaths skyrocketed, as they did in many other small nations around the world when the jabs were forced on the people. No doubt these deaths were classified as “deaths from COVID-19.”

The Virus Hysteria

Fake “pandemics” now marked the advent of a new and sinister threat to humanity: medical terrorism. What if the U.S. Constitution could be scrapped and the Bill of Rights cast aside? What if humans could be corralled like cattle, convinced to willingly be injected with experimental, untested, DNA-altering drugs, including pregnant women and babies as young as six months of age? CDC Changes Definition of Vaccine So It Can’t Be ‘Interpreted to Mean That Vaccines Are 100% Effective’

Emmy Award-winning investigative reporter and Epoch Times contributor Sharyl Attkisson said the new definition was made to “meet the declining ability of some of today’s ‘vaccines,’ including the COVID-19 vaccine,” adding that “after the COVID-19 vaccines were introduced, and it was discovered they do not necessarily ‘prevent disease’ or ‘provide immunity,’ CDC altered the definition of vaccines again to say that they merely ‘produce protection.’”

Rep. Thomas Massie (R-Ky.) took to Twitter about the CDC’s definition change and compared it to George Orwell’s “1984,” writing, “They’ve been busy at the Ministry of Truth.”

The White House is Controlled by the Medical-Industrial Complex

Last February, the serving White House (WH) Chief of Staff (COS) quietly resigned, and a new one was ushered in. But a comparison of the outgoing and incoming WH Chief of Staff demonstrates striking similarities. A careful reading of the bios of Biden’s two chief of staff picks reveals a disturbing trend. Both choices appear consistent with - first and foremost - the capture of both the “health”-related administrative state and the levers of the Biden administration itself by the pharmaceutical-medical industrial complex.

Why is this important? Because the WH Chief of Staff is the most critical political appointee of the President, and functionally serves as the head of the Executive Office of the President of the United States in addition to being a cabinet position. The position is widely considered the most important and powerful job in the Executive branch of the US Government, next to the sitting POTUS.

could be denied basic human rights under the guise of an approaching, impending, unavoidable, worldwide, and horrible public health threat that would lay waste to the human race unless everyone complied with lockdowns and other draconian mandates such as forced drug injections imposed by medical authorities?

We have seen how groups of humans can be influenced into committing horrendous crimes against their own species through propaganda, coercion, and authoritarian tyranny. As bad as the witch burnings, carpet bombings, invasions, occupations, assassinations, mass murder, rapes, and other unspeakable crimes that have occurred over the course of the past few centuries were, what happened in the 2020s was shocking.

The communist doctrine of the mid-1800s was a response to ultra-wealthy rulers who owned nearly everything and controlled almost every aspect of the lives of the working class. Their control was often cruel, punctuated by a domineering, egotistical arrogance that repulsed the sensitivities of common, hard-working folks. People who simply wanted to live in peace and raise happy, healthy families on a sacred piece of Earth, had to deal with an oligarch thrusting his or her militant control over their homes, families, villages, farms, herds, orchards, and community. The communist solution was to strip humanity of private property altogether, thereby erasing wealthy people from existence, and to disable the basic building block of humanity, the family, putting it under the control of the communist state.

Fast forward a couple centuries and we see that the communist experiment, in hindsight, revealed two things. First, it is not human nature to be denied private property, and people will fight to the death to preserve their basic rights not only to own private property but also to raise and educate their children as they see fit, to exercise freedom of speech, of religion, of assembly, and so forth.

Second, however, the communist experiment also revealed the horrid reactions and depths of cruelty that the wealthy minority is capable of in response to the threat of losing their substantial properties. Mass murder of all ages and all walks of life became commonplace throughout the world during the anticommunist persecutions. When American capitalists finished their slaughter in Korea and then in Vietnam, they moved on to Central America where they armed and financed “death squads” to wipe out anyone who supported “socialism” or “communism.” Men, women, children, babies, nuns, priests, entire villages, community organizers, and so on, were murdered. Much of this carnage was charged to the American people, paid for by their tax dollars taken straight out of the U.S. treasury. None of this is hyperbole. It is all a historical fact.

It’s worth reminding the reader that, just because someone has more material wealth than just about everybody else, it doesn’t mean they are more intelligent, more wise, more mature, healthy, stable, benevolent, or in possession of any virtuous attributes at all. Extreme wealth in the hands of unstable, deranged individuals presents a grave threat to all humanity. The communists understood this. And despite their misguided efforts to find a solution to this problem, the problem persists even today. But it has shifted in a way that few could have foreseen.

One of the most valuable attributes a human being can possess is humility. Humility is the understanding that we are capable of errors. Grave errors. We can alleviate the chances of committing grave errors by soliciting the opinions of others. Two heads are better than one, as the saying goes. This is why democracy presents such an appeal to thinking people. Let’s discuss the issues that we are faced with and try to arrive at some sort of consensus without authoritarian rule, without dictators forcing their way upon everyone else, without strong-arm fascism being shoved down our throats. One way we can do this is by the citizenry creating, openly debating, then voting directly on legislation. This would cut out the middlemen, the paid political prostitutes who take our votes away from us.

Instead, we find ourselves trying to be controlled by “the smartest people in the room.” At least that’s how they would describe themselves. Their intelligence, arrogance, and lack of wisdom dwarf their humility. In the twenty-first century, the “smartest people in the room” are also the wealthiest people in the world, plus their entourage. They have convinced themselves that they can save the world by controlling humanity. The most holy on high will take over, push the commoners and populists out of the way, and create a world in their desired image. But how?

owners, politicians, doctors, and other influencers concluded that the human being can be “hacked” using drug injections designed to alter the DNA of the individual. By injecting billions of people with experimental drugs, commoners can theoretically be controlled, en masse, from the inside, through artificial, laboratory-created biochemical influences.

But how can a group of wealthy elitists achieve the goal of injecting 8 billion people with experimental drugs, thereby creating a complacent, subservient, underclass of humans who will allow themselves to become the subjects of sinister experiments willingly and even eagerly?

The answer presented itself in 2020: orchestrate a fake “Pandemic,” or a “Scamdemic,” or a “Plandemic” as many victims of this ruse called it. Scare the weak-minded TV watchers into having their government, under the control of “big pharma,” inject experimental drugs into their bodies and their children’s bodies, into the bodies of pregnant women, into the bloodstreams of perfectly healthy individuals, repeatedly, while constantly reassuring them that it was “safe and effective.”

When the effective drug turned out to be not effective at all, and people who had been injected with it became more susceptible to viral infection and were getting sick, well that’s because they needed a second injection. Duh. That first injection didn’t work because you weren’t “fully vaccinated.” You needed a second shot, then a third. Then a fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, and so on!

Anyone who dared to question or disagree with this ludicrous scheme was loudly denounced on mainstream propaganda platforms as a selfish, boorish, ignorant, antiscience, buffoonish “antivaxxer” wearing a tinfoil hat, unworthy of human rights or respect. Constitutional rights, charter rights, and basic rights such as freedom of speech, of assembly, of religion, and so forth, were denied to independent thinkers on the grounds that they were threats to society. How dare they be so selfish as to doubt the smartest people in the room? How dare they ask questions? They must be punished, and punished they were.

stated live, on TV: “That when vaccinated and unvaccinated people are mixing, unless there is proof of vaccination, everybody should still be wearing masks. So, I actually support what the CDC is now doing, which is going back to this indoor mask requirement, because frankly we know that we can’t trust the unvaccinated. That they have been walking around without masks, and in fact that’s what led to the surge that we’re seeing.”

She also equated normal people, those who choose not to be injected with experimental drugs, with drunk drivers. “You can remain unvaccinated if you so choose, but if you want to be in public and could be potentially infecting others with a dangerous and sometimes fatal disease that’s highly transmissible, then there’s an obligation to society . . . At the end of the day, I don’t really understand why people have the choice to be infecting our vulnerable children or immunocompromised people, or even others who have taken the responsible choice to be vaccinated.”

Of course, no mention is made of natural immunity, of the millions of people who already had the illness and had no need for any injections, or of the millions of people who can take care of their own health without the need for experimental medical interventions. She seemed to be totally unaware of the fact that masks were scientifically proven to have little or no effect on the prevention of respiratory illnesses. She used the often-repeated propaganda that normal, uninjected people are “infecting” and potentially killing “our vulnerable children” and “immunocompromised people,” like grandma. This “fear porn” was relentlessly repeated on mainstream media and was especially effective on young mothers, many of whom insisted that their healthy husbands get the shot “to protect the children.” After all, that’s what they were told on TV.

Nor does the good doctor explain why people already “vaccinated” are threatened by normal, uninjected people. If the “vaccines” are effective, then there is no risk from others. If the vaccines are not effective, then people pushing them are akin to carnival barkers, making ludicrous claims that are unsubstantiated and dangerous.

one has a medical degree, an MD, or a Doctor of Medicine status, whatever they say is true and can only be doubted by fools. Yet, despite the incredible successes and advances of drugs and medicine over the centuries, colossal errors have punctuated the history of the medical and pharmaceutical industries.

In the case of the 2020 scamdemic, all that was needed was a declaration of a “pandemic” by international “health” organizations, particularly the World Health Organization, to push everyone out of the way and insert medical doctors into the driver’s seat of society. Millions of people were going to die, and everybody had to listen very carefully to the “health” professionals and do what they were told without hesitation, question, or doubt. The result: More people died “from COVID” in the United States than in any other country in the world, by far, following the dictates of the medical “experts.” How was that possible?

In Pennsylvania, the top health professional, “Rachel Levine MD,” Pennsylvania physician general and secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Health, was born a male named Richard. In his adulthood, after being married and fathering two children, he concluded that he was actually a woman. Unbelievably, Levine was then named USA Today’s Woman of the Year in 2022. When a social media channel named The Babylon Bee posted a parody meme of Levine declaring him to be “Man of the Year,” they were suddenly and permanently banned by the dominant social media platform Twitter for “hate speech.” This is not a joke; this is an example of life in the early 2020s.

Levine was the person in charge of the state of Pennsylvania’s “health” system, a state with a population of 13 million people. He was installed, promoted, and congratulated by then Governor Tom Wolfe, a democrat, who was apparently incapable of locating anyone else out of Pennsylvania’s 13 million people better suited to oversee the health of Pennsylvania’s residents. Never mind Levine’s gender confusion; every citizen in Pennsylvania became subject to his/her authority.

As an example of Levine’s health acumen, she/he ordered the following state-wide mask mandate in November of 2020, well after the 2019-2020 COVID “pandemic” had passed: “Masks are required to be worn indoors and outdoors when away from home. When outdoors, a mask must be worn if you are not able to stay at least 6 feet away from someone not in your household the entire time you are outdoors. When indoors, masks will now be required even if you are physically distant from members not in your household. This means you will need to wear a mask inside if with people other than members of your household. The order applies to every indoor facility, including homes, retail establishments, schools, gyms, doctors' offices, public transportation and anywhere food is prepared, packaged or served."

Levine mandated that you have to wear a mask inside your own house when someone who is not part of your household is also inside your house. You were also ordered to otherwise wear a mask all the time no matter where you were. Levine also imposed a long list of other restrictive orders, explaining that it was "our responsibility for the common good of everyone in Pennsylvania."

The fact that mask wearing has been scientifically proven to have no positive impact on public health measures, but does have negative effects on personal health, not to mention the obvious assault on personal liberty and autonomy, seemed to have escaped everyone, as the TV-watching public dutifully wore masks or were forced to by business owners. Businesses had to impose the mask mandates on their customers or face having their business licenses revoked and their businesses shut down by politicians. The clear message was that Levine and the politicians controlling the government were somehow smarter than everyone else and should be obeyed no matter how ludicrous their dictates were.

When the democrats took over the U.S. presidency in 2020, under very loud accusations of credible, if not blatant, election fraud, Levine was immediately promoted to a national position, United States Assistant Secretary for Health, then was sworn in as a four-star admiral — the highest-ranking official of the U.S. Public Health Service Commissioned Corps. But let's not get too far into the weeds on this issue — we will circle back to mask mandates and gender confusion later.

servation, the Environment, or any of the myriad categories that play very important roles in all of our lives.

Yet, based on the declaration of a “pandemic” by a group of unelected medical professionals deeply embedded with the pharmaceutical industry, medical doctors were suddenly handed total control over all aspects of people’s lives around the world. They were afforded the authority to regulate almost every element of our day-to-day existence, to strip us of basic human rights, to deprive us of our jobs, our freedom of speech, association, religion, education, and to be backed up with ruthless violence carried out by dutiful police and military when ordered by their government overlords.

Trust the Experts

At one point during the scamdemic, 40 million people were suddenly put out of work in the United States alone; thousands of businesses were forced to close, many to go bankrupt and never reopen; people were forced to cover their faces when in public to “protect the vulnerable”; even healthy people had to cover their faces, even people who already had the respiratory illness, had recovered, and had natural immunity.

Many people had no symptoms at all, despite “testing positive,” yet they were still forced to get a series of experimental drug injections or be fired from their jobs, including doctors, professors, or anyone who insisted on controlling their own health without medical intervention.

The so-called experts behind the hideous repression and tyranny were the same people who brought upon our nation the highest total death count from COVID in the entire world, while at the same time declaring, even in congressional hearings, that men can be women, get pregnant, and have abortions, or that women can have penises. years of adaptation by the human immune system. The Medical Industrial Complex had spoken. There was a horrible pandemic sweeping across the globe, and the medical professionals were now in charge of everyone, of every aspect of their lives. The only way out of this horrible situation, the ONLY way, was through a series of experimental drug injections, or so they were told, over, and over again. The boiled frogs got the message, and the boiled frogs complied.

It has long been a goal of the medical-industrial establishment to convince humans that the primary way to achieve optimum health is through medical drugs. Injectable pharmaceuticals provide the answer to disease, or so they say. Bill Gates, founder of Microsoft, with a net worth in 2024 estimated to be $141 billion, making him one of the richest people in the world at the time, was also perhaps the world's greatest proponent of "vaccines" worldwide. It seems that his goal was to convince people around the globe that injected pharmaceuticals are the single most important solution to global health problems. Never mind that he was a major financial investor in the vaccine industry with a reported 20:1 rate of return on his investments, which would appear to be a massive conflict of interest under any other circumstance.

Gates was a businessman, not a doctor, scientist, or health professional. He owned a collection of private jets worth nearly $200 million. His mansion in Washington state was valued at upward of $170 million. It's hard to imagine how someone of this socioeconomic status could conceive of realistic lifestyle solutions for the 3 billion people in the world who don't even have toilets. Injecting them with drugs, starting at birth, to "protect their health" may be a well-meaning suggestion, especially when it's a financial investment that yields very attractive returns. But is it a realistic solution?

Here's an authentic well-meaning suggestion: Mr. Gates should live for one full year without electricity, running water, or a flush toilet, on an expense account of less than $10 per day, as billions of people do around the world. It's that simple. The insight he would gain regarding the plight of the less fortunate would be eye-opening, even miraculous. Injecting the impoverished masses with drugs may no longer look nearly as important as improving their sanitation, enhancing their soil fertility, providing better nutrition, protecting their housing security and access to arable land, providing and supporting honorable and safe livelihoods, cleaning up their environments, and so on.

All of these things can arguably be achieved with smaller financial investments than injectable drugs. The results would produce substantial, long-term dividends for all the people, not just for the wealthy investors. It may come as a surprise that, given clean drinking water, safe and comfortable housing, food security, ecological sanitation, right livelihoods, an unpolluted environment, and the other necessities required for a healthy human condition, public health issues will resolve themselves without the need for mass drug injections.

The vaccine industry seems to be making an all-out effort to convince the public that injectable pharmaceuticals deserve an almost religious reverence. So-called vaccines cannot be questioned in any manner and certainly cannot be criticized. All vaccines are “safe and effective,” as we are repeatedly told. This mantra is reiterated on mainstream propaganda platforms over and over, akin to the propaganda scenarios described in George Orwell’s 1984. There are plenty of books, research papers, and medical professionals that would dispute this mantra.

It must be added that the two declared attributes of the vaccine mantra, namely, “safe” and “effective,” are conveniently (and certainly intentionally) omitting two other equally important and necessary attributes. Vaccines and any injected drug or medicine should also be “needed,” and must also be “wanted.” This recognizes that the person receiving the drugs has the right to decide what is injected into his or her body and has the right to choose an alternative healthcare option based on their own personal research, experience, preference, and autonomy.

For example, there are no vaccines for cholera, a disease that killed many thousands of people over many generations. We don’t need a vaccine for cholera because we now know what causes this disease, namely, the drinking of water polluted with sewage. When the cause of the disease was understood and the polluted water removed, the cholera epidemics declined or ceased to exist altogether. Most people would admit that they don’t need a cholera vaccine. However, there are those in the pharmaceutical industry who could make money from such a vaccine, and there are those individuals who would want to take such a vaccine and would pay for one anyway, whether they needed it or not. That is their prerogative.

We decide what we want injected into our bodies in the name of preventative or prophylactic health. Our bodies are our temples, and nobody can force us to have drug injections we don't want. Or need. Forced drug injections, especially with experimental drugs, represents a sinister tyranny of the worst kind, a form of medical terrorism.

In the 2020s, doctors who questioned the safety of COVID drug injections were fired from their positions, or their medical licenses were revoked, or their hospital privileges were suspended. Citizens who suffered from COVID vaccine injuries and spoke out were censored, attacked, ridiculed, and kicked off social media platforms without warning. Medical doctors must conform to the edicts set forth by their masters, or have their careers destroyed. The state medical boards make sure this happens. This is an inconvenient truth.

"Health care" is free to everyone; "medical care" can be prohibitively expensive or impossible for many. Health care means a good night's sleep, fresh air, a nutritious diet, freedom from stress, a comfortable living habitat, and a pollution-free environment, among other things. None of these needs require the medical industrial complex. Emphasis on health rather than drugs could vastly improve the human condition. Drugs are important, even essential and lifesaving at times, and they do make a lot of money for the pharmaceutical industry, but they should not be considered a basis or foundation for optimum human health. They should be used only when needed.

If people can be convinced that their physical and mental health depends on the pharmaceutical industry more than anything else, then they can be influenced to take drugs and receive drug injections on a routine basis, whether they need them or not.

The influence of the medical establishment is aided by government medical agencies (CDC, NIH, FDA, etc.) that have become "captured" by the pharmaceutical industry and other arms of the medical industrial complex, with industry members sitting on government boards and committees, thus affording for themselves decision-making authority.

Add to this the fact that mainstream media is also controlled by the pharmaceutical industry due to the torrent of drug advertising dollars that the media has come to rely upon and enjoy, plus the millions of campaign dollars donated to senators and congresspersons by industries associated with the medical industrial complex, and you have a perfect storm. Throw in a heavy dose of censorship, sweeten it with a constant barrage of propaganda, add a small army of corrupt politicians and media talking heads and — voilà! A plandemic of epic proportions can be thrust upon the people, including a massive campaign to force experimental drug injections into as many human bodies as possible.

Bill Gates and Klaus Schwab (founder of the World Economic Forum) famously stated that everyone on Earth must be injected with pharmaceutical drugs, aka “vaccines,” especially the COVID experimental drug, and until that is achieved, “nobody will be safe.” The implication being that anyone who refuses to be injected is a threat to humanity.

People who exercise their right to decide whether they want a drug injected into their body or not, and refuse such an option, become a problem for the authoritarians who are pushing the jabs. When a laboratory-manufactured pathogen is intentionally or accidentally released, and people become ill and some die, the reason, according to the government and the media, is because some people refuse to get a mandated drug injection. People who got the COVID drug injections literally stated that their “vaccines” weren’t working because some “anti-vaxxers” didn’t get injections. Not only did they believe this absolute nonsense, but this deception was relentlessly pushed by mainstream propaganda on TV.

Normal (un-injected) people were blamed for the manufactured COVID health threat and for the associated health problems, including deaths, of other people, while the weak-minded TV watchers nodded their heads in agreement. Normal, uninjected people were labeled “dirty,” and became targeted by deranged medical extremists and by ignorant members of the public. When a man forcibly injects semen into another person against his or her will, he is committing rape. When drugs are forcibly injected into people against their will, they are being medically raped. When a government agency, acting under the control of the pharmaceutical industry, mandates widespread medical rape, then we have a government that is totally out of control.

America vs America

The American deep state, the shadow government, the CIA, the FBI, the unelected players who control the nation behind the scenes, the entities who orchestrated the wars, invasions, assassinations, and death squads, who fomented the anti-communist psychopathy, which morphed into anti-terrorist psychopathy, which metastasized into a deep and destructive collective human cancer fueled by a lust for power and wealth, turned its destructive sights in the twenty-first century 180 degrees. Not content to attack populations and governments outside the borders of the United States, the target became America itself, its government, and its citizens.

What stands in the way of a malevolent takeover of the planet by an unelected world government is, among other things, the pesky Bill of Rights. The Bill of Rights affords people basic human rights, including the right to bear arms, and it must be destroyed if the globalists are to have their way. The 2020 scamdemic provided a test opportunity to attack the Bill of Rights in the United States and attack it they did.

It didn't happen overnight. An earlier attempt occurred when the 2009 H1N1 flu virus prompted the WHO to declare a pandemic. Experts warned that this flu could "wipe out 120 million people." Once a formal pandemic declaration occurs, nations that enter into agreements to buy millions of doses of flu vaccines become contractually obligated to pay for them and to receive delivery of them. Clearly there is a perverse incentive to declare a seasonal flu to be a pandemic. The problem was that not enough people died during that flu season to scare people into getting a "flu vaccine" or even to justify calling it a pandemic.

The definition of "pandemic" hinged upon death rates being abnormally high. When this didn't happen in 2009, the definition of pandemic was quietly modified so that the conditions required to declare a pandemic could be more easily obtained in the future. Once a pandemic has been declared, experimental drugs can be provided with "Emergency Use Authorization" (EUA). This simply means that the drugs need not undergo the rigorous testing protocols required of virtually all pharmaceutical drugs, nor are the recipients of the drugs provided with "informed consent,” since the emergency drugs need not reveal their ingredients or side effects to the public.

Furthermore, the emergency drugs can be forced upon the public in the name of public health and disaster prevention with no liability for the manufacturers or for the people selling, advertising, distributing, or administering the drugs. If any already existing drugs have been shown to be effective in treating whatever illness gave rise to the emergency situation, no emergency drug can be authorized. However, once an emergency drug has been authorized, it, by definition, has no other competing medicine and therefore can reap huge profits for the drug manufacturer.

If this looks like potential corruption and abuse, then you’re paying attention. Corrupt politicians and captured government agencies staffed by industry insiders issue emergency authorization for experimental drugs, then they buy billions of dollars’ worth of them from the pharmaceutical industry at high prices, paid for by taxpayers with borrowed money since the United States is already deeply in debt. Then, with the help of compromised political leaders such as the president of the United States, in this case democrat Joe Biden, as well as governors of individual states, both democrat and republican, under the guise of a public health emergency, they force “we the people” to be injected with the drugs.

Don’t want a drug injection? Then you’re fired from your job! Think you can take care of your own health without being injected with an experimental medical drug that has no long-term studies? Then you’re forced to cover your face in public; you’re banned from common public places such as restaurants, movie theaters, churches, sports, and other entertainment venues, you’re blocked from continuing your college education, and you’re not allowed to enter hospitals, even to see your own children, or a dying loved one!

Mainstream propaganda networks were employed to bombard the weak-minded TV watchers with false, confusing, disturbing, and misleading information, relentlessly, day in and day out, with a backdrop intoning mounting death tolls displayed on the TV screens. The boiled frogs responded by frantically lining up to get injected as if they were lemmings lining up to jump off a cliff. The propaganda was relentless and effective.

What Are They Hiding?—Dr. Robert Malone on the Pfizer Documents and Evidence of Cardiotoxicity, Birth Defects, and the Rise in All-Cause Mortality

This is fundamental. We believe in the Constitution. This isn't radical. If we are right-wing Nazis because we believe in the Bill of Rights and the Constitution, then something is seriously wrong with how the press is positioning all this information. We declare that Pfizer, Moderna, BioNTech, Janssen, AstraZeneca, and their enablers withheld safety and effectiveness information from patients and physicians, and they should be indicted for this. Again, this is an incontrovertible fact. We have the GAO report from the government side. We have the forced disclosure of the Pfizer information package, which is still being released. It reveals that a lot of the propaganda and information that's been pushed on us about vaccine efficacy and safety is fraudulent.

Dr. Malone: The shocking thing, and I don't know how else to say it, one had assumed and what we were being told and basically marketed by our governments was that these vaccines would protect us from infection, replication, and virus spread, at a minimum. As those pillars fell, the data became clear that the vaccines were not effective in any way. A traditional vaccine would be considered to be effective if it is preventing infection and spread. The fallback position of the government has always been that they protect you from severe disease and death. Now those pillars are falling.

The data from the U.S., from Europe, from Israel, and from the UK and Scotland until they stop sharing the data, demonstrates that the more genetic vaccines, particularly the RNA vaccines, that an individual patient receives the higher your risk for infection, disease, and death, compared to those that remain "unvaccinated."

Gyms and beaches were closed during the declared COVID “health” emergency, but strip clubs, liquor stores, fast food restaurants, junk food corner stores, and marijuana shops were allowed to be open. You weren't allowed to bring your own grocery bags to grocery stores in some locations, but you were allowed to wear your own clothes into the same stores. In some cases, you had to enter a restaurant wearing a mask while standing or walking, but when you sat down you could take your mask off, then you had to put it back on to stand up or to go use the toilet. You were only allowed to walk in one direction staying six feet apart down grocery store aisles “to save lives.” Arrows were painted on the floors to make sure everybody obeyed these orders.

Schools were closed, some for years. People needing organ transplant operations were heartlessly denied them if they weren't “vaccinated.” Playgrounds were closed, swing sets and park benches roped off; open beaches were deemed “unsafe” and closed, but crowded Walmarts and other billionaire-owned box stores were wide open. It seemed like the asylum was being run by lunatics, with police only too eager to enforce the absurd restrictions, violently, if necessary.

Dr. Anthony Fauci, one of the main architects of the COVID response in the United States, initially declared that no facemasks were necessary, then he changed his opinion to require one mask, then two masks, one on top of the other. Subsequently, he publicly wore one mask over another as if to confirm the necessity of this peculiar behavior. If you complied with the drug injections, you were told you could take the masks off, but that changed, too. You were still required to wear masks even after you had the injections. People wore masks while swimming in swimming pools. They wore masks, and little else, while sunbathing at the beach. They wore masks while riding motorcycles “to be safe,” although they didn't wear helmets. They wore masks while riding alone in their cars.

The most comprehensive analysis of scientific studies conducted on the efficacy of masks for reducing the spread of respiratory illnesses, including COVID-19, was published in the Cochrane Database of Systematic Reviews in 2023. Tom Jefferson, the Oxford epidemiologist who was its lead author, summarized the results of the study in an interview with the

New York Times: “There is just no evidence that masks make any difference. Full stop.” According to the Cochrane research, “We included 12 trials comparing medical/surgical masks versus no masks to prevent the spread of viral respiratory illness. Wearing masks in the community probably makes little or no difference to the outcome of laboratory-confirmed influenza/SARS-CoV-2 compared to not wearing masks.”

In the meantime, the U.S. Centers for Disease Control’s “Face Mask Recommendations” from their website stated, “Masking is a critical public health tool for preventing spread of COVID-19, and it is important to remember that any mask is better than no mask.” This is exactly the opposite of what the science tells us. It seems that the CDC, at that time directed by Rochelle Walensky, was just taking a wild guess, not based on science at all, or on any data whatsoever. In fact, most of the CDC’s advice and mandates related to the COVID-19 debacle appeared to have been wild guesses.

If you have any doubt about this, or want to jump to the defense of the CDC, take another look at the graph at the beginning of this chapter titled “What’s Wrong with This Picture?” More people died from COVID-19 in the United States than anywhere else in the world by far. Four percent of the world’s population had 20% of the world’s COVID deaths! This is indefensible, even criminal, and it represents the epitome of public health incompetence. It’s also information that is almost entirely unknown among the American public. It is information that is completely censored from the weak-minded TV watchers by all the mainstream propaganda platforms, especially the ones that pushed the masks and shots so relentlessly. Instead, the public has been repeatedly told by both the government and the media that millions of lives were saved by the courageous and brilliantly intrusive “public health” measures that, on the contrary, severely damaged America.

Thanks to the CDC and “health experts” such as Fauci and Walensky, forced masking was the rule rather than the exception throughout the United States and much of the TV-watching world in the early 2020s. People not wearing masks in public were rudely evicted from public spaces, even open-air parks and beaches. They were attacked by police, violently assaulted, arrested, fined, and treated like despicable criminals.

Although the ineffective masks weren't needed for public health purposes, they were needed for "virtue signaling." People had been convinced that they needed to wear masks "to protect others." Anyone not wearing a mask was therefore "an asshole." Furthermore, people not wearing masks were considered to be "right-wing extremists" and "Trump lovers," as the propaganda platforms repeated ad nauseum. This was particularly effective on the people burdened with the Trump Derangement Syndrome, a mental illness that primarily infected democrats.

Masks reminded everyone to be frightened of the air they were breathing. The public was assured they would be saved from the deadly but invisible threat floating in the air once they received the life-saving experimental drug injections. In the meantime, they were ordered to keep their faces covered. Ironically, even after they got the injections, they still had to cover their faces to remind everyone else to remain fearful until they got their injections.

Propaganda, Censorship and Brainwashing

It was clear to many at the onset of the "pandemic" that the COVID "vaccine" was not being created to curb a global health threat, but that the "pandemic" was being created to push experimental drugs on as many people as possible.

Theories were abundant. For example, it seemed plausible that administering a series of drug injections could create a subservient underclass of humans that could be easily controlled by the billionaire cabal who had concocted the conspiracy. Once a significant proportion of a population was coerced into agreeing to have unknown, experimental drugs injected into their bodies, their children's bodies, their babies' bodies, and the bodies of pregnant women, while at the same time their constitutional rights were suspended, then game over. People who agreed to such a scheme became the most pliable of obedient conformists. They lacked independent research skills or the ability to think for themselves. Their lack of courage justified them shrinking from confrontation, refusing to stand up for their rights, and avoiding expressing an opinion that was contrary to the forced narrative.

Perhaps the drug injections would cull out a portion of the population by including a time-released death mechanism (spike proteins?), which would manifest as an improbable rise of sudden deaths, including in young, healthy people such as athletes. The “fact checkers,” on the payroll of Big Pharma or the government, would very loudly proclaim that the deaths had nothing to do with the COVID injections that the healthy young people had received.

A disturbing, statistically significant spike in “all-cause mortality” would appear among populations around the world where COVID injections had been widely distributed. Although baffled medical experts had no idea what was causing the high rate of unexpected deaths, they could agree on one thing — it had nothing to do with the COVID drug rollout.

“Turbo cancers” exploded. People who had overcome cancer and were in remission suddenly had a new bout after receiving a jab, then died a short time later. Young people were developing colon cancer, heart attacks, and myocarditis. The medical industrial complex was raking in the profits by medically treating the increasing number of sick people.

Injecting pregnant women with an experimental drug with unknown ingredients seems not only ludicrous, but insane. However, if the intent was to prevent future pregnancies from happening by inducing miscarriages and stillbirths, plus rendering young women sterile, then the method behind the madness becomes apparent.

The reports of death and injury from the COVID jabs were censored from public view. And of course, the dead can’t talk. Their survivors, their loved ones, the parents, husbands, wives, sons, and daughters of people who were injured or killed by the COVID jabs certainly could still talk, and many did, but they were also censored by mainstream propaganda outlets, the ones the boiled frogs were glued to daily. The TV-watchers remained unaware of this disturbing information.

Take, for example, the “Trusted News Initiative” (TNI), a group of media giants that “work together to ensure that legitimate concerns about future vaccinations are heard while harmful disinformation myths are stopped in their tracks.” They took on this initiative ostensibly to “save lives during the pandemic,” by “leading the way in countering dangerous disinformation which puts public health at risk.”

Later, ABC and others joined the group.

In the early 2020s, Mark Zuckerberg owned Meta (Facebook, Instagram, WhatsApp, etc.) holding 13.68% equity and 61.2% of the voting rights. He also donated hundreds of millions of dollars for “get out the vote” campaigns in the 2020 presidential election, including financing ballot drop box schemes in primarily democrat strongholds.

Robert F. Kennedy Jr., one of the most knowledgeable and respected Americans regarding pharmaceutical drugs in general, and particularly vaccines, was censored by Instagram, Facebook, and YouTube, based on claims of “vaccine misinformation.” Rather than providing “misinformation,” Kennedy was providing inconvenient truths. He explained:

“When they use the term “vaccine misinformation,” they are using it as a euphemism for any statement that departs from official government policy and pharmaceutical industry profit taking. It has nothing to do with whether it’s true or false, it only has to do with what the political implications are.

And who is doing this censorship? It’s government officials in league with Bill Gates [vaccine entrepreneur worth $141 billion in 2024], with Larry Ellison [worth $128 billion in 2024], with Mark Zuckerberg [worth $177 billion in 2024], with Sergey Brin from Google [worth $110 billion in 2024], and with all of these internet titans.

They have engineered not only the destruction of our democracy and our civil rights, but they have engineered the biggest shift of wealth in human history. $3.8 trillion from working people to these handful of billionaires, many of them from Silicon Valley.

COVID Vaccination is 'Safe' but Remains Clinically Untested for Pregnant Women: Health Canada

"I was amazed that we were even going to contemplate giving this to a pregnant woman, because we never give a pregnant woman, for very obvious reasons, anything new out of the gate. Prior to 2020, if I had ever given a pregnant woman a new product or medication, that's malpractice. The miscarriage rate was 80 percent in the Pfizer trials. They knew that. Sadly, [after the Covid injection rollout] I noticed that my miscarriage rate from year to year had gone up by 100 percent." Dr. Kimberly Biss, board-certified OBGYN

Vaccines Recommended during Pregnancy CDC

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommends the following vaccines during pregnancy:

COVID-19

Everyone age 6 months and older, including pregnant women, should stay up to date on COVID-19 vaccines

Flu (Influenza)

Everyone age 6 months and older, including pregnant and breastfeeding women, should get vaccinated against flu every year.

Respiratory Syncytial Virus (RSV)

There are 2 ways to protect babies from getting very sick with RSV. Pregnant women can get vaccinated against RSV, or babies can receive a preventive monoclonal antibody after birth.

Whooping Cough (Pertussis)

Pregnant women should get vaccinated against whooping cough during each pregnancy.

CDC issues urgent health advisory, strongly recommends #COVID19 vaccination for those pregnant, recently pregnant or trying to become pregnant or who might become pregnant in the future to prevent serious illness, deaths, & adverse pregnancy outcomes.

bringing them trillions of dollars? The people who are benefitting are the people who are squeezing away our constitutional rights and engineering the destruction of democracy worldwide.”

Robert F. Kennedy Jr. being interviewed on Dr. Phil, 2024:

“About 50% of the FDA’s budget comes from regulated industries, mainly the pharmaceutical industry. You have ‘agency capture’ on steroids. The principal objective of FDA today is to serve the mercantile interests of pharmaceutical companies. For example, the Moderna vaccine: NIH [National Institutes of Health] owns half of that vaccine, 50%. So, the billions of dollars that that vaccine makes, half of that goes to NIH, the agency. But there’s also individuals, at least four and maybe six individuals who work for NIH who are high-level deputies under Anthony Fauci who get to collect $150,000 a year forever, not just for their lives but for their children’s. As long as that mRNA technology is on the market, they’re gonna be making money from it. That is a conflict. If you talk about this kind of thing, you get censored by YouTube. You will not be allowed on the mainstream media to talk about these issues. It used to be that you could, but nowadays you cannot.”

Of course, Kennedy’s posts, speeches, and publications were labeled “misinformation” by the “Trusted News” watchdogs and “fact checkers,” and censored. Furthermore, anyone who exposed the truth behind the scamdemic was labeled a “far right extremist.” How do you know this? Just do a search on Google, once a trusted search engine, now a censorship and propaganda platform. That’s what the boiled frogs do, unknowingly being directed where Google wants them to go, while finding trusted sources such as Kennedy, and many others, labeled conspiracy theorists, spreaders of disinformation, and far right extremists.

Let’s look at a small number of examples of propaganda and brain-washing in the early 2020s, out of thousands. Start with the assurances that if you get the COVID injection, you won’t get sick:

We have never seen so many stage 4 presentations of colon cancer in young people. Again, the only thing they have in common is that they've taken COVID-19 vaccines. They grow extremely rapidly. Or they were perfectly capable of tending to their own health without medical interference.

Concerns regarding Transfusions of Blood Products Derived from Genetic Vaccine Recipients and Proposals for Specific Measures

Abstract: The coronavirus pandemic was declared by the World Health Organization (WHO) in 2020, and a global genetic vaccination program has been rapidly implemented as a fundamental solution. However, many countries around the world have reported that so-called genetic vaccines, such as those using modified mRNA encoding the spike protein and lipid nanoparticles as the drug delivery system, have resulted in post-vaccination thrombosis and subsequent cardiovascular damage, as well as a wide variety of diseases involving all organs and systems, including the nervous system. In this article, based on these circumstances and the volume of evidence that has recently come to light, we call the attention of medical professionals to the various risks associated with blood transfusions using blood products derived from people who have suffered from long COVID and from genetic vaccine recipients, including those who have received mRNA vaccines.

paign. This is just a fact. If you are dying today in America from COVID it's because you're unvaccinated. Why would you want to die?" Xavier Becerra, HHS Secretary (wearing a mask) on CNN Live TV.

The comments above are classic propaganda intended to brainwash TV watchers. Such comments could be considered a ludicrous clown show if they weren't so disgusting, sinister, and evil. The purpose of the propaganda platforms like the ones above had a single intent — convince as many people as possible to get injected with the COVID drug. Why?

The Injections

The COVID drug injections, officially referred to as “vaccines,” were declared “safe and effective,” but the drug manufacturers insisted on having no liability whatsoever for any deaths or injuries caused by the “safe” drugs. The government exempted drug manufacturers from all responsibility for any deaths or injuries caused by the injections. Pfizer had even petitioned the federal government to hide their vaccine safety data for 55 years. The damning safety data were only released after a lawsuit forced Pfizer to release it.

If someone died or was injured within 14 days of a COVID drug injection, that death or injury was, incredibly, listed as being in the unvaccinated! Yet, the Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System (VAERS) indicated that the vast majority of deaths and permanent injuries from the COVID jabs occurred within 72 hours of the injection. Medical professionals conveniently, and perhaps criminally, recorded those vaccine deaths as COVID deaths in the unvaccinated!

one's breath, and can be stopped with just a face mask, why not just swab the mouth or even have someone just breathe on the swab?

Five and a half billion humans were injected with the COVID "vaccine" by 2024; 13.57 billion doses had been administered globally in the early 2020s. The word vaccine is in quotes because the experimental drug being injected did not fit the traditional scientific definition of a vaccine. This problem was rectified by government agencies quickly changing the definition to fit the drug, as they had done with the word "pandemic."

If a new dose of the COVID drug had been manufactured every second, it would have taken 430 years to produce 13.57 billion doses. If 430 doses were manufactured every second, 25,800 every minute, 1,548,888 every hour, or over 37 million doses every day, nonstop, 24/7, for an entire year, you would have 13.57 billion doses. Explain how that degree of manufacturing occurred, not to mention that level of clinical administration, in response to a sudden, unexpected, "novel" pathogen over such a short period of time. 13.57 billion doses injected into human beings is equivalent to injecting every single person in the United States 40 times. Had the "vaccines" already been manufactured ahead of time? Was this whole thing planned in advance?

The drug package inserts associated with these EUA drugs were blank. There was no information on them, despite almost every other commercial pharmaceutical drug having package inserts that unfold like a newspaper and contain a plethora of fine print that lists side effects, contraindications, and drug incompatibilities. Not so with the COVID EUA drugs. The public had to search for relevant information using the Freedom of Information Act. Pfizer would not release its information until they were sued and lost. When Pfizer's lawyers told the court they needed 55 years to release the data, the court ruled that they had to release it much more quickly than that. When they did, much of it was redacted.

People formed long lines down sidewalks to have these drugs injected into them despite having no idea what was in the drugs or what long-term, or immediate, detrimental health effects might occur. They were bribed with promises of free hamburgers, free ice cream cones, free lottery tickets, savings bonds, gift cards, cash, marijuana, donuts, beer, jewelry, kitchen utensils, and free popcorn at movie theaters while congratulated for being willing to experience “the miracle of vaccines.”

The people who chose to remain normal and not be injected with any unwanted and unneeded drug were soundly condemned by mainstream propaganda platforms such as CNN which labeled them “malevolent actors” who were “undermining Americans’ public confidence in vaccines,” and “mainstreaming formerly fringe antivaccination sentiments” in “response to a terrifying pandemic.”

We had discussed earlier in this book how malicious propaganda can cause massive death and suffering, such as in Vietnam, a country that Americans attacked based on lies from the U.S. government and media. In the end, Vietnam won the war and the lies became exposed but were rarely, if ever, discussed in public. Our “way of life” in America wasn’t destroyed as we had been warned. The “Reds” didn’t invade and take over our country, even though we lost the war. In the case of COVID, the “terrifying pandemic” petered out in most of the world, manifesting itself as little more than a normal flu season. The very worst outcomes happened in America. Forcing people to get the injections didn’t help anything — it made everything worse.

The government forced the COVID injections on people who already had the virus, had recovered, and had natural immunity, as well as people who had virtually no chance of dying from the illness. People who tested positive but had no symptoms were forced to get the injections. Pregnant women were told by the CDC that they would have healthier babies if they got an untested experimental drug injection. At the same time, doctors were cautioning pregnant women to avoid fish, lunch meat, soft cheeses, fresh-squeezed organic fruit juices, salt, alcohol, caffeine, tobacco, raw sprouts, and even herbal tea. But a mysterious, untested, experimental drug was not only okay for pregnant women and their fetuses but beneficial. What? And pregnant women believed this? And medical doctors promoted this? Yes, they did.

Seven hundred and seventy “safety signals” had presented themselves during the COVID drug trials. 1,223 deaths and 158,893 adverse events were listed in the Pfizer data over the three-month trial period; 1.6 million adverse events associated with the COVID injections were recorded in VAERS, assumed to be only 1/10 to 1/100 of the actual total.

In fact you didn't risk anything, you made sure of that. You told the world it was safe and effective. You made deals with governments to escape liability, no one was allowed to sue you. You paid media across the world to promote the vaccine. You hid the risk, you hid the data, in fact you wanted 75 years to release the data. Reminder, the vaccine inserts/risk warnings were left blank. We all saw it. And you made tens of billions of dollars.

A 2024 research paper stated: International analyses of excess mortality indicate that COVID-19 vaccinations may have had serious largescale consequences. In a careful study of mass vaccinations throughout Europe in 2021-2022, Aarstad and Kvitastein analyzed the potential interplay between COVID-19 vaccination coverage in 2021 across Europe and subsequent monthly excess mortality through 2022. Utilizing a well curated dataset encompassing 31 nations, the authors applied population-weighted analyses and found the following: (a) increases in All Cause Mortality during the initial nine-month period of 2022 were positively correlated with increases in 2021 vaccination distribution; and (b) each percentage point increase in 2021 vaccination coverage was associated with a 0.105% increase in monthly mortality during 2022. An extensive, multi-country ecological analysis by Rancourt and colleagues estimated that COVID-19 vaccination resulted in 17 million excess deaths, with a global vaccine-dose fatality rate of approximately 0.1%. Rancourt's 180-page report showed that the COVID-19 vaccine rollouts were synchronously followed by peaks in All Cause Mortality in many countries.

The part that the government and Big Pharma don't want you to see bears repeating: "COVID-19 vaccination resulted in 17 million excess deaths." Not only was the published, peer-reviewed research paper forced to be abruptly retracted, but the same propaganda platforms that hysterically pushed the COVID injections, relentlessly condemned the research paper as false and blocked it from public view. Good luck finding it on Google.

The SARS CoV2 (COVID) virus was reportedly developed by the U.S. military in cooperation with U.S. "health" agencies, partnering with Chinese scientists, using U.S. tax dollars. It appears that they had genetically altered what would otherwise be called a flu-like virus (SARS-CoV-1), causing it to infect human beings more easily. The genetic mutation theoretically allowed the virus to block the uptake of the oxygen molecule by the hemoglobin molecule in human blood. The resultant effect was to cause infected people to inhale but not get the amount of oxygen they would normally absorb. This caused a "shortness of breath" symptom that was alarming and frightening, especially for people who were already unhealthy, such as nicotine smokers, sugar addicts, and the obese, poor health conditions that burdened a large percentage of American citizens.

flocked to hospitals at the urging of their doctors, certain that they would otherwise die of COVID.

The genetically engineered mutant virus appeared to have been released intentionally, some say accidentally, in several places throughout the globe simultaneously, including China, New York City, Italy, Iran, and Brazil. These outbreaks were frantically reported on the mainstream propaganda platforms, showing helicopter views of mass graves in New York City, reports of bodies being cremated on sidewalks because there was no more room left at the morgues, and box trucks loaded with corpses being taken out to the countryside because there was no room left in the city for more dead bodies. Of course, the reports did not show the contents of the trucks. Nor did they mention that NYC already had mass graves for homeless people who pass away with no next of kin, and so on. Facts didn't matter. Fear did.

A few months before the release of the virus, a practice scenario known as "Event 201," hosted by the World Economic Forum and the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, enacted a simulated dry run of what was expected to happen during a worldwide health catastrophe: panic, widespread death, overrun medical facilities, nuisance persons who would not follow orders, and the need for censorship and propaganda.

Upon release of the virus, a vast, internationally coordinated propaganda effort was mounted to stir panic among the masses. A polymerase chain reaction (PCR) testing procedure was used to determine whether anyone was infected, and frightened people lined up to take the test, which was later proven to be unreliable for diagnostic purposes. The inventor of the test mechanism, Dr. Kary Mullis, winner of the 1993 Nobel Prize in chemistry for his invention of the process on which the PCR test is based, had publicly stated that the PCR test could not be used for the diagnosis of disease. He was also an outspoken critic of Dr. Anthony Fauci. Dr. Kary Mullis' 2019 death at age 74 "of pneumonia," at the beginning of the "pandemic," seemed suspicious to many people.

Nevertheless, positive PCR test results grew exponentially, even among people with no symptoms. The increasing "positive" tests were ominously displayed on TV screens alongside the climbing COVID-19 death toll. President Joe Biden grimly warned, "We are looking at a winter

Given the Coronavirus COVID-19 (SARS-CoV2) mutates and disappears within a few months, it is scientifically not possible to maintain the declaration of a COVID-19 “pandemic” beyond 2020 nor any public health measures, nor to impose its diagnostic with a misleading test over time.

Possible toxicity of chronic carbon dioxide exposure associated with face mask use, particularly in pregnant women, children and adolescents – A scoping review

Results: Fresh air has around 0.04% CO₂, while wearing masks more than 5 min bears a possible chronic exposure to carbon dioxide of 1.41% to 3.2% of the inhaled air. Although the buildup is usually within the short-term exposure limits, long-term exceedances and consequences must be considered due to experimental data. US Navy toxicity experts set the exposure limits for submarines carrying a female crew to 0.8% CO₂ based on animal studies which indicated an increased risk for stillbirths. Additionally, mammals who were chronically exposed to 0.3% CO₂ the experimental data demonstrate a teratogenicity with irreversible neuron damage in the offspring, reduced spatial learning caused by brainstem neuron apoptosis and reduced circulating levels of the insulin-like growth factor-1.

of severe illness and death for the unvaccinated — for themselves, their families and the hospitals they’ll soon overwhelm.” But no one with natural immunity was going to have severe illness and death. No one who already had the “novel” virus and gotten over it needed to have anything to worry about. According to Biden and the democrats however, none of that mattered. The only thing that mattered was whether you got the COVID drug injected into your body. Why? Why were they so desperate to have this untested drug injected into everyone, even healthy people, even children and pregnant mothers?

Almost anyone who died during this time period (early 2020s) was declared a COVID-19 death. This included murder-suicides, automobile accident deaths, and people who died in the hospital after being put on ventilators and injected with drug combinations that were likely to cause organ failure and death. The more people who were proclaimed dead from COVID, the more hysteria and fear the media could drum up and the more they could point the finger at the “unvaccinated” as the cause of the deaths. The TV watchers lined up in great masses thinking they were saving themselves and their loved ones by getting the shots.

Some nurses reported that 95% of hospital patients who were diagnosed with COVID-19 and put on ventilators and drugs died. Ventilators are machines that mechanically replace the work of the lungs. They’re typically used in cases such as coma victims, where artificial lung action is needed to keep a patient alive. The COVID-19 laboratory virus was genetically altered to block the uptake of oxygen. It did not stop the muscular architecture of the lungs from working.

Ventilators not only seemed useless in the treatment of this virus, but, according to witnesses, they were deadly. A nurse working in the Elmhurst Hospital in Brooklyn during the outbreak, Erin Olszewski, reported undercover that what was happening in her hospital could be described as murder. She wrote a book about her experiences (Undercover Epicenter Nurse) in which she stated:

“The COVID crises could be an opportunity for us to confront the true state of healthcare in America, before it’s too late. Or it could be another invitation to further denial, that will only prolong the suffering that so fuel on the panic gripping the TV-watching population.

A woman named Zowe, a medical coder who was forced to quit her job because she refused the COVID injections, during a live interview in 2024, explained:

“I knew they were killing people in the hospital. I would cry myself to sleep at night. There was so much death. It was almost unbearable. Hospitals became the place where people go to die instead of the place where people go to get better. They separated newborns from their moms. They let people die alone, without being able to say goodbye. They drugged them and they strapped them down and people died without being able to say goodbye to their family. Some of them just got a phone call. Some didn’t get anything. Some of them just weirdly died in the middle of the night when there was a skeleton crew on and they had been doing fine up until that point and just all of a sudden overnight ‘Oh they just crashed, I don’t know what happened.’ And that had never happened before the COVID protocol rolled out in 2020. So yeah, when they say they killed people I agree with them. I told people . . . don’t go to the hospital. They’re killing people in there, stay away. I don’t know what’s wrong. I didn’t know what was doing it. I honestly didn’t know it was the vents, I didn’t know it was the remdesivir, until I looked into it later and I was able to kind of connect the dots. But I knew they were killing people.”

At the same time, there were no reports of people dying at home from the virus. The homeless encampments in various cities should have had high death tolls, according to the hysteria being driven by the media. But they didn’t. Refugee camps, poverty-stricken villages, poor people living in polluted environments around the world, should have been particularly vulnerable. But they weren’t. In fact, the nation with the highest death toll attributed to COVID-19 was the United States, by a wide margin. Curiously, the United States, with what is often touted as the most advanced “health care” system on the planet, had more people die of the COVID-19 virus than any of the other 195 countries in the world.

It appeared that virtually all the United States deaths were taking place in hospitals. A single patient on a ventilator could reportedly rack up an estimated $1 million in insurance payments for the hospital where the patient was bedded. Every patient diagnosed with COVID-19 yielded a bonus payment to the hospital from the Biden Administration. Every one of the patients who were then put on a ventilator racked up another bonus payment for the hospital, paid by taxpayers. Every patient who then died “of COVID” generated yet another bonus for the hospital, paid for by taxpayers under authority of big pharma’s president of sales, Joe Biden.

The agency was forced by a federal judge to disclose the reports. The first two tranches, made up of 780,000 reports from some 523,000 people, include dozens of reports of heart inflammation, hundreds of reports of facial paralysis, and thousands of reports of tinnitus.

Not only did Biden buy billions of dollars of COVID shots from big pharma using taxpayer money, he also spent billions of American tax dollars advertising the shots for Pfizer and the other drug manufacturers, then he mandated that most Americans get injected with the pharmaceutical products he was advertising, whether they wanted them or not. Biden was a politician who had demonstrated decades of political incompetence, now thrust into the American presidency through an election rigged by a cabal of unhinged billionaires, some of whom raked in the drug plunder hand over fist.

No treatments were allowed in the hospitals for patients diagnosed with COVID-19 except what was approved protocol according to the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), the same CDC that insisted, “any mask is better than no mask.” The CDC mandated remdesivir, an experimental anti-viral drug originally used in Ebola trials in Africa, where its use was suspended when 53.1% of the patients on it died. It was then repurposed for COVID at a cost of about $3,000 per treatment. When this drug therapy was coupled with morphine and sedatives, it appeared that many patients under this treatment protocol simply died, especially when they had also been put on a ventilator. Their cause of death was listed as COVID-19, or “complications of COVID-19 infection.”

SARS stands for “severe acute respiratory syndrome.” It is a viral respiratory disease caused by the virus SARS-CoV-1, which, in 2002, was the first identified strain of the SARS-related coronavirus. mutates into something else by the end of the annual flu season. Otherwise, we'd continue to have the Spanish Flu every year, wouldn't we?

Despite the constant mutations of flu viruses, the new strains are not considered "novel" pathogens for which there is no curative treatment. The COVID virus, on the other hand, was deemed "novel" and therefore had no cure, which meant the public needed to run around like chickens with their heads cut off, scared to death they were going to die. There was no cure, but the government had one coming! Just wait for it. In the meantime, keep your face covered and remember to be terrified. But don't worry too much, because a "vaccine" is coming to save you.

Natural Health Care

Human beings have had to deal with respiratory viruses for millennia. As a result, our immune systems have provided us with natural defense mechanisms. This immune defense is bolstered by several things. For example, an unhealthy or weak body is more likely to suffer adverse consequences from a viral infection than a healthy one. People on unhealthy diets, especially overweight and obese people, are more likely to suffer.

The annual flu season is annual for a reason. Respiratory viruses appear to most successfully infect bodies that are cold, or when their body temperatures drop, such as when you "catch a chill." You may remember your grandmother telling you to bundle up when you go outside in cold weather or "you'll catch your death from the cold!" Ancient folk wisdom has provided solutions for recurring human illnesses.

Andrew Lwoff of the Pasteur Institute in Paris studied "the paramount importance of factors such as temperature in determining the outcome of virus infections." He pointed out that animals could overcome virus infections without relevant antibodies by using non-medical factors such as temperature augmentation (increase in body temperature). He noted that when mice were intentionally infected in a laboratory setting with a deadly Coxsackie B virus, a difference in their rectal temperature of only one degree meant the difference between 100% fatality and 100% recovery. Other laboratory experiments have shown that body temperature plays an important role in the multiplication of viruses — warmer bodies inhibit viral replication. Or as Lwoff put it, “Slight differences in body temperature can govern the outcome of a virus infection.”

That was back in the 1960s. More recent research confirms these scientific observations. For example, a 2009 paper in the Journal of Interferon Research (Vol. 8, No. 2), reported that immersing human volunteers in warm water above 102°F (39°C) “rapidly alters the cell populations in the peripheral blood,” producing as much as 10-fold more interferon- γ . Interferon- γ (γ = gamma) is a cytokine that is critical for immunity against viral, some bacterial, and protozoan infections. Its importance in the immune system stems in part from its ability to inhibit viral replication. Cytokines “are the unsung heroes of the immune system, often acting as the first responders to a pathogen infection,” according to LiveScience.com.

A 1987 paper in the Journal of Interferon published similar findings. Adult rhesus monkeys were placed in a climatic chamber maintained at 113°F (45°C) until their core body temperatures increased 2°C above control levels. The results showed a 4- to 16-fold increase in interferon- γ activity. This function is achieved naturally by the human body when it goes into a fever state. However, there is no need to wait until one is sick enough to become feverish. We can deliberately raise our own body temperature as soon as we feel a cold or flu coming on.

Clearly, soaking in a hot bath, as grandma told us, has therapeutic effects. Add a health regimen including plenty of sleep, healthy foods (or fasting), time off from stressful work, and simple remedies such as herbal teas, vitamins, sunshine, fresh air, and over-the-counter therapies, and one’s natural immune system will take care of itself. Your body will most likely fight off whatever is ailing it.

Could this be why hot countries such as Haiti, where the people did not “social distance,” nor did they wear masks or get drug injections and instead danced the nights away in hot, sweaty night clubs, yet had virtually no deaths from the respiratory flu that plagued America so much? It should be pointed out that Haiti eventually had about a 5% “vaccination” rate. It also had about a 5% rate of TV ownership. Coincidence?

Could this also be why the Scandinavian country of Sweden did so well with the “pandemic,” despite not abiding by the lockdown dogma, a country where hot saunas exist and are used in almost every household? Perhaps this is why people who are not on pharmaceutical drugs and who follow healthy dietary habits and have a healthy microbiome fared quite well against COVID regardless of any medical intervention? Was this studied by government or pharma scientists? Of course not.

Catching a cold or the flu? Tickle in your throat? Stay warm, stay home, soak in a hot bath or sauna, raise your body temperature daily, drink hot and nourishing liquids (such as chicken soup or hot tea), eat lightly and wisely, get lots of rest, and you'll be fine. None of these health care efforts require medical assistance; therefore there is no money to be made by the medical establishment, which may explain why there seems to be no professional medical interest in this approach.

There was almost no mention of these health care options by the media, by the government, or by medical officials during the COVID scare. On the contrary, people who valued natural immunity and non-medical approaches to health care were widely ridiculed and labeled “anti-vaxxers,” tin-foil hat wearers, a danger to society, even murderers. There was only one solution to the widely advertised pandemic that gripped humanity by the throat, according to TV, and that was the COVID drug injection. Nothing else would work, therefore nothing else should be tried.

In the meantime, it was the virus that locked down our businesses. It was the pandemic that deprived us of our constitutional rights, made us cover our faces and “social distance.” It was COVID that closed the parks and bankrupted our businesses, tore apart our families, blocked us from stores, shops, barbers, and hairdressers. fired from their medical position, no matter how many decades of exemplary practice she or he had performed at his or her hospital.

Ivermectin was derived from a soil fungus in Japan and had been prescribed to humans over a billion times. It had one of the safest drug profiles of any drug in existence. Although the discoverers of Ivermectin won a Nobel Prize for it, the drug became so demonized by the medical establishment during the scamdemic that pharmacists were banned from filling prescriptions for it. In some states, pharmacists were required to contact the prescribing physician, ask what ailment the Ivermectin was prescribed for, and if it was for COVID-19, the prescription had to be denied. Pharmacists who did not comply with this mandate faced having their licenses revoked by state politicians.

People flying into Canada had their luggage checked and any Ivermectin was confiscated, as was reported on social media. Ivermectin sold for livestock use was locked up in farm and garden centers so people could not buy it. CNN described it as “horse paste.” The FDA compared people who used Ivermectin as acting like “horses” and “cows.” The government of Australia banned its use nationwide during the scamdemic.

Hospitals became like death prisons for many patients where alternative treatments such as Ivermectin and vitamin therapy were completely banned. Loved ones smuggled Ivermectin to their family members, many of whom later swore that it was the smuggled Ivermectin that spared their lives before the hospital could kill them.

Vitamin therapy was banned in medical hospitals, even though Vitamin D had been shown to be effective against respiratory infections. One study reported that “As a safe, widely available, and affordable treatment, Vitamin D may help to reduce the severity of the COVID-19 pandemic.” Another study showed that Vitamin D administration resulted in a decreased risk of death and ICU admission and that the protective role of Vitamin D and ICU admission is conclusive. So, why would Vitamin D be banned?

Other scientists had similar results with Vitamin C, zinc, and hydroxychloroquine. A 2005 Virology Journal article concluded, “Chloroquine, a relatively safe, effective and cheap drug . . . is effective in inhibiting the infection and spread of SARS-CoV in cell culture.” Another study concluded that *“HCQ can efficiently inhibit SARS-CoV-2 infection in vitro. nation with its anti-inflammatory function, we predict that the drug has a good potential to combat the disease.” Yet these drugs were banned. Why?

If drugs like these, which cost pennies, could be effective against COVID-19, the emergency use authorization for the expensive experimental drugs would be suspended. But without competing remedies, the EUA drugs could be sold for top dollar. Biden bought billions of dollars of drugs from the pharmaceutical industry at high prices using taxpayer dollars, then mandated that American citizens have them repeatedly injected into their bodies or be fired from their jobs, while denying them alternative treatments. Pfizer generated $81 billion in 2021 and $100 billion in 2022. Their five-year average prior to that was $40 billion.

But that was a pittance compared to what was drained out of the U.S. treasury during the COVID plandemic. Four-trillion dollars vanished from the public coffers in a year, handed out as “COVID relief funds” primarily to mega corporations, especially those who implemented harsh lockdown mandates. That’s $4,000 billion. Using fear porn, mass hysteria, relentless coordinated propaganda, threats, coercion, and violence directed toward a compliant population of boiled frogs, the robbery of taxpayer dollars had reached an unprecedented zenith.

What does any of this have to do with Direct Democracy? Probably nothing for those who continue to have themselves and their children injected with experimental drugs. But for the 20% of critical thinkers who are capable of free thought and independent research outside the constraints of mainstream propaganda and the brainwashing machines, it means everything. What we are witnessing today is a level of human greed that would be unthinkable at any other time in our history. We are witnessing the unfolding demise of the human species, being destroyed from within by a deeply rooted cancer that feeds on a deranged gluttony, unspeakable cruelty, and what appears to be a complete lack of conscience.

Someone once said that we should never doubt that a small minority of people can change the world. Twenty percent of the population is not small. And we can, and must, change the world.

The Evolution of Democracy

For generations, the American Democratic Party represented the working class. It was anti-war, pro-social justice, and pro-environment. The Republican Party represented the business class, the wealthy and the well-heeled. Republicans were largely pro-war and seemed to not really care about the environment.

In 2020, that flipped. Suddenly, the Democratic Party became the mouthpiece of “big pharma.” It became pro-war, anti free speech, and pro-censorship. The republicans and conservatives became the voice of reason, freedom, anti-war, anti-big pharma, and pro free speech. What the hell happened?

It was embarrassing to watch. People who spent their lives speaking out against war, fighting for the environment, marching for freedom of speech, social justice, an end to racism and prejudice, and other endeavors that were hallmarks of the Democratic Party, did a complete about face. The propaganda machines had finally taken full effect. The frogs were boiled. Welcome to the “Uniparty,” neither Democrat nor Republican, but a combination of the worst of both. The Uniparty was completely controlled by billionaires and other wealthy elites, plus Washington DC swamp creatures, and other unelected denizens of the shadowy underworld of government.

The World Economic Forum, founded by Klaus Schwab in 1971, also known as the WEF, appeared to play a major, if not controlling, role in the globalization of world government by a small minority of ultra wealthy individuals. Globalization, or World Government, is how the U.S. Bill of Rights can be destroyed and discarded. The Constitution is a product of the United States government. When superseded and replaced by a one-world government, the wealthy elite will make the rules and there will be no functional constitution.

It started with the “Trump Derangement Syndrome,” a mass mental disturbance in which the brains of many of the boiled frogs had become imbued with a hatred for one particular politician, Donald Trump. In a sense, it was similar to the deranged hatred for Jews that gripped German

PROPAGANDA: IS THE USE OF FACTS, ARGUMENTS, RUMORS, HALF-TRUTHS, OR LIES TO INFLUENCE PUBLIC OPINION AND BEHAVIOR. PROPAGANDA HAS AN AGENDA AND A DELIBERATE PLAN WHICH RELIES ON MANIPULATION OF GROUPS OF PEOPLE, USUALLY FOR A POLITICAL PURPOSE.

Political parties exist to secure responsible government and to execute the will of the people. From these great tasks both of the old parties have turned aside. Instead of instruments to promote the general welfare they have become the tools of corrupt interests, which use them impartially to serve their selfish purposes. Behind the ostensible government sits enthroned an invisible government owing no allegiance and acknowledging no responsibility to the people. To destroy this invisible government, to dissolve the unholy alliance between corrupt business and corrupt politics, is the first task of the statesmanship of the day.

Trump was an American businessman from New York City, a TV celebrity, author, and family man, but not a politician. Nevertheless, he ran for the office of President of the United States in 2016 and won in an upset victory against career politician Hillary Clinton, whom we have already mentioned. Trump campaigned on the promise to “drain the swamp,” meaning expose and eliminate the shadow government, unelected bureaucrats, and behind-the-scenes actors who held a stranglehold grip on the U.S. government.

The United States Treasury, the bank depository for America’s tax dollars, has been the largest accessible pot of money in the world. Robbing it was easy enough for the swamp creatures. Pilfering the people’s bank account had developed into a fine science by the 2020s. Imagine being able to rob a bank in broad daylight in front of everybody and do it again and again without the need for even a gun — and get away with billions, if not trillions of dollars! When the government is controlled by criminals, that’s what happens. Our tax money disappears by the trillions. And when it disappears, it doesn’t just vanish, it goes into someone’s pockets — out of the pockets of many hard-working American citizens and into the pockets of a few.

Direct democracy could wrest back control of the government’s legislative body and put a lock and key on our treasury. Government control must be securely placed into the hands of the We the People. We can and we must put an end to the swamp creatures sucking our nation’s blood out of the backs of the working class like gigantic parasitic ticks.

Trump’s position as president had an incredible effect. He didn’t succeed in draining the swamp, but he did succeed in lowering the water level enough to expose the many and various swamp creatures lurking underneath. Many of the boiled frogs weren’t aware of any such thing because their minds had become infected with the Trump Derangement Syndrome and any information that was contrary to the narrative of the democrats, the WEF, and the “globalists,” was simply censored and re-

The Pessimistic Case for the Future

The Security State Has Been Weaponized

Arguably the two most alarming spectacles of recent times are the Russia Hoax and the federal government's reaction to Jan. 6. Our intelligence agencies spied not just on American citizens, but on a presidential candidate and his senior-most aides, and then, after he won, on government officials. The FBI launched a phony investigation under false pretenses to prevent one candidate from winning the 2016 election and to lay the groundwork for his removal if he did. All of this was later uncovered. The guilty got away with it, and the agencies still have their budgets and all their powers. Indeed, the FBI was just given—with Republican votes—a $600 million raise!

As to the second, an unarmed, nonviolent protest (all four deaths were protesters, either directly or indirectly caused by the authorities) resulted in the largest (and still ongoing) manhunt in US history, widespread and ongoing pretrial detention, maximalist demands from prosecutors (up to and including "terrorism enhancements" in sentencing), forced confessions, and draconian sentences for minor crimes.

These same agencies—in particular, the FBI, and the Department of Justice—now routinely engage in predawn, no-knock raids and circus arrests before awaiting media (to whom time and place of said arrest have been pre-leaked) against the ruling class's perceived enemies, such as those the Jan. 6 Commission would like to feature in its show trial. These are the kinds of practices that, when Eastern Bloc Communist tyrannies did them, the US government condemned. Now our government does them itself. Michael Anton compactmag.com placed with propaganda emanating from brainwashing machines.

Thereby, the globalists took over the Democratic Party and a portion of the Republican Party as well — the “RINOs” (republican in name only). Their agenda was to dismantle the U.S. Constitution, to force Americans to fund and ultimately fight new wars leading up to, and possibly including World War III, to rob as much money from the taxpayers in as short a time as possible, to undermine the United States as a sovereign nation, and to convince Americans and citizens of other nations around the world to accept regular, experimental, pharmaceutical drug injections as a requirement for living a “normal” life.

The one-world government wanted to control everyone’s money through a digital currency system. “You will own nothing, and you will be happy,” according to the Schwabites. If they don’t like the way you behave, they freeze your bank account and credit cards and/or seize your assets, as was demonstrated in Canada under Justin Trudeau’s corrupt leadership when the truckers protested his insane lockdown mandates.

It’s hard to believe that this is what the world was becoming in the 2020s, but it’s a fact. Maybe not to the boiled frogs, however, who absorb their daily dose of brain pabulum spoon-fed into their minds while they blankly sit in chairs staring at the brainwashing machines.

Trump was not a globalist. He, if anything, was an antiglobalist. A billionaire, he could not be easily bought, unlike so many politicians. He was considered a loose cannon by the swamp creatures, out of control, and a menace to their agenda. He had to be stopped.

The swamp creatures began their attack while Trump was on the campaign trail prior to his election victory in 2016. One of the first major examples of government malfeasance to be exposed was that the FBI was an organization that was corrupt at the highest levels — totally controlled by the swamp. The FBI was acting like a Mafia organization, or as a private security team for a police state, doing the bidding of politicians hiding in the shadows, attacking their political opponents, rounding them up, and throwing them into federal prisons.

Federal judges also exposed themselves during this era. Rather than pass judgment against defendants based on facts rooted in reality, many, not all, but many, especially in the DC circuit, rendered decisions that were blatantly partisan in favor of the Democratic Party and their witch hunts against their opposition, especially Trump and his supporters.

By the time Trump's first term had ended, he had become widely popular, aside from the TV-watchers infected with the Trump Derangement Syndrome. Those people viscerally detested him. But Trump hadn't started any new wars, much to the consternation of the war machine. He was brash and spoke his mind, sometimes rudely, but he often said things that were more truthful than words spoken by most politicians.

For example, during a presidential debate, he stated that he could see no reason why the U.S. shouldn't have a better relationship with Russia. His democrat opponent, Hillary Clinton, sneered at him and accused him of being Putin's lap dog. He was right, she was wrong, and any person with functioning brain tissue could understand that.

Hillary had supported the bombing, invasion, and occupation of Iraq. The attack on Iraq was a misguided strategy cooked up by Republicans George W. Bush, Dick Cheney, Donald Rumsfeld, Condoleezza Rice, Colin Powell, and others. It was the worst crime against humanity to have occurred worldwide in the twenty-first century at that time. Unlike Hillary, Trump denounced the war against Iraq as a foolish strategy that needlessly drained our treasury and killed a lot of people who didn't need to die. The U.S. economy under Trump was booming. We were a nation of peace and prosperity. Trump was certain to win reelection by a landslide in 2020.

A billionaire cabal of unelected players behind the scenes were not going to allow that to happen. Trump's reelection would interrupt their scheme of world government, a world controlled by a powerful but tiny minority of ultrawealthy individuals. Trump had to go.

The COVID scamdemic was announced in early 2020. This was quickly used as an excuse to destroy the U.S. economy. First, the stock market crashed. Then the entire nation was shut down by government "health" professionals who had set up a virus task force in Washington, DC. Their edicts were foolish, their strategies were almost juvenile, and their mandates were extremely destructive. Their goals seemed to include destroying the economy, suspending the Constitution, subjugating the population, and, perhaps most importantly, getting as many people as

Majority of American Voters Rightly Concerned About Vote Fraud

Watching the news, you'd be led to believe that vote fraud doesn't exist in the United States. Since the election on Nov. 8, news article after news article has simply dismissed any claims of vote fraud as "baseless" (New York Times and CNN) and "without evidence" (NPR, New York Times, and Washington Post). Republican gubernatorial candidate Kari Lake is lambasted for "stoking fears on mail-in ballots." And the news coverage was no different after the 2020 election.

But American voters aren't convinced. A Rasmussen Reports survey from late September found that 84 percent of likely voters were concerned about election integrity in this year's congressional elections. It was a belief shared by every category of voters, including liberals and Democrats, though they were less concerned than conservatives and Republicans.

possible injected with an experimental COVID -19 “vaccine.”

Restaurants were hit hard. Ordered by politicians to shut down, their fresh produce was forced to go to waste, rotting. All the large billionaire-owned big box stores were allowed to stay wide open. The little mom and pop businesses were forced to shut down, as were hairdressers, nail salons, barber shops, hardware stores, and even the churches, because “public health and safety had to be protected” as the “health experts” sternly reminded everyone.

Many restaurants were shut down for months; many went bankrupt and never reopened. Getting a hot meal or a nice salad was now considered a threat to public health if you ate in the presence of others. If a restaurant was allowed to open, the patrons had to wear masks over their faces, covering their nose and mouth. They were allowed to pull the masks down as they inserted food into their mouths, then cover their mouths and noses again when chewing, “to be safe.” This would be laughable if it was just a joke. But it isn’t.

People, even entire families inside restaurants who didn’t cover their faces, were dragged out by the police, who roamed in bands from pizza shops to cafes looking for any sane people who wouldn’t comply with the mass insanity. Those who wore masks but dropped them below their noses so they could breathe, were quickly pounced upon by store monitors and told they had to cover their noses or leave the building. Their exposed noses were a health threat to all the others on the premises, even though the others had masks over their faces. Those who didn’t quickly comply were rudely ushered out the door. Some were arrested and thrown into police wagons after being forcibly masked. All of this mass insanity is verifiable by video footage.

Restaurants that didn’t force their customers to follow the “public health” edicts were forced to close in New York City, and elsewhere, under the threat of armed, swarming police officers, while directly across the street the restaurants were allowed to stay open because they were in a different borough. People who had Thanksgiving dinner in the privacy of their homes willingly sat six feet apart, “for their safety.” People who didn’t cover their faces were branded “right-wing extremists,” “Trump lovers,” and followers of a “death cult.” The lunacy was breathtaking.

How Did American Capitalism Mutate Into American Corporatism in 2024?

Neither the left nor the right, nor Democrats or Republicans, nor capitalists or socialists, seem to be speaking clearly to the moment in which we live. The dominating force on both the national and global scene today is techno-corporatism that intrudes itself into our food, our medicine, our media, our information flows, our homes, and all the way down to the hundreds of surveillance tools that we carry around in our pockets. The mass insanity was frightening.

In the meantime, anyone who sneezed in their hand, then grabbed a public doorknob, such as at a big box store or a supermarket, was spreading whatever virus made them sneeze. The next customer would walk into the building, grab the same doorknob, then scratch their eye, then the next customer, and the next.

The same scenario existed at the checkout counters. Everyone touched the same credit card terminal screen with their fingers, the same fingers they just sneezed into. Any virus that was being spread, was being spread through touch. The person checking out your food at the grocery store touched every single item you bought. But they had their faces covered — for your safety.

The purpose of the masking was mostly psychological. With everyone walking around with their faces covered in full view of each other so only their eyes were visible, the concerned and frightened looks in their eyes reminded everyone to be afraid. The masked faces could also signal to each other how virtuous they were by keeping their faces covered “to protect others,” while people who didn’t cover their faces were immediately identifiable and viewed with contempt and disgust by the boiled frogs.

And so it went. The idiocy was only outdone by the gullibility of the brainwashed public. Now that everything was shut down, the public were locked in their homes where they would “be safe.” And there they sat cowering, with their faces covered, waiting on the edges of their seats for the next instructions from their brainwashing machines. The TV-watchers had literally been driven into a mass insanity. STAY THE FUCK HOME! people posted on their social media platforms.

Nosy neighbors called the police if they saw a service truck next door providing, for example, plumbing or roofing services at a nearby house. A contractor working alone on top of a roof was deemed a public health hazard and threatened by democrat politicians with the cancellation of their contractor’s licenses. Let’s get back to the 2020 election. Millions of people are suddenly unemployed. And because it’s too scary to be outside in the fresh air and sunshine, nobody has to show up at an election site to cast their vote for the president in 2020. Everyone can use paper ballots “to be safe.” No matter that paper ballots were the least secure and most likely to be fraudulent method of casting votes during an election. Or was it planned that way? Of course it was.

On the evening of the election, Trump was winning in most states by a landslide. He was, for example, hundreds of thousands of votes ahead of Joe Biden at the end of election day in Pennsylvania, a crucial swing state, with a seemingly insurmountable lead. As an objective political observation I think the Trump situation is a huge risk for the Democrats. After an exhausting two years of a foul and completely debunked Democrat scam (RussiaGate), for them to launch this legal jihad is a monster gamble. It is an absolute cluster bomb against one man, and boy, they better be right.

For one thing many of these charges are flimsy, some specious, and others truly ridiculous. If they stick, even temporarily, they will make a martyr out of Trump. His supporters and many independents will see him as one individual against a massive political machine, an armada of dirty tricks, and historically the lone warrior is a sympathetic scenario.

If Trump is ultimately acquitted, however, he will be the David who beat Goliath, and the Democrat Party will never recover. They will be forever seen as venal, nasty, mendacious charlatans and cheats, whose latest charade failed miserably.

Even if they convict him of all charges though, millions of Americans will feel deprived of their candidate regardless how hated he is by the other side, and they will be in a civil war frame of mind.

all for Joe Biden. Biden was loudly declared the winner by all of the billionaire-controlled media outlets the next morning.

The globalists had what they wanted. Trump had been pushed out of the way. Although he was not the sort of person to take this kind of treatment sitting down, and his voters, at least half the country, were angry, to say the least. Joe Biden was now “in power.” He was a career politician with a reputation sullied by ethical corruption and incompetence. He had been one of the most influential promoters of the disastrous invasion of Iraq in the Democratic Party. Any politician who supports and encourages any crime against humanity is not qualified to hold public office. Yet, there they were, career politicians entrenched in their political dynasties, like an infection that can’t be cured. Biden was the perfect puppet the globalists needed.

Trump put up a fight. In return, the democrats and their billionaire handlers attacked him relentlessly. The democrats immediately impeached him for a second time. After that was unsuccessful, democrat attorneys general began charging Trump with serious, but bogus crimes. The district attorney in Fulton County, Georgia, Fani Willis, charged Trump with election interference for questioning the results of the rigged election. She announced that Trump had committed a racketeering crime, no less, which is frankly insane.

Alvin Bragg, a Manhattan, New York district attorney, charged Trump with a 34-count felony indictment alleging that Trump falsified New York business records. New York attorney general Letitia James charged Trump with fraud for taking out real estate loans and paying them back with interest. The judge in that case, Arthur F. Trump, now facing over 100 years in prison, was running for president again. The criminal charges mushroomed. Letitia James made sure she included Trump’s family members in her persecution of Trump, and she made sure the penalties for everyone would be very harsh. Peter Bernegger, a data analyst with Election Watch, filed the complaint. The group's research found that the Protasiewicz campaign has received a myriad of repetitive small contributions purportedly from the same individuals totaling at least $6 million.

According to the complaint, the official reports from the Wisconsin Campaign Finance Information System reveal that 234 of Justice Protasiewicz's 38,169 contributors donated more than 10 times.

Election Watch has dubbed the observed repetition of thousands of small donations being made under the same name as "smurfing." It's occurring nationwide and has been detected down to the municipal election level.

whose best days had long ago come and gone. If, under these circumstances, the globalists managed to fraudulently rig another presidential election, humanity would likely sink into a new Dark Age, the foundation could be laid for another American civil war, and the unraveling of civilization will have begun.

The communists once faced demented ultra-wealthy elites in the nineteenth century. In response, they created a political movement based on the Communist Manifesto. Our founding fathers dealt with an unhinged, tyrannical monarchy in the eighteenth century. They declared independence from the British and wrote the United States Constitution to protect their new nation from the wretched tyranny that it had been the victim of. Their problems were the same. A small minority of people with a lot of wealth were trying to control everyone else. In the 2020s, the curse continues. A group of wealthy elitists were intent upon taking over the world, while creating an underclass of subservient citizens who will “own nothing and be happy.” The “useless people” would be slowly eliminated through targeted mass drug injections, intentionally released pathogens (biowarfare), or shooting wars.

Once the globalists and other swamp creatures had gained control of the American presidency in 2020, they immediately pivoted to infect the minds of entire nations with a “Virus Hysteria,” a mass psychosis. The Virus Hysteria, in turn, mentally prepared societies for the orchestrated “Worldwide Pandemic,” which then lead to the mass injection of billions of people with experimental, poorly tested, gene-altering drugs.

Approximately 80% to 90% of Americans received at least one dose of the COVID drug. The other 10% to 20%, the sceptics who were exercising independent, critical thinking, who were conducting personal research outside the constraints of mainstream propaganda, and who just wanted to remain normal, without unnecessary drugs injected into their bloodstreams, were relentlessly ridiculed and reviled through the propaganda outlets, including TV, radio, print media, and online social media. The boiled frogs, in unison, croaked their disgust at the normal, uninjected people, on cue, led by media talking heads who were being paid handsomely by big pharma to push the mass drug injection narrative.

Remember the communist philosophy whereby nobody owns private property? Remember Klaus Schwab and the WEF group stating that you will own nothing, and you will be happy? Consider this: According to Newsweek, there were 607 billionaires in Communist China in 2022, second only to the United States, with 735 billionaires. According to Credit Suisse, the number of millionaires residing in China totaled 6.2 million in 2023, second again only to the United States. This doesn't make much sense, considering that one of the basic tenets of communism is the elimination of private property. Is Communist China "communist" in name only? Has communism changed its founding principles to adapt to a capitalist world? If so, why is anti-communism still so rampant in the United States? Numerous Chinese entities are major supporters of the WEF and the WHO. Meanwhile, the WHO appeared to have been the biggest promoter of Virus Hysteria worldwide, and the most vocal pusher of the COVID drugs and vaccines in general. Exactly what is going on here?

Gender Confusion

What about the family? The Communist Manifesto proclaimed that the state should take the place of the family and be responsible for the education and health decisions of children, a reprehensible thought at best. Government exists to serve the people, period. It's not the other way around and never should be.

Why were American public schools and universities promoting gender confusion in the 2020s? Why would they be allowing children to have gender confusion encouraged by medical professionals without the knowledge of their parents? For that matter, why would state governments allow minor children to be injected with COVID drugs or any pharmaceuticals without the knowledge and permission of their parents? What is really going on? Is the pharmaceutical industry and the medical industrial complex so embedded in government agencies, public schools, and universities that the basic rights of parents to control their children's medical decisions are being cast aside by politicians and school administrators for the benefit of personal profit?

needs to be revisited. Anyone in government or education or in the media who questioned government policy on gender confusion risked an immediate end to their career. Same for anyone who questioned vaccine policy. There were important questions that could not be broached in public discourse without the very real risk of being censored, deplatformed, fired, defamed, publicly ridiculed and humiliated, or otherwise punished.

Let's look at some of the common environmental pollutants many Americans are exposed to on a regular basis, starting with atrazine, the second-most commonly used herbicide and the most common contaminant of groundwater, surface water, and rainwater in the United States. Atrazine is made in laboratories — it does not occur naturally. It is a white, odorless powder that is used to stop the growth of weeds in crops such as corn, which is grown on about 90 million acres in the United States alone, yielding 15.3 billion bushels in 2023. Atrazine is used on over 54 million acres of the U.S. corn crop. There are more than 60 pre-mix products that have atrazine in them.

Atrazine exposure is linked to consistent reproductive problems in amphibians, fish, reptiles, and mammals, with at least 10 studies showing that such exposure feminizes male frogs, sometimes to the point of reversing their sex. Atrazine exposure can change the expression of genes, inhibit key enzymes that control estrogen and androgen production (female and male sex hormones), skew the sex ratio of wild and laboratory animals, and otherwise disrupt the normal reproductive development and functioning of males and females.

About 40,000 tons of atrazine were used in agricultural and weed control settings in the United States in 2010. The global atrazine market was worth $1.6 billion in 2022 and is expected to be almost double that by 2030. What effect is this chemical having on human reproductive health? Might this be a clue to the increased gender confusion among children, adolescents, and adults? Would atrazine exposure be having an effect on the development of human embryos in the womb, or on infants?

According to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, any atrazine that is washed from the soil into streams and other bodies of water will stay there for a long time, because breakdown of the chemical is slow in rivers and lakes. It will also persist for a long time in

If indeed the CIA was in any way involved in the assassination of JFK on Nov. 22, 1963, then anything that has happened in the public sphere in our country since that day has basically been a hallucination created by an intelligence agency far deeper than most of us—certainly I, since I was never much given to conspiracy theories—ever imagined.

groundwater. Little information is available regarding the effects of atrazine on children. Maternal exposure to atrazine in drinking water has been associated with low fetal weight and heart, urinary, and limb defects in humans. Atrazine has been shown to slow down the development of fetuses in animals, and exposure to high levels of atrazine during pregnancy causes reduced survival of fetuses.

Consider the chemical glyphosate, another weed killer: 75% of pregnant Canadian women in the first trimester of their pregnancy had detectable concentrations of glyphosate in their urine. How would this interact with atrazine during the gestation period of human embryos? Has anyone thought about this, or is such research being avoided for fear of what would be discovered?

Or chlormequat, a highly toxic agricultural chemical found in wheat and oat products, including common breakfast cereals. Chlormequat, when applied to oat and grain crops while they're growing, stops the plants from bending over, making the grain easier to harvest. But chlormequat can disrupt fetal growth in animals and damage their reproductive systems. How will it interact with human embryos and babies? Exposure to chlormequat can result in lower fertility and can harm developing fetuses even at doses below levels set by regulators.

Researchers detected chlormequat in 80% of urine samples collected between 2017 and 2023, with "a significant increase in concentrations for samples from 2023." Throw that chemical into the soup that humans are exposed to, especially pregnant mothers, then study what the effect of all three of these chemicals combined, atrazine, glyphosate, and chlormequat, may be having on developing human fetuses.

This is just the tip of the iceberg. Gender confusion is not normal, and it is not natural. People who have this condition may be victims of biochemical aberrations that may have occurred in the womb from exposure to environmental pollutants during pregnancy, potentiated by drinking chemically contaminated water in baby formula and eating contaminated baby food during infancy. People so afflicted don't need to be congratulated, promoted, or held up as examples to society and especially not to children. But gender-confused people do need to be understood, supported, helped, and respected for who they are. We should not hate people for who they are, but we can certainly despise them for what they do. When gender-confused adults, or any adults, try to influence impressionable children to doubt their natural gender, then we have a very serious problem.

In the 2020s, medical professionals were seizing upon gender-confused children and interfering with their sexual development, encouraging them to engage in hormone treatments and surgery to block their natural gender maturation. They were influencing young women to surgically remove their breasts and men to have breast implants (“chest or ‘top’ surgery to remove breast tissue for a more masculine appearance or enhance breast size and shape for a more feminine appearance,” according to the Cleveland Clinic); to have surgical penises attached (“Phalloplasty: Uses a flap of skin from another part of your body to form an average-sized penis, about 5 to 6 inches. It usually happens alongside scrotoplasty.”).

And, in case you’re wondering what scrotoplasty is, according to the Cleveland Clinic, it “reshapes part of the labia majora (outer lips of the vulva) into a scrotum. Once you heal, you may choose to get silicone gel or saline implants that look and feel like testicles (testicular prosthesis).”

Oh heck, we may as well throw in vaginectomy, which “removes the vagina. This may be an option if you don’t desire bottom surgery, like metoidioplasty or phalloplasty. These procedures often involve using vaginal tissue to reconstruct your genitals.” And metoidioplasty, which “uses the clitoris to form a penis. Before surgery, you’ll take testosterone to enlarge the clitoris to the size of a micro-penis (a penis that’s less than about 2.57 inches long). This procedure usually happens alongside scrotoplasty.”

Young gender-confused males can be encouraged to have their penises removed and replaced with holes, known as “vaginoplasty,” or “feminizing bottom surgery.” According to the Cleveland Clinic, this is “a procedure to construct or repair your vagina. People . . . have vaginoplasty as part of gender affirmation surgery.” What happens during “feminizing bottom surgery”? Your anesthesiologist will give you anesthesia. Your surgical team will remove your testicles (orchietomy) and perform a vaginoplasty. They’ll remove most of the penis tissue (penectomy) and create a space between your urinary bladder and rectum. Vaccines

While we’re on the topic of children and chemical pollutants, let’s briefly touch upon another provocative topic: childhood vaccines and autism. Boiled frogs are taught to repeat the mantra: “Vaccines do not cause autism!” There is ample evidence to contradict this claim, evidence that will never be seen on mainstream propaganda outlets but as long as people are met with the mantra “vaccines do not cause autism,” usually accompanied with a fiercely indignant and condescending tone, no further discussion is warranted. Case closed. Research has conclusively proven that there is no connection between vaccines and autism, or so we are told, so shut up or they’ll label you “anti-science” and give you a tinfoil hat to wear.

But let’s ask some perfectly reasonable questions. What about when vaccines are administered to children who are on antibiotics? Both vaccines and antibiotics affect the immune system. What research lab has studied that topic? What about babies on antibiotics, given multiple vaccines at once, then administered Tylenol on top of everything else? Has anyone done research on that? studied? One reason is because scientific research costs money and consequently research requires funding. Funding sources don't want to expose information that may have a negative impact on product sales, so funding will not be offered if the research doesn't benefit the funding source. What about our government? Why can't we use taxpayer dollars to fund research about these critical and timely issues? Because the government is controlled by Big Pharma. Our representatives depend on Big Pharma handouts to help fund their reelections.

Yet, the two toxins most implicated in the U.S. autism epidemic are in fact Tylenol (acetaminophen) and the oral antibiotic amoxicillin. Recently, the herbicide glyphosate was also "exponentially implicated." Researching the administration of childhood vaccines, combined with childhood exposure to other chemicals in a soup of environmental contaminants, seems to be conspicuously absent from scientific studies.

What happens with the addition of glyphosate, chlormequat, and atrazine exposure to the baby in the womb? Add vaccines administered on the day the baby is born, then inject the baby with several vaccines at once while the baby is on an antibiotic, then give it Tylenol on top of everything else? Add the more than 70 doses of 17 pharmaceutical drugs (vaccines) on the CDC childhood schedule. Most of these vaccines contain the adjuvant aluminum, which is a known neurotoxin. Shall we do some research on this? Does it not seem like this could have something to do with human gender confusion, autism, peanut allergies, and the host of other conditions that children are afflicted with today? These conditions are certainly not hereditary, so there has to be an environmental factor. So far, the strategy has been "don't look, don't find." Don't forget, "all vaccines are safe and effective," and keep repeating, "vaccines don't cause autism!"

What does any of this have to do with direct democracy? When you vote for a representative, you are not exercising your right to vote, you are sacrificing your right to vote. and so on. If you are one of the 535 voting members in the U.S. Congress, there's a damn good chance that you'll be voting for the best interests of your financial backers.

On the other hand, if American citizens claimed their true right to vote directly on legislation, and if only 15% of the 162 million registered voters actually took the time to do the research, inform themselves on legislation, and vote on it, then 24,300,000 people would be weighing in on the issues. That's over 24 million people deciding what legislation would pass and what wouldn't.

Of course, if we're talking about 24 million boiled frogs, we're toast. This is why, in the 2020s, there is an insistent effort by the democrats, RINOs, the deep state, and the globalists, to undermine the 1st amendment of the Constitution, blocking free speech, and replacing it with censorship and propaganda. If the minds of the masses can be controlled, they will allow themselves to be happily herded, like sheep, to their own demise. Independent media, free and open Internet, freedom of speech, freedom of assembly, freedom of the press, and the suppression of censorship, have never been more important than they are now.

Add to this the obvious prospect that ordinary citizens would also participate in the crafting of legislation. This would entail discussion and debate among the millions of participants at public venues and/or on whatever social media platforms allowed free speech. The result would be legislation tailored to fit the needs of the people. Which system do you think best represents democracy? The American people would be voting, by and large, for their best interests, not the interests of Big Pharma, the War Machine, the chemical industry, or any billionaire.

Increased Age-Adjusted Cancer Mortality After the Third mRNA-Lipid Nanoparticle Vaccine Dose During the COVID-19 Pandemic in Japan

These particularly marked increases in mortality rates of these ER α -sensitive cancers may be attributable to several mechanisms of the mRNA-LNP vaccination rather than COVID-19 infection itself or reduced cancer care due to the lockdown. Let's audit the Department of Defense and find out where the missing trillions have gone. The warmongers in Congress want to funnel billions of our tax dollars to yet another war front? And not account for any of it? That's called money laundering. We can stop it. We can enact whatever legislation we want. Big pharma will not be able to block it, the swamp won't stop us, the political parties will be incapable of controlling legislative outcomes because all concerned citizens will be the ones who vote, not just partisan politicians controlled by one party or another. Career politicians will cease to exist. The swamp will inevitably dry up.

Most current "representatives" are simply puppets. They know who butters their bread and they vote that way. The 2020 election cycle in the United States cost over $14 billion! Fourteen billion dollars to elect representatives! Intelligent random selection of representatives would cost very little, almost nothing in comparison. Why haven't we done anything like this already? One reason is because we haven't been capable of it.

The random selection of representatives coupled with direct citizen voting on legislation would never have crossed the minds of the Founding Fathers because no technology had been invented or even imagined that could accomplish such a thing. They didn't even have electricity! Times have changed.

But what about your neighbor? He shouldn't be voting on anything! You don't want some crackhead representing you! You don't trust yourself to be able to vote correctly on any legislation. You would rather have a professional make those decisions. Or maybe you just don't have the time or the interest in getting involved in the legislative process. That's okay. It's not for everyone, although every qualified citizen should have the right to directly engage in the legislative process if they so choose.

Here's a suggestion: for the next few days or weeks, look around you wherever you happen to be. Look at the floors, the roads, the clothing, the lighting systems. Notice the advanced technology now in automobiles and airplanes. Think about and observe everything positive and constructive that humans have created.

Realize that the person next to you on a bus or in a train quite likely plays a role in maintaining the gears that make society work. There are a lot of level-headed, intelligent, creative, caring, and wise Americans.

Feminizing bottom surgery is a procedure that allows your physical body to match your gender identity. It reconstructs organs in the male reproductive system into parts of a vulva and possibly a vagina. Recovery can take up to several months.

The Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) provided only a two-page document to support Assistant Secretary Rachel Levine's claim that "gender-affirming care" is "necessary" for transgender youth. This has led to allegations that Levine violated the Dept.'s scientific integrity policies by making unsubstantiated claims.

How Much Damage Have Vaccines Done to Society?

A long history exists of a wave of severe injuries following new vaccinations being introduced to the market. In most cases, those injuries were swept under the rug to protect the business.

Direct Democracy

Drive through the countryside and look at the well-kept farms and the small businesses. These represent the best of America. These citizens are not billionaires living on private islands playing with the human race as if we were digital characters in a colossal video game.

Most people work for a living. They have children and homes. They pay their bills and budget their money. They're concerned about their retirement options. They care about the environment. They don't want wars. They care about the future they will be leaving their children and grandchildren. Nothing is more important to them than their health, their homes, their livelihoods, their communities, and their families. Having a healthy young child on your lap reciting the ABCs is so much more precious than a $200 billion fleet of private jets.

Most Americans are perfectly capable of voting directly on legislation. We should trust decisions made by 24 million people working in cooperation, more than decisions made by a few hundred politicians working in back rooms.

The United States debt was over $35 trillion in 2024 and climbing rapidly. Our representatives did that to us. They make the decisions regarding the spending of taxpayer dollars, and they're blowing it. Many of them are incompetent, likely corrupt, and perhaps even deranged.

During the Korean War, it was our government that escalated the war, killing millions of Koreans on their own land, in their own homes. It was our government that brought us to the brink of WWII in Korea by threatening to drop two dozen atomic bombs on China, only a few years after the end of WWII. It was our representatives who mandated that 18-year-old American boys, fresh out of high school, be forced to invade and occupy Vietnam or be sentenced to a federal penitentiary. It is our representatives who budget huge amounts of money for the military, then conveniently ignore how it is spent or where it goes.

In 2024, our representatives are sucking money out of our treasury as fast as they can, siphoning it to war fronts in Ukraine and Palestine. They will never stop until we stop them. It is a cancer, and we must cure it. We have an extra $100 billion in tax revenues to spend? Do we send it to Nazis in Ukraine, or do we use it to clean up our drug-infested inner cities? Let's vote on these things. We the people. All of us.

Why the US Debt Is Unsustainable and Is Destroying the Middle Class

Direct Democracy

Liz Cheney was the daughter of Dick Cheney, one of the architects of the disastrous invasion of Iraq. That invasion was a crime against humanity, executed in response to a group of Saudis attacking the World Trade Center in 2001. Liz Cheney was also a U.S. representative from the state of Wyoming from 2017 to 2023. She was a republican elected to represent the people of Wyoming, a state that voted 70% for republican President Donald Trump in the 2020 election. If 70% of your constituency voted for a particular presidential candidate in an election year, and your responsibility is to represent your constituency, then it stands to reason that you would largely support the candidate that your constituents voted for. That's what representation means. Instead, Cheney did exactly the opposite. She devoted her tenure during her time as a representative to undermining and attacking Wyoming's favorite presidential candidate, Donald Trump. She didn't care what her constituency wanted. What mattered to her was what she wanted.

This is a perfect example of why one person can't be expected to reliably represent a quarter-million other people. Out of that quarter-million voters in Wyoming, nearly 200,000 voted for Trump. Then why would Cheney devote so many public hours and so many millions of tax dollars trying to destroy Trump? When reelection time came around, Cheney was quickly and soundly booted out of office. But she did plenty of damage in the meantime.

Cheney, and all of the members of Congress are entitled to their opinion, which is not more or less important than anyone else's. They are entitled to one vote. The idea that they can take away the votes of their substantial constituency and replace it with their own vote, no matter how petty or emotional, is ridiculous. The population of Wyoming must bypass someone like Cheney and vote directly on legislation. When the people vote, their vote must be binding, regardless of the opinion of their representative. The people of Wyoming would never have permitted Cheney's witch hunt against Trump had they not been blocked from exercising the power they rightfully deserve as citizens in a democratic society.

Cheney provides only one example among hundreds, if not thousands of politicians gone astray. Career politicians pollute Washington, DC, like a plague. They will vote for their own interests, and they will happily, and arrogantly, cut you out of the picture. We are being silenced.

We must realize that there are valid alternatives to the political mess we are now in. Then we must start giving those alternatives some serious thought. Then, we must have open, intelligent discussions about creative alternatives and how to make them happen in the real world. Humans are creator beings. We can create our own future. In fact, we always have. First, we must visualize what we want, then we must put energy into that visualization. Then, eventually, it will become reality.

Every idea is a seed planted in the mind of humanity. Some are planted in fertile soil and are nourished. Those ideas can grow rapidly and spread quickly around the world. Other ideas are born before their time has come. These wither, shrivel, die, or go dormant. The grandchildren of the 2020s will be reading this book as adults, years later. The author, already a grandfather, will be gone by then. Grandchildren, you have the gift of hindsight. What happened?

Did the medical-industrial complex take over and continue to force drug injections on humans of all ages, beginning on the day they are born? Did the globalists take over and erase the Bill of Rights? Did gender-confused politicians force their ideology on our children? Were parents stripped of their parental rights over their children, replaced by state control? Did incompetent, unwise, and foolish politicians start World War III? Or did they just maintain a low-level simmering global warfare to keep the blood money flowing? Did the citizens get control of their purse, or are they still lining up to be milked like goats, then fleeced like sheep, while pigs gobble up the national treasury like hogs at a slop bucket? Did the people continue their addictions to sugar, pharmaceutical drugs, and to their brainwashing machines? Or did things get turned around? If so, how did it happen?

Direct Democracy

9 What Did Happen?

Reactions to the idea of Direct Democracy are predictable. Simply stated, naysayers will declare, “It will never happen. It can’t be done!” The reasoning can be summed up succinctly in three points:

1. The elite will never let the legislative process be controlled by the citizens. The oligarchs have all the power; they control the police and the military, the DOJ, the FBI, the CIA, the IRS, the FDA, the CDC, the NIH, the media, the Democrat party, many of the Republicans, and to some extent, the courts. They will happily sacrifice commoners at the drop of a hat. To them, the U.S. Constitution is not a guidebook, it’s an obstacle.

2. The common people are too stupid to make decisions. The government is a vast and complicated entity requiring highly trained professionals to run it. Direct democracy would be a disaster for the United States if we put common working-class people in charge of the legislative process.

3. Even if the citizens managed to regain control of the legislative branch of the government, there is still the executive branch and the judicial branch. They will block you.

The executive branch consists of people who are likely to be installed by the wealthy elite through rigged elections. They will do everything in their power to stop the public from “upsetting the apple cart,” i.e., shutting off or controlling the money spigot.

The judicial branch consists of people who are largely unelected. Many are appointed by members of the executive branch. The early 2020s have made it clear that the judicial branch at the federal level is rife with corruption in some jurisdictions. There are judges who will decide cases in a manner that blatantly favors one political party over another.

Canadian Government Plans 'Stalinist Show Trial' of Heroic Doctor Legal Trickery Would Silence Dr. Charles Hoffe

Prominent Canadian physician Dr. Charles Hoffe has spoken out courageously to warn people of the very serious dangers of the Covid mRNA genetic "vaccines." He now faces trial from the Canadian health authorities aiming to silence him and effectively destroy his medical practice. The government's objective, he says, is "to try to make an example of me and make sure all the other doctors toe the line and keep quiet and just obey." Dr. Hoffe, who is widely regarded as a heroic truth-teller across much of Canada, comes across as a down-to-earth man of great integrity, honesty and humility. An outspoken advocate for patient safety, medical ethics, and the Hippocratic oath ("First, do no harm"), he is accused by the medical authorities of spreading "misinformation," putting people at risk, and encouraging "vaccine hesitancy." After 31 years as an emergency room physician with not a single patient complaint against him, he was fired from his ER position for telling a nurse that somebody who had natural immunity didn't need to get the Covid jab.

The Bicycle Repair Shop

Two brothers in Ohio in the late 1800s managed a publishing business where they printed newspapers and manufactured printing presses. Neither of them had attended a university, nor had either married. Perhaps this is why they had the time to expand their mechanical skills into the bicycle trade, eventually owning and operating a bicycle shop.

Profits from their printing and bicycle businesses were eventually used to fund experiments. Between 1899 and 1905, they designed lightweight wood and wire machines and reinforced them with metal tubing, intending to create heavier-than-air contraptions that could fly.

When Wilber and Orville Wright conducted their first historic flight in one of their rickety contraptions on December 17, 1903, the two brothers from Ohio made history. The floodgates to aeronautic science then swung wide open. Incredibly, it was only 63 years later that humans landed on the moon.

In A Study in Human Incredulity, by Fred C. Kelly, the Wright brothers' only "authorized" biographer, Kelly explains,

"The Wrights' belief that they had achieved something of great scientific importance was not bolstered by the attitude of the general public. Not only were there no receptions, brass bands, or parades in their honor, but the neighbors paid less attention to the history-making feat than if the 'boys' had simply been on vacation and caught a big fish or shot a bear.

One neighbor, Mr. Webbert, father of the man from whom they rented their bicycle shop, did concede: "I know you boys are truthful and if you say you flew through the air in a machine, I believe you. But then," he added, "down there on the Carolina coast you had special conditions to help you. Of course you couldn't do it anywhere else."

Other neighbors thought if the thing had been done at all it must have been an accident, because of unusually powerful winds, and at best was just a stunt, not likely to happen again. One had remarked, just before Google's search results on 2024 presidential candidates overlook Republicans while promoting Democrats, according to an analysis by media watchdog MRC Free Speech America.

Between Sept. 20 and 25, MRC Free Speech America analyzed Google search results for three terms related to the upcoming elections—"presidential campaign websites," "Republican presidential campaign websites," and "Democrat presidential campaign websites." The searches were made a week prior to the second Republican presidential primary debate on Wednesday.

WEF Demands Powers to Regulate Public's Speech Online

Interestingly, the WEF makes no mention of cracking down on speech that could be linked to serious crimes such as terrorism or child abuse, nor does the organization mention targeting false information. Apparently, the WEF is more concerned with cracking down on political speech or information that may undermine its agenda.

the Wrights went to Kitty Hawk: "People will fly at the same time they hit on perpetual motion." Many of the Wrights' acquaintances made no reference, when they met the inventors, to the reported flight, because it was embarrassing to discuss anything so preposterous.

One reason why nearly everyone in the United States was disinclined to swallow the reports about flying with a machine heavier than air was that important scientists had already explained in the public prints why the thing was impossible. When a man of the profound scientific wisdom of Simon Newcomb, for example, had demonstrated with unassailable logic why man couldn't fly, why should the public be fooled by silly stories about two obscure bicycle repairmen who hadn't even been to college?"

No doubt there are thousands of examples of revolutionary changes initially scoffed at by the general public. How about the idea that the Earth is round and not flat, for example? Or that the earth revolves around the sun and not the other way around? How long did Galileo stay locked up in prison for making that observation? Or that life evolves over time? Or that organisms too small to be seen with the naked eye exist, a discovery made by a self-educated working-class man in Holland? These changes in human consciousness did not happen overnight — they were refined over generations. Hard work and dedication by many intelligent people are needed to advance the human understanding of new ideas.

Can we create a democratic model that is not controlled by oligarchs and instead works for the common citizen? Of course we can. Will it happen overnight? Of course not. Will it require the combined efforts of thousands of intelligent people working toward a better future for humanity for generations to come? Yes, it will.

There are innumerable goods and services that we rely on daily. Not only are the commoners, as opposed to the wealthy elite, providing those goods and services, but their ancestors laid the groundwork before them, as had their ancestors, and those before them. We are not lacking in human resources. When a small handful of oligarchs controls the government, and thereby the education system, and the means of communication through the mass media, what we lack as a result is knowledge, open communication, and the wisdom and understanding that comes from sharing ideas without censorship and propaganda.

The Executive and Judicial branches will block us? Yes, they will to some extent and already are. When the democrat governor of Pennsylvania, Tom Wolf, declared a "health emergency" in the early 2020s in response to the Virus Hysteria, what started as a supposedly brief period of lockdowns and mandates stretched into months, with no end in sight. The Pennsylvania legislature, in frustration, then voted to end the declaration of emergency. Every republican voted in favor of ending the state of emergency, but every democrat voted to keep the emergency declaration in place. Two democrats voted with the republicans to end the emergency. The republican majority prevailed. The people had spoken. The ridiculous emergency scenario was voted out. Governor Tom Wolf, member of the executive branch of the government, a democrat, then vetoes the will of the people. There weren't enough votes to override the veto. The emergency declaration remained in place.

Why would all the democrats, including the democrat governor, align themselves with big pharma? If there really was a public health emergency, wouldn't everyone be concerned, no matter what political party they belonged to? Things started smelling fishy real fast when the medical establishment refused to allow people to stay healthy or to heal themselves by their own manner of choosing, instead imposing stay-at-home lockdowns, masking, and forced injections with experimental drugs as the ONLY permitted response to a flu season.

Here's How Big Tech Plans To Rig The 2022 Midterms

As the 2022 midterms loom, big tech companies are again announcing their plans to meddle in U.S. elections by censoring news and information. Social media censorship ramped up dramatically following President Donald Trump's 2016 victory, leading to companies such as Twitter and Facebook colluding with Democrat operatives in intelligence agencies to censor and suppress factual stories that harmed then-candidate Joe Biden during his 2020 campaign.

Two years later, following heavy documentation of the meddling, big tech companies are intent on using the same strategy. And they're openly admitting as much.

Facebook took no action against the Democrat-funded and coordinated operation to question the legitimacy of the 2016 election by falsely accusing Donald Trump of being a traitor who stole the election by colluding with Russia. That lie, which led to mass public hysteria and years of investigations, is allowed free rein on its platform. Facebook's so-called "fact-checkers" included journalists who participated in spreading the lie or otherwise allowed it to continue without censorship via fact-checking.

So, what if a flu virus had been genetically modified in a bioweapons lab to readily infect humans and to block their uptake of oxygen? So, what if the pathogen had been intentionally released the world over to create panic and widespread death while the criminals behind it all raked in astronomical piles of money? What the “smartest people in the room” forgot about was the strength of the natural human immune system. People who conscientiously take care of their health have little to worry about when flu season rolls around. The solution is not to give the medical establishment dictatorial rein to run roughshod over humanity and force them to take untested experimental drugs. That is insanity.

If representatives were randomly selected, and they had only one vote like everyone else, political parties would no longer maintain a stranglehold on the throat of American democracy. The three leading causes of deaths in the United States in 2023 were as follows:

1. Heart disease: 681,621 annual deaths
2. Cancer: 570,347 annual deaths
3. Influenza and Pneumonia: 366,963 annual deaths

However, for some inscrutable reason, medical statisticians leave out what many consider to be one of the top-three leading causes of deaths. A 2023 CNN article by Deidre McPhillips stated, “Misdiagnosis of disease or other medical conditions leads to hundreds of thousands of deaths and permanent disabilities each year in the United States. About 371,000 people die and 424,000 sustain permanent disabilities — such as brain damage, blindness, loss of limbs or organs, or metastasized cancer — each year as a result.”

The 2023 report she refers to (BMJ Journals, Volume 33, Issue 2, “Burden of serious harms from diagnostic error in the USA”) states: “An estimated 795,000 Americans become permanently disabled or die annually across care settings because dangerous diseases are misdiagnosed.”

Looks like the third leading cause of death is debatable, depending on whom you ask.

According to the CDC, in 2021, “Cigarette smoking remains the leading cause of preventable disease, disability, and death in the United States, accounting for more than 480,000 deaths every year, or about 1 in 5 deaths.” In comparison, the CDC listed the number of COVID-19 deaths in 2021 as 416,893. Sixty-three thousand more people died in 2021 from cigarettes than from COVID.

That’s odd, because the CDC, in concert with U.S. government and

But they allowed people to buy cigarettes, soda pop, and junk food at the gas station, on one condition: they cover their faces when entering the store — to protect their health! And these edicts were coming from the “smartest people in the room”?

The insanity should be obvious here. And it should also be obvious why many people were not interested in following the strict mandates of medical professionals. Their expertise is in medicine, and their suggestions are welcome. But their priorities often seem to be off, and they have no right to force drugs on the public or to block the public from making their own decisions about how to take care of their own health. These are the same people who blocked everyone from getting fresh air, sunshine, exercise, and prepared food, while forcing masking, anti-social distancing, and experimental, untested drugs on people as young as six months, even on pregnant women, even on healthy people, even on people who had the virus and had natural immunity. In the meantime, they themselves are our third leading cause of injury and death at nearly 800,000 a year, eclipsing cigarettes at about 500,000 a year, and COVID at 417,000!

Doctors of Health

Maybe we should spend some of that defense budget to protect ourselves from these and other obvious threats. For example, medical training seems like it could use some help. But here’s a better idea: Let’s train Doctors of Health as well as Doctors of Medicine. Doctors of health would be trained in health. They would focus on the dietary and lifestyle foundations of health rather than drug therapies. They would work in concert with Doctors of Medicine as needed, although they would almost certainly reduce the number of patients who seek medical care. Imagine someone with an MD degree also having an HD degree. That would totally change the face of medicine and public health as we know it today.

Coronavirus Cases Plummet When PCR Tests Are Adjusted

PCR tests cannot be used for any diagnose or virus detection

As a fundamental precept, let us underline that Dr. Kary B. Mullis who received the Nobel Prize in chemistry in 1993 for inventing the PCR technique, witnessed in many videos that he never developed this technique to detect viruses and serve as a disease diagnostics.

Before his death in 2019, he declared publicly in several occasions that the PCR technique is an invention for in vitro research in the laboratory. He emphasized it is not intended nor reliable as a test for the public or as a medical diagnostic tool for physicians because it is inaccurate to detect any virus.

The latest versions of the navy's anti-ship cruise missiles cost approximately $3 million each. Theoretically, the cost of only one "defense" missile could easily cover the educational costs for several people wanting to practice as Doctors of Health. Considering that a missile has an expected life of only 30 years, training competent Doctors of Health seems like a good way to spend defense money, especially when one considers the value such professionals would provide toward protecting our country from the real threats that we're faced with daily.

Incidentally, since missiles expire in 30 years, you may begin to understand why war dogs salivate for yet more wars. The expiring hardware needs to be used up and, of course, replacing it is very expensive. Taxpayers will pick up the tab. These may be good reasons for people who want forever wars, but these are also people without a conscience who would fall into the "greedy bastards" category of humanity. We should have a remote island for them to go to and we should give them a one-way ticket, free of charge.

What would a "Doctor of Health" (HD) do anyway? Let's look at some examples. A highschooler on the volleyball team comes home late from school several days a week because of practice. The team frequently stops for pizza and other fast food after the practice sessions. Eventually, the teenager becomes constipated. Not knowing what to do, her parents take her to a doctor, who prescribes a laxative. However, pharmaceutical drugs often come with side effects. Some laxatives are associated with increased colorectal cancer. Colon cancer rates have more than tripled in teens ages 15 to 19 in the past 20 years. Factors influencing gut health include not only laxatives but also antibiotics, which can damage the gut microbiota, and, of course, bad diets high in refined foods such as box pizza. Both the parents and the child need to learn about natural health and dietary nutrition. They need a health professional.

This is a very long and detailed topic. However, let's look at a couple more examples. One recent headline stated, "Disturbances in Gut Flora Linked to Autism, ADHD Development." Gut flora (microorganisms) are killed by antibiotics. Doctors will say that they're killed by infections, but it's not the infection that kills them, it's the treatment. Another recent headline reads, "How What You Eat May Change Your Unborn Chil-

Biden is sued by state AGs for colluding with Big Tech on censorship

President Joe Biden and multiple top officials in his administration have been sued by two Republican-led states for pressuring and collusion with Big Tech to suppress free speech. The suit cites the Hunter Biden laptop story, the lab-leak theory, the security of mail-in voting, and the effectiveness of cloth masks.

Condemning Twitter’s Censorship

As an independent news organization dedicated to reporting the truth, The Epoch Times has been subjected to excessive censorship by Big Tech. In the latest such incident, Twitter on July 28 censored all of our content by putting up a blockade to our website, describing it as “unsafe,” and encouraging users not to proceed. Twitter’s actions—just like those by other tech giants such as Facebook and YouTube specifically targeted the reach of our independent news and video content.

Rats fed on diets with high fructose corn syrup clearly became cognitively impaired. “A diet steadily high in fructose slows the brain, hampering memory and learning.” A century ago, diabetes in this country was almost unheard of. Sugar feeds cancer cells, and this evidence supports that contention.

Another new study suggests a link between greater fluoride intake during pregnancy and toddlers with behavioral problems. Children whose mothers had higher levels of fluoride were 83% more likely to become affected.

How about we spend some of our “defense” budget to train health professionals to gain practical insight about these sorts of things. This is only the tip of the iceberg. Imagine how much healthier we would be as a society if we were educated, guided, and encouraged to pursue actual health rather than to ask for medical intervention when our bodies and minds are damaged by what we have put into them.

Johns Hopkins University, in partnership with the World Economic Forum and the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, created a notable tabletop exercise known as "Event 201" in October 2019. This exercise was designed to simulate an outbreak of a novel zoonotic coronavirus that could be transmitted from bats to pigs to people, eventually leading to a severe pandemic. As we now know, the primary objective of "Event 201" was to brainwash the already mindless governmental apparatchiks to act in lockstep when COVID-19 trigger words and images get plastered all over media. To induce and maintain the level of fear of the "virus" with 99.8% survival rate necessary for the high degree of public acquiescence to illegal tyrannical measures, Johns Hopkins University developed the COVID-19 Dashboard. It was launched on January 22, 2020.

Under neocommunism, the family as the foundation of civilization would cease to exist. It would be replaced with gender confusion, mental depravity, biochemically mutated humans, and a blurring of the balance between male and female human beings. Children would be educated by the government, injected with medical drugs from birth, told what to think, rewarded for being obedient and conformist, punished for free thought or for independently questioning the status quo. Wait, that's already happening.

The medical experts who orchestrated the COVID scamdemic brought upon our nation the highest death count attributed to COVID anywhere in the world, by far. That single sentence should be repeated over and over, broadcast far and wide, and hammered into the minds of American citizens until they wake out of their brainwashed slumber. This same professional group is also the third leading cause of death in the United States. Yet, our big-pharma-controlled government will permit them to take children from loving, responsible parents because the mothers and fathers choose non-medical approaches to health care over drug injections for their children. What happened? Did the rights of children and families prevail, or were they trampled under the feet of big pharma's rush for profit? Was the family, as the foundation of civilization, protected and fortified, or did neocommunism wipe it out?

Pay close attention to Fundamental Right #3. Thou shalt not kill. Although this is also a Christian commandment, it is one that is repeatedly ignored. It has never been a fundamental right proclaimed and established by a government. Yes, killing one person is a crime called murder, which can put an individual in prison for life. But slaughtering hundreds of thousands of men, women, and children, at the command of civilian politicians who control the military, is not a crime. It's an act for which you will be bestowed the title of "hero," and for which medals will be placed upon your chest. You will likely get a promotion in rank.

Notable examples include the firebombing of the civilian city of Dresden, Germany, in February 1945, which killed tens of thousands of men, women, and children. Dresden was over 700 years old when the Americans and their allies bombed it. It was considered one of Europe's great art and architectural treasures. Nearly 30 generations had passed since the city had been founded. Craftsmen and women had developed extremely advanced skills in design and construction over those centuries and had built a magnificent city. What took centuries to achieve was destroyed in a matter of hours on the orders of civilian politicians, some of whom no doubt never even worked with their hands enough to develop callouses. While destroying the monumental accomplishments of generations of working-class people, the warmongers also guaranteed the deaths of tens of thousands of innocent civilians.

The bombing of the civilian cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki in Japan in August of 1945 killed hundreds of thousands of men, women, and children, with many more dying of radiation poisoning afterward. Japan was over 2,000 years old when it was bombed. It also had highly developed cities and magnificent architecture. The 12-man crew on the Enola Gay, the B-29 that dropped the atomic bomb on Hiroshima, were mostly in their 20s. The captain, Theodore “Dutch” Van Kirk, was 24. The bombardier who pushed the button to drop the bomb, Thomas Ferebee, was 26. These men turned an ancient city the size of Dallas into ashes in a matter of minutes, then flew home and were congratulated for what they did.

The nation of Vietnam was well over 3,000 years old when American B52 bombers flew over the rice patties and villages in the 1960s and 1970s, “carpet bombing” the people who lived there. Here was a nation that was as close to “sustainable” as we can imagine. Their agricultural system was completely organic and dated back thousands of years. The villagers made their clothing by hand, pumped water from wells using foot power, crafted their own furniture from the surrounding jungle trees, and lived in harmony with nature in a manner that we can’t comprehend in America today. Our politicians, our representatives, small-minded, fearful, ignorant, greedy, corrupt, and pathetic individuals, had convinced the American population, at least the TV-watchers, that the Vietnamese people needed to be violently assailed, invaded, and, if they resisted, destroyed.

There is no need to review the atrocities against innocent populations that have occurred worldwide, paid for by American taxpayers. We have already touched upon them throughout this book. But let’s not forget one very important point: War is failure. War is insanity. War is caused by human individuals, primarily by politicians. We cannot allow them to continue. They must be stopped. Let’s sacrifice an island somewhere and ship the warmongers off to a permanent vacation so we can all live in peace. This idea is not as frivolous as it may seem. War is the enemy. We only fight each other because of failures in leadership. Let's pull the weeds out of the garden of humanity, and start a compost heap with them somewhere far away. Very far away.

Who Pockets the Interest Payments on our National Debt?

It became clear in the early 2020s that a vast, international, dark, quasi-government could not only control international policy throughout the TV-watching world, but it could, and would, cast aside all of the rights listed above. How? By creating a new disease vector and releasing it into the world, then engaging in a massive psychological operation to scare the hell out of everyone who watches TV and other media platforms under its control. Then, inform the huddling masses that the only means for their survival is in the cure they provide — a series of drug injections that appear to have been designed for something other than a respiratory virus. This is what they did. This is what happened in the early 2020s.

Before viruses were added to the public list of enemies, to the list of things that were threatening to destroy us, it wasn't heart disease, cancer, or medical error on the list; it was the Koreans, the Vietnamese, the Communists, the Terrorists, the Iraqis, the Afghans, the socialists, and a government lineup of dictators, scoundrels, or criminals warranting American bomb attacks and military interventions. These included Manuel Noriega, Saddam Hussein, Muammar Gaddafi, Bashar al-Assad, Kim Jong-Il, Joseph Stalin, Osama bin Laden, and many others whose personalities were used to justify huge military buildups in the United States as well as wars and interventions, some of which we have already mentioned.

Not specifically mentioned is the even longer list of dictators, scoundrels, and criminals who were supported and/or financed by the American taxpayer, no matter how authoritative, repressive, or murderous they may have been. All of this is the result of our government, or, more specifically, the people who control it, intended to siphon money from the taxpayer, funnel it into a military budget account, then use it to convert our natural resources into bullets, bombs, tanks, missiles, and other weapons. Not to mention financing proxy armies intended to overthrow democratically elected leaders who were unfortunate enough to consider themselves socialists and to be caught in the crosshairs of American fear, rage, and greed. Our converted natural resources are then blown up, along with millions of people, many, if not most of whom, are innocent, including our own military soldiers, who are forced to follow the orders of leaders, however deficient in wisdom they may be.

In the process, huge profits are raked in by the political factions lurking in the swamp. All that is required is a scared American population, a poorly educated citizenry, and a boiled frog culture. In 2024, it was estimated that our national debt, then at 35 trillion dollars, would climb to 55 trillion dollars within ten years. We were already paying a trillion dollars a year in interest payments. Every night while Americans sleep, tens of billions of dollars of interest payments disappear from their treasury and slide into someone's pockets. Who were the people raking in this windfall? Could they also be the ones who were most vociferously pushing for wars, pulling the strings of the government to run up the already obscene debt? Why was this question not being asked anywhere? What was the answer?

What happened next? Did we put an end to the forever wars? Did we root out the individuals behind them and bring them to justice Nuremberg-style? Did we the people rise up, affirm our rights, strengthen our democracy, hunt down and prosecute the dark, quasi-government, shine a light on the cockroaches, clean up the deep state, and drain the swamp? Or did we continue to stand aside and watch the rats clustering around our unguarded treasury unhindered, like pigs feeding at a trough, gobbling up our tax dollars like a locust plague wiping out our amber waves of grain? If we were stupid enough to allow the thievery to continue, it could be argued that we deserved it. But our children do not deserve it, nor do our grandchildren. They rely on us to leave them a world of beauty, prosperity, and hope. It is our responsibility. What did we do?

Direct Democracy

Meritocracy

Assuming random selection became implemented and direct democracy prevailed, then, among other things, the entire process became a popular feature of TV and social media. Eyes would be glued on the random selection process. The final round of candidates would be interviewed and showcased, with the final selection of representatives treated like celebrities. The showcasing of democracy would provide a new and unique entertainment niche in the media world. Citizen engagement and participation would be at an all-time high.

The focus on meritocracy as a means of advancement in government would allow legislative representatives to become preferred candidates for executive branch positions after their legislative terms have been completed. Successful, respected representatives could then become candidates for governorships and/or other elected government roles. We the people would eventually create processes to even the playing field in general elections so that working-class people would be able to mount serious candidacies and not be at a disadvantage compared with the ultra-wealthy or to people who are financed by the oligarchs.

One good thing about the scamdemic was that it exposed the people who want to trample on the Constitution and replace it with tyranny. All anyone had to do was to post a comment on any social media about a “vaccine injury,” and any media that was aligned with big pharma would censor it, block it, or label it “misinformation.” Why would they want to block important information about people who are injured by an experimental drug? The Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System, (VAERS) had 1.6 million reports of adverse events associated with the COVID drugs and rising. The 1.6 million is estimated to be 1% to 10% of the actual total.

Who would block information about drug side effects and adverse reactions then force more and more people to get the drug injections? Why would anyone do this? Is it because the forcing of experimental, untested, DNA-altering drugs on billions of people under conditions of rigid coercion, intense propaganda, unwavering censorship, and threats of violence is a crime against humanity, and therefore any mention of the harms done by these crimes has to be blocked by the people who committed them?

All anyone had to do was to mention election fraud in the 2020 presidential election, and the same cabal of ultrawealthy elitists would block, censor, smear, defame, and destroy anyone who opened their mouths. Why? Is it because they knew that election fraud of this scale constitutes the crime of treason and that they were complicit in that crime?

Anyone who speaks out against the never-ending warfare, the “forever wars,” is branded a traitor, a tool of Putin, and a Russian asset. If they’re a member of Congress, they’re attacked by the media and by the mainstream propaganda outlets, then they’re driven out of power.

Ironically, the boiled frogs know little or nothing about any of this. They only see and hear what the propaganda platforms allow them to see and hear. What happened? Did the boiled frogs wake up, cast aside the propaganda devices, abandon the brainwashing machines, open their eyes, think for themselves, engage in independent research, and move civilization constructively forward? No doubt many have. Did the rest follow?

It didn't start with gas chambers. It started with one party controlling the media. One party controlling the message. One party deciding what is truth. One party censoring speech and silencing opposition. One party dividing citizens into “us” and “them” and calling on their supporters to harass “them.” It started when good people turned a blind eye and let it happen.

Direct Democracy

"In 1776, the population of the entire United States was less than the population of Chicago, Illinois today. In 1776, without cars, electricity, Internet, or advanced technology, and with such a small population, a "Constitutional Republic" made sense. It was a revolutionary leap away from the rule of kings. It was a successful model that suited the times and it worked. But it has become obsolete. By clinging to an outdated, anachronistic mode of governing, we are creating a monster. And that monster will devour us if we don't get it under control."

Our nation faces bankruptcy.

Our people are divided.

Our elections are riddled with corruption, confusion and mismanagement.

Our Bill of Rights is under assault. The Forever Wars are never ending. Our shadow government is a criminal enterprise milking the working class of their hard-earned taxes. Just as technology, science, and medicine have advanced, so too must our government evolve to meet the needs and demands of our time. The "Constitutional Republic" envisioned by our founding fathers 250 years ago is now outdated. It was designed for a fledgling nation with a small population. Although our Constitution remains the bedrock foundation of our nation, its application needs to be reformed to reflect the realities of today's United States. This book presents a bold vision for Direct Democracy, offering a clear path to reclaim our nation's future. Together, we can create a government that truly serves its people. We can fix it, we the people, and the time is now.
